PALO ALTO.

A mile north of Mayfield is the growing university town of Palo Alto, a place of 6500 people. The San Jose and Santa Clara Interurban Railroad has recently installed an up-to-date street car service. The town is now spending $250,000 in street work. It has over 20 miles of cement sidewalks.

This little city, with its property valued at $3,000,000, has been created in twelve years. Its proximity to the grounds of Stanford University, its fine climate and excellent society, the character of its government, making it ideal for homes, has resulted in unexampled prosperity. There are few towns indeed that can show such uniformly attractive houses. The place has kindergartens, private schools, two preparatory academies, grammar and high schools, etc. The public school buildings cost $100,000. The town owns an electric light, sewer and water system, has a free library, bank, newspapers and many business houses. There are no saloons, but many churches.
