The city is beautifully decorated with shade trees and palms, and there are miles of well graded streets and cement sidewalks. Our public buildings, notably, the Carnegie Library, City Hall, County Court House and Hall of Justice, including our church buildings of every denomination, and bank buildings, are attractive edifices and worthy of note. We have ample amusements in theatres and otherwise so that never a dull moment may be spent in this city. Throughout the county the roads are excellent. We have more than 300 miles of roads which are sprinkled during the summer months and a total of 962 miles of public roads. In addition to the attractions presented in San Jose one is in close touch with many smaller cities and towns each with its distinctive attraction and all located within Santa Clara County, within easy reach of San Jose, either by rail or electric road. Each city is named in alphabetical order and its features described in this volume.

Visitors planning a trip to San Jose and Santa Clara Valley should bring their automobiles. All roads are open to automobiles and the city is supplied with garages well equipped for repairs and supplies. We have seven garages and one manufacturing plant, which turns out a high grade machine.

Those not interested in motoring will find ample and reasonable livery accommodations for trips throughout the valley.
