From Us...

Vital to the future of every Washington student is a knowledge of his future occupation; a knowledge of the working conditions and the chances of success and security that that particular occupation presents.

With this in mind, the Surveyor staff has conducted an extensive survey and made an exhaustive compilation of facts and figures pertaining to the vocations that seem desirable to Washingtonians. These compilations, in addition to others made concerning the personality growth of Washington students, form the basis for the theme of the Fall '40 Surveyor, which is "the preparation for the future of Washingtonians in their chosen professions."

...To You

Testing ground for the abilities, hopes, and plans of thousands of young Americans is the present-day high school. Here youth is given the chance to develop abilities and characteristics for whatever future it has chosen.

Three years ago, in the spring of 1938, two hundred and sixty students entered George Washington High School, ambitious to test themselves; to train themselves for the final proving grounds of the outside world they were so soon to meet.

The three years have passed. In a few days these two hundred and sixty young men and women will leave the testing grounds of high school to meet head-on the challenge of adulthood.

To these, then, who know better where they are going and how they will get there because of their high school experience, we dedicate this Spring '41 Surveyor.

To your futures, Seniors! May you find success, and security, and happiness, and fun a-plenty.

Your Future Work

Twenty years from now the chances are that one of every four of today's Washingtonians will be in a profession, if their present plans work out. Anyway, 25.5 per cent of the 1817 students who answered our questionnaire are training for professional work. Into medicine, nursing, dentistry, pharmacy, and medical research will go 163; teaching attracts 129; science appeals to 58; journalism, 49; law draws 31; the stage, 20; the ministry, 2; and 2 are undecided as to their final choice.

One-fifth of the students choose business in some form, of whom half plan to enter commercial competition as salesmen, buyers, interpreters or economics experts. Three per cent plan to own their own business; the rest aren't sure, but are interested in banking, insurance, hotel management, real estate, stocks, and so forth.

Eleven per cent like the technical professions: engineering of all kinds attracts 93; aeronautics, 72; electrical technics, 12; architecture and photography, 12 each; one lad is interested exclusively in air-conditioning.

About one of every ten doesn't know what he wants to do.

Office work will engage 7.4 per cent. Most will be secretaries, but about one-third aim for accounting and bookkeeping positions.

Skilled laborers of all kinds are getting training now. Most will be mechanics, with draftsmen running a close second, followed by carpenters, plumbers, truck drivers and welders, silversmiths, waiters, butchers, and chefs.

Art and music appeal to 7 per cent, with commercial art, fashion designing and interior decorating most popular. Two to one, Washington temperaments prefer art to music.

Civil service and government position are popular with 5.8 per cent, of whom the navy will claim 21, the army 14, the marines 2; 28 will be foresters; 5 policemen; 3 will be diplomats. Coast Guard and customs service will each boast 1 minuteman.

Farming, ranching and horticulture appeal to only 21 student, about 1 per cent of those reporting.

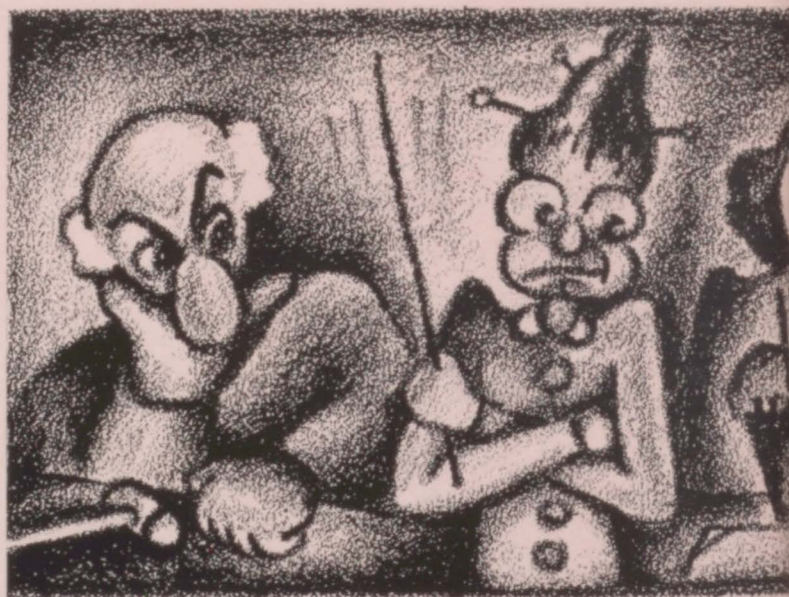

Other fields like dietetics, cosmetics, social work and professional sports account for the remaining 3.9 per cent.

Here's the secret! Attain skill in the vocation you have chosen and your chances of making a comfortable living are 99 out of a hundred! That is borne out by national figures, which show that only one per cent of trained workers need relief.

Among the best paid professions for men immediately after college are dentistry, forestry, and telephone work, which pay $2,000 or more yearly; or agriculture, architecture, and engineering, which pay $1,500 to $2,000 the first year. For women, nursing and teaching give the quickest financial returns. The average nurse's salary is $1,692; average teacher's is $1,236.

Explanation of chart: From each of the six most popular vocations among Washingtonians, the Surveyor selected the single occupation most often chosen, investigated the requirements and possibilities of the job and charted the result for your edification.

SIX MOST POPULAR OCCUPATIONS AT WASHINGTON	PROFESSIONAL FIELD Medicine—28%	BUSINESS FIELD Salesmanship—8.8%
Character and Personality Needed	Deep interest in science and languages. Optimistic character—it's a long, hard struggle. Intellectual ability, winning personality.	Personality, persistence, patience, tact. Ability to judge customer reactions and to know complete line of goods to be sold.
Education and Training	From seven to eleven years of college are required, 2-4 years premed, 4 years in medicine, 1-3 years intern-ing. Long and expensive training. Minimum, $3000.	High school education. Part time jobs during vacation. College major in business administration is helpful but not necessary for some sales positions.
The Field: Salary and Chances to Rise	Field is over-crowded as a whole. Need for specialists grows. Average practice brings from $3000 to $5000 yearly. Once established, the chances to rise are great.	Tough grind for beginners, work is often seasonable and unstable. Beginners get $15 or $20 weekly, experienced make $30 or $40 on commission sales.

TECHNICAL FIELD
Engineering—43%

Decided ability in mechanics and mathematics. Requires special training and exact methodical judgment. Patience is a virtue. Vision needed.

Four years of college plus one year of post-graduate work in one of the thirty-four special types of engineering, in one of the schools connected with most universities.

No limit to salary. Beginners are usually low-paid, but in certain fields, after some time, advances are rapid, with salary increases.

Secretarial—53%

Patience, tact, neat appearance, cheerful personality, business ability, alertness. Must be able to take criticism and obey orders.

High school education. Commercial major. Business school training is helpful in operating machines. Clerk in offices during vacations.

An uncrowded field with college unnecessary, but wages are low and opportunities for promotion are small. $60 to $65 monthly. Experienced $100 to $150 monthly.

SKILLED LABOR
Auto Mechanic—31%

Strength and good health because the work is often indoors and gasoline fumes are dangerous. Mechanical knowledge of automobiles and engines.

High school education, followed by trade school. Work in garage during vacations or after school. Learn as much as possible about motors.

The demand for competent workers is steadily increasing. Pay is reasonably good—$25 weekly, more for experienced worker. Opportunities to rise, however, are small.

POSITION
Forestry—26%

Interest in "the great out-of-doors." Nature lover. It's a hazardous but healthy life. A will to do for others helps.

To be a forest ranger 4 years of college are necessary. Major in agriculture and forestry at some recognized agricultural college. Take Civil Service.

Growing profession. Chances for advancement are fair. Salary is good—$1100 for beginners, experienced make as much as $5000 yearly.

Principal Cummings:

"There is a Tomorrow!"

MR. ERNEST J. CUMMINGS, Principal

Youth lives in the future, middle age in the present, old age in the past. Sometimes you come across an older person who impresses you with a feeling that he is still young. That is because he has not stopped living in the future; he has not forgotten that there is a tomorrow.

Since the future is essentially the realm of youth, it follows that nobody is more interested than young people in what the future is like; nobody more alive to the need of getting ready for service in that future.

National Defense, for example, is regarded by most young people as a sort of holy crusade, a bulwark against evil that is approaching, a champion to protect the idealism of tomorrow. That's why one thinks of education as soon as there is mention of youth or of National Defense. Sound education is the surest protection a people can have against dangers that may threaten them either from without or within.

There was a minor Roman god who possessed a special ability worthy of admiration and envy: this deity could look into the past and the future at the same time and see what was there. His name was Janus. The month in which you seniors are graduating was named from this god, because it is the month that opens up the vista of a new year and is near enough to the old year to look back upon it. I believe that Janus, if he could tell us, would say that each new year was the fruiting of the old year,—of all the old years. That is what tomorrow can mean to you—the fruit of all the best in all the yesterdays since time began.

Defense implies enemies. When there are enemies there must be weapons, also knowledge and experience in their use. George Washington High School is a workshop where you who are about to graduate have gained experience in the use of two powerful weapons—scholarship and citizenship.

One of your enemies is already at hand. He is that realist, that shatterer of dreams, who will try to convince you that there isn't any tomorrow, that the world is hopelessly upside down, that nothing matters any more. Don't believe him. You are ready to test the weapons you have forged. Step with confidence into tomorrow's adventure.

*"To be alive at such a time were joy,
But to be young were very heaven."*

Vice Principals Klingner and Jackson:

MR. KLINGNER'S MESSAGE

Almost before we have said HAIL, we must say FAREWELL.

But, with that farewell, may I add another word, which I hope you may remember,—DREAM.

Back of all great achievements in life is a dream . . . and a dreamer. No doubt you can name many of them, but, to me, one stands unique.

More than a hundred years ago, a half century before the Wright Brothers made history at Kitty Hawk, one of the world's greatest dreamers wrote:

*"For I dipped into the future, far as human eye could see,
Saw a vision of the world, and all the wonders that would be;
Saw the heavens fill with commerce, argosies of magic sails,
Pilots of the purple twilight, dropping down with costly bales;
Heard the heavens fill with shouting, and there rained a ghastly dew
From the nations' airy navies grappling in the central blue."*

Tennyson was only a poet . . . a dreamer . . . his ideas ridiculed by practical men. But you and I have seen his dream come true; true to the point where we sometimes feel that all that civilized man has struggled to attain throughout the centuries is being swept away. Indeed, you might face the world with gloomy forebodings had the dream ended here . . . but it continued:

*"Till the war drum throbbed no longer, and the battle flags were furled
In the Parliament of man, the Federation of the world.
There the common sense of most shall hold a fretful realm in awe,
And the kindly earth shall slumber, lapped in universal law."*

We have seen the first part of the DREAM come true. It is your high privilege to DREAM and work and pray for the happy ending . . . universal law and peace. May it be yours to see the Tomorrow.

MISS JACKSON'S MESSAGE

Trained minds and skilled hands and intrepid hearts were never more desperately needed than now, when the "dusk of gods" seems brooding over the universe. Tomorrow calls. It is you, and other youth like you, who must bring the dawn. Your trained minds must subdue for the use of human beings, not their destruction, the forces that science is continuously unloosing; your skilled hands must build strength into our homes, communities, and nation; your intrepid hearts must make the democratic ideal of brotherhood a living reality.

With Mary Antin, the immigrant girl who found in America the fulfillment of all her dreams, may every one of you say: "I am the youngest of America's children, and into my hands is given all her priceless heritage to the last white star espied through the telescope, to the last great thought of the philosopher. Mine is the whole majestic past, and mine is the shining future."

Discussing important school affairs are Mr. Klingner and Miss Jackson, Boys' Dean and Girls' Dean, respectively.

MR. WILSON - MR. VANDERLAAN

...The Best is Still to Come"

MR. PERINO, who teaches Business Arithmetic, Biology, and Geometry, is a sponsor of both the Rifle and Saber Clubs. Hobby is M.C.-ing Senior Day rallies.

MR. MILLS, one of the most popular of faculty members, insists that he has no "dislike," but diplomatically claims that George Washington High is his "like." Mr. Mills, another newcomer, teaches Electric Shop and chooses radio as his hobby.

MR. MAGNER, a newcomer to Washington, teaches both Mechanical Drawing and Machine Shop. In a jovial manner he reluctantly divulged that his hobby was ice skating; his favorite "like," his family; and "dislike," loud noise.

MISS REYNOLDS promptly revealed "getting up" as her pet hate. She likes to travel, and has chosen photography as her special hobby. A Spanish teacher, she indulged her hobbies this summer in Guatemala.

MR. LEITH, boys' basketball coach, admits whole-heartedly that basketball is his hobby, and that he likes sports of any kind. Mr. Leith teaches Boys' Physical Education and U. S. History.

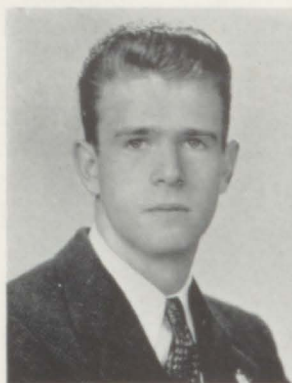

MRS. LEVIEN chooses the fascinating field of art in which to locate her favorite hobby. Mrs. Levien is the hard-working secretary of the school.

MRS. KAINE, a most versatile feminine newcomer, has numerous hobbies: hiking, psychology, cooking, and so on. She likes old books, and dislikes people's annoying mannerisms. Mrs. Kaine, originally an English teacher, is teaching Culture of Nations this term.

MR. BARTHOLOMEW, whose hobbies include program work, teaches mathematics courses, including both algebra and trigonometry.

MR. WILSON, who is fond of all sports from "tiddley winks" to football, names "bores" as his chief dislike and "Newspaper work" as his chief like. Mr. Wilson, an ex-faculty member newly returned to Washington, is Faculty Advisor of the Eagle and also teaches History and English.

MR. VANDERLAAN admits that he definitely enjoys good, funny movies and detests crooners. His favorite pastime is solitaire. Mr. Vanderlaan, although usually a French teacher, instructs only World History students this term.

SENIOR HIGHLIGHTS

By HELEN WINTER

Once upon a time—(don't stop us if you've heard this one before!)—in January, '38, there entered some 260 (more or less) bewildered sophs into the muraled halls of good ol' G.W.H.S. These 260 typical kids, besides searching for the 4th floor swimming pool, trying to buy ice cream on the roof, and worshipping their upper-classmen, plunged head over heels into the school's social whirl—(Junior Debs, we call 'em). . . . So these li'l sophs, always thinking of the ol' institution, had a Clean-Up Day in the back yard . . . (those were the days of '38, when a dirt patch took the place of a stadium) . . . after which the winning reg saw a wild and woolly double feature at a neighborhood cinema palace . . . and along with the Clean-Up Day in the social whirl of events came the Senior-Soph Dance in which the green kids were dragged around by the "high and mighties." . . .

"Lend me your ear, soph—here's some good advice."

During this time the young'uns took time out from their busy little lives to elect Mary (watch this gal—she's goin' places) Mangan, president, Fred Lear, vice-president, and Nancy Dougall their class secretary. . . . But all good things must come to an end, and so Chapter I in the Senior history closes 'midst a sensashunal (pardon—still in English III) basketball game with Lowell. But on to Chapter 2. . . .

Now we find our li'l angels as High Sophs, and that Lear boy—right up in front again as prez, this time with lovely Marge Deaken trailin' right behind him as vice-president . . . and Barbara "Babs" Keith is following as sec'y. . . . This term they're cleaning up the school again. . . . After this another hop was held for the wee kids. . . . This term's class project was Safety . . . so, after another hectic semester of successes and failures, we find the li'l mites as Low Juniors. . . . So on with the story:

The curtain rises on a new scene. . . . This time some of the youngsters are battling in the field of HENRY ZEIBAK will take chemical engineering for his vocation . . . his major was mathematics . . . will attend U.C. and take up chemistry . . . he was member of soccer team. ALVIN ZIMMERMAN has been an active member of the band . . . after his graduation Alvin is planning to enter the field of aviation . . . he has also taken history as his major. RICHARD ZINK hopes to obtain some type of government work . . . at Washington he was Student Body custodian, and on the executive committee . . . intends to go to J.C.

School Day

Let's start the day right by waving a hurried good-bye to our mamas and papas who drove us to school and then let's hurry to our first period. . . . Soon we are in registry listening to a radio broadcast put on by members of the Junior class over the George Washington Broadcasting System. . . . During registry, Eagle salesmen come in and persuade us (which isn't too hard to do) to buy the school paper.

Here we are getting on the good side of teacher by presenting her with a nice, big, juicy apple. . . . Guess we weren't good enough; boy, are these Spanish sentences tough; there must be millions of them. . . . After a strenuous game of badminton these Washington lassies take time out to gossip during a gym period. . . . Looks as if June Zakarian is having a tough time eating this giant apple during lunch, or maybe it's just difficult watching the boys' gym classes and eating all at one time. . . . Boy, oh boy—all this nice, hot, steaming, fragrant food is making us awfully hungry; but we won't have long to wait, 'cause the service in the cafeteria is really fast and efficient. . . . Oh-oh, the bell has rung, and we are off to another class of problems and lectures. Tsk, tsk—it looks as if we are being overworked. . . . But, all good things come to an end, so it's off to our lockers for our books and coats and. . . . We're on our way home for some relaxation in true Washington style—yep, that's right—homework!

LOW SOPHOMORES

Although they were a bit bewildered by the newness and largeness of their surroundings, the Low Sophomores entered Washington intent upon making a name for their class both in scholarship and in school activities. The first step toward their goal, "Being a credit to Washington," was accomplished when they chose peppy Girard Rhine, President; petite Patricia Bradley, Vice-President; and Beverly Lutzen as Secretary.

The officers led the "Sophs" through a successful term which included the special "clean-up" campaign. Each low sophomore class was assigned to clean a certain section of the school on certain days of the week and in this way the "newcomers" contributed their bit to Washington High.

Low Sophs begin their cleanup campaign in earnest.

HIGH SOPHOMORES

With "Safety in the Halls" as their term project, the High Sophomores, led by athletic Bill Rose, President; Ruth Fisher, Vice-President; and Florence Lindsay, as Secretary, took an active part in all of Washington's activities. The "Safety Campaign" was constantly brought before Washingtonians, making them safety minded by means of posters and traffic directors at every stairway for one week.

Prevention of accidents resulting from carelessness on the stairs and in the halls was the theme of the project and the High Sophomores celebrated their success by a dance in the Library. Although their project has been completed, the class has left posters up at the stairways, and these reminders have kept safety uppermost in students' minds. In this way the High Sophomores made Washington a safer place to live in.

The sound of the lunch bell sends every Washingtonian, whether soph or senior, scurrying to different parts of the building, but the favorite hangout of the high juniors is the stadium benches. They can be seen any noontime eating their lunches, and watching the boys' gymnasium classes doing their daily routines, and the ships passing through the Golden Gate.

LOW JUNIORS

After staging one of the most talked about rallies in Washington's history, the Low Juniors, in collaboration with the High Juniors, can look back upon a term of huge success.

The success of this spirited class can be attributed to the excellent leadership of President George Badaracco, Vice-President Lois Currie and Secretary Jacklyn Wolf. The Low Junior term project was the promotion of school spirit.

The rally, as planned by a hard working committee of Juniors, featured a talent program, which included songs and monologues and everything else that goes with a rally replete with fun and music.

Highlight of the activities of this past term was the impressive dedication of the auditorium and athletic plant held Armistice Day, November 11. A crowd of 1500 parents, local dignitaries, and noted educators witnessed in successive order, a spectacular R.O.T.C. parade in the new stadium staged by the Eagle cadets; a fine musical program by the Washington orchestra and Girls' Choral; and the presentation and acceptance speeches by the president of the Board of Education, C. Harold Caulfield, and Superintendent of Schools, J. P. Nourse, respectively; and the impressive radio play, "The Story of San Francisco."

Magnificently situated, overlooking the famed Golden Gate, the well decorated Washington High School gymnasium was the scene of the second P.T.A. sponsored "All City Dance" on the evening of November 29. One thousand enthusiastic preppers thoroughly enjoyed themselves dancing to the fine music of Carvel Craig and his orchestra.

Over two-thirds of the total enrollment of Washington High purchased Surveyors this term, one of the finest sales records of any of the San Francisco High Schools. Specifically, some 1525 students bought their Surveyors this term, a new all time high for Washington. Because more than 1500 books were sold, every purchaser received a journal bound in a leather cover. A special offer to the high senior class was made late in the term, to buy, at a small extra charge, padded covers plus names engraved in silver.

HIGH JUNIORS

Under the direction of President Mort Zimmer, Vice-President Fay Malouf and Secretary Lorraine Trussell, the High Juniors, in conjunction with the Low Juniors, staged the first class rally ever held in the new stadium. Music, laughs, yells, and Mr. Leith featured this rally of rallies.

The High Juniors sponsored the improvement of school spirit this term in addition to participating in many school sports and activities.

Guest of the Juniors was Frank Lawler, famed ex-Washington yell leader. To those who had never seen Frank perform his gyrations and roar his directions, it was indeed a treat.

It's the Junior Day rally in the new stadium.

One of the more modern features of Washington High School is its broadcasting system. Special announcements, programs, and advertisements of school events are sent to one class room or any combination of classes from the broadcasting studio, located in Principal Cummings' office. Programs presented in the auditorium can also be sent by remote control to the main building and to the gymnasium. Among the special features this term was the radio broadcast of "The Story of San Francisco," presented by the students of Washington under the direction of Miss Helen Archer.

LOW SENIORS

"Our day will be dedicated to the whole student body, not to just the Low Senior Class," declared Low Senior Prexy John Contos a few months ago. True to his word, he and his officers, Mary Jane Linkin, Vice-President, Ruth Maltzer, Secretary, and Lou Sachs, Treasurer, planned this rally and dance for all Washingtonians.

The theme of the day was Christmas and sure enough the class presented and decorated a huge Christmas tree which was seen by all and sundry in the main lobby of the school.

The Low Seniors' term project was the sponsorship of attendance, a project which suffered a serious setback at the appearance of 'ole man flu' who made off with a large number of Washingtonians for a week or two.

Major Choices

★ After all is said and done, what you learn at school is dependent upon what you want to learn. And what you want to learn is dependent upon what you want to become. And what you want to become we've discussed earlier in the book.

★ But anyway, we thought you'd be interested in knowing how many other people in school were taking the same courses you are. So we collected more figures for you.

★ A history major is the most popular in school, with 19.8 per cent of you signed up to learn all about causes and consequences of world events.

★ The commercial majors with 19.5 per cent only beat by one-tenth of 1 per cent the language majors, with 19.4 per cent. Incidentally, most people are taking Spanish, with French a close second and German and Latin way down the list.

★ Mathematics takes fourth place in popularity with 15.6 per cent.

★ Next in line is the science major, which drops way down with 7.1 per cent, which seems odd, considering that about 37 per cent said they were planning for vocations requiring a knowledge of science.

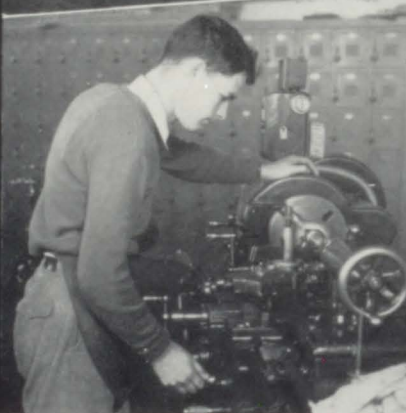

★ Art attracts 6.9 per cent of Washingtonians, with Shops taking 5.2 per cent. Most popular shop is auto shop, with woodwork second and electric third.

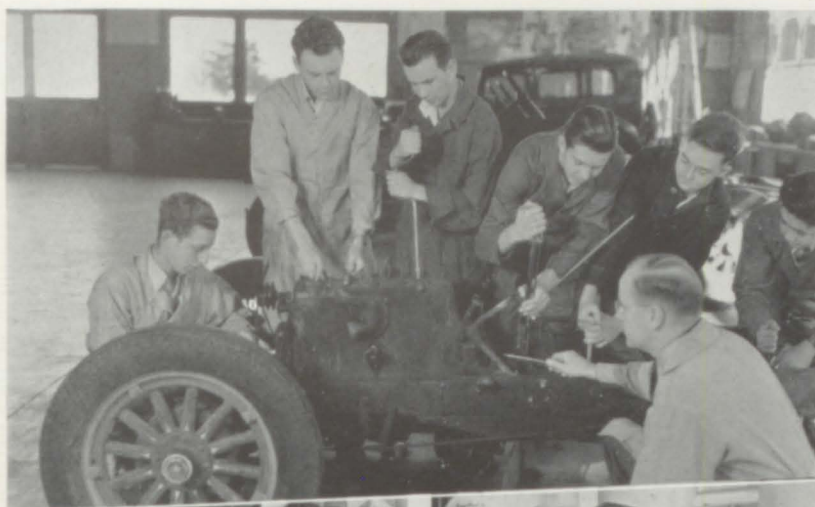

★ Down in the smaller numbers are Music, with 2.5 per cent, Home Economics with 2 per cent, English with 0.7 per cent, and Journalism with 0.2 per cent. Only 0.5 per cent of the students have not yet decided on their major.

★ If you're planning to go to college, you'll be interested to learn that among undergraduates the most popular majors for men are engineering and business administration, and for women, education and English.

★ If you're wondering about financing your college education, you'll be glad to know that you're not the only one so puzzled. Some 68 per cent of college men and about 43 per cent of college women "earn while they learn" enough to pay anywhere from one-sixth to the total amount of their college expenses.

★ As to your job-holding possibilities if you go to college, here are some amazing figures given by the U. S. Office of Education this year: eight years after graduation from college, 97.9 per cent of the men are employed and 1 per cent are studying for advanced degrees. About 37 per cent of the women are married.

Student Body Executives

Cherished positions as student body officers are acquired only after earnest effort. Candidates file petitions, proving adequate scholarship and citizenship rating, then conduct active campaigns. After election, they are inaugurated into office with the help of the outgoing officers. Candidates' rallies and elections are held during the term preceding the one to be served, so that electees have time to rest before beginning the arduous task of steering the "ship of state" between the shores of faculty and student desires.

A term dotted with pork pie bonnets, reversible top coats and excellent activities was begun by the ushering in of the sophomores. The usual Senior-Soph Reception welcomed the entering class as new friendships were formed and old ones were renewed.

Under the leadership of President John Cleary the student body was honored to have as guests at different rallies some of the outstanding men in the radio profession. A most interesting and genuine person was Art Linkletter, who lived up to his reputation as one of the best radio announcers in the business. The Richfield Reporters, who have one of the largest listening audiences in the west, explained exactly what takes place in the compiling, editing and broadcasting of world-wide news and events.

Washington dances were ably taken care of by the dance committee, which was headed by Vice-President Mary Mangan. The ghosts and goblins which lined the walls of the library created the appropriate atmosphere for the Hallowe'en Dance. Other dances held during the term were the All-City Prep Evening Dance sponsored by the P.T.A. and the Thanksgiving Tin Can Dance, to which the admission fee was a can of food.

"Hello Day," which is gradually becoming tradition here at Washington, was held for the seventh time. This event is always successful in helping unite Washingtonians in friendship.

The term project of the Sophomore Class was a "Safety Week," held from December 2 to 7. Posters and Sophs all over the halls helped make students safety-conscious.

This term the Junior Class undertook the idea of promoting school-spirit, which they ably did when they staged one of the finest rallies ever held at Washington. The students assembled for the first time in the stands of the stadium, where, under the excellent direction of Mr. Leith, an amateur contest was put on, after which Graduate Yell Leader Frank Lawler made the stadium ring with different school yells. The girls and boys left the rally warm with a gala spirit which was climaxed at the end of the day by a dance in the gym.

Treasurer George Konevich concluded his campaign for the sale of Student Body Cards by staging a dance given for the 100 per cent classes.

The activities of the semester were concluded by a huge celebration presented by the seniors. A rally featuring a Kay Kyser type of program preceded the spectacular Senior Stunts in the afternoon.

"All good things must come to an end," and so the very successful Fall '40 term closes with credit due all the officers. The student body was under the leadership of President John Cleary, who was assisted by Vice-President Mary Mangan, Secretary Annette Klepper, Treasurer George Konevich, Athletic Manager Warren Townsend, Custodian Richard Zink, and Yell Leader Bill Cummins.

Washington's legislative body, the Executive Council, holds bi-monthly meetings during school to discuss regulations which have been proposed and to pass laws according to the school's constitution. The council, made up of representatives from each class and of the student body officers, is advised by Mr. John Burke.

"Scholarship for Service" is the motto of the George Washington Scholarship Society. The project of the Scholarship Society is to raise the scholastic standard of the school. The most important measure in this project is student coaching, which takes place before and after school. Among other projects for the term were the sale of textbook covers and the program for the graduation ceremony.

The officers of the Scholarship Society are: president, Bob Simpson; vice-president, Louise Horne; secretary, Jeanne Wallace.

George Washington's Eagle Society, which is sponsored by Mr. Lloyd Leith, holds an important position in school affairs. Among the many services rendered by the Eagles are the maintenance of order at rallies and football games and assistance in various capacities at dances, social affairs, and the dedication ceremony. The Eagles gave valuable help with the Surveyor pictures by keeping order. Boys elected to the Eagles this term are: Dick Murphy, Howard Shields, Louis Franz, Howard Petersen, Jack O'Brien, Don Linville, Ken Spargo, Bob Piercy, Ed Smith, Jack Dooling. Boys elected into the Eagles serve until they graduate. Those graduating this term are: Don Scranton, John Kockos, Ken Spargo, John Cleary, Dick Murphy, Bob Schaezlein, Fred Lear, Angelo Maestri, and Jack Hickey.

In keeping with custom, the Eagles held a barbecue at Sigmund Stern Grove near the end of the term. At this meeting the graduating members and standing members of the Eagles voted on boys to fill their places. As was the procedure last term, the Eagles invited boys from every grade who met the requirements of scholarship and service to join this group.

Goal of every Washington "Soph" girl is membership in the crack honor club, the Girls' Service Society. Organized in the year of Washington's infancy, 1936, under Miss Edith Pence, former girls' vice-principal, the G.S.S. chooses for its members those girls who have performed meritorious service in promoting the honor, morale, and welfare of the school. The aim of these girls is to take the initiative in such affairs in the George Washington High School as the school administrators deem beneficial to the school.

Miss Eleanor Jackson, girls' vice-principal and sponsor of the society, aided President Sophie Ellis, Vice President Ruth Maltzer, and Secretary Louise Horne to make the Fall '40 term a memorable one.

New members who will graduate are Nancy Behrendt, Beverly Carr, and Guinevere Gunthorp; other new members are Janet Irvine, Mary Jane Linkins, Ruth Mangan, Helen Rosenberg, Katherine Rucker, Lorraine Trussell, and Nathalie Willard. Sophie Ellis, Louise Horne, Annette Klepper, and Mary Mangan will graduate also.

ARTHUR BLUM
Surveyor Editor

Washington's Publications

SURVEYOR

Recording memories is their business. And to record memories for two thousand students of differing tastes is a man-sized job. But we hope the Surveyor staff has made a success of the enterprise.

Editor Arthur Blum has done more than inspire nostalgia in George Washington's critical students. He has followed a new idea. This term's Surveyor is not only published to entertain its readers but to aid them as well.

Assisted energetically on all sides, Memory Recorder Blum has answered a universal question. Genuine interest in the future of Washingtonians has created the theme of the Fall 1940 Surveyor, vocational futures.

Working side by side with Editor Blum, Assistant Editor Dorothy Danziger has helped to attain the high standard set by previous Surveyors. Deserving equal praise for their work on the editorial end of the journal are Senior Editors Helen Winter, Lois Clawson, Don Birkenseer and Jim O'Connor. Photography was expertly handled by Deane Oyer, Gloria Birtell and Eleanor Little. Publicity was done by Caloise Robinson, Gloria Fontes and Jean Connor.

Equally important in the workings of the Surveyor is the business staff. Business Manager Jack Grannis, Advertising Manager Don Scranton and Circulation Manager Milton Rudee were the guiding lights of this department.

Needless to say, a successful Surveyor could never have been published without the advice and cooperation of Miss Jane Cook, faculty advisor; Miss Eleanor Parsons, circulation advisor; Miss Haidee Tobriner, art advisor, and Mr. Thomas Gates, advertising advisor.

EAGLE

"Students make George Washington what it is." This statement of last June's Surveyor is true in every sense of the word. The Surveyor might have added that a school is known to other schools best by the paper that represents it. Washington's fame must be great, for its newspaper, the Eagle, shows in all respects the fineness of achievements of its students.

The policy of the Eagle has been to cover the activities of Washingtonians fairly and forcefully. Each organization in the school deserves, and gets, a space in the paper. Activities that interest the student body as a whole are dealt with with accuracy. Editorials are written to criticize constructively, not to tear down. Features are written to interest, to entertain or to inform.

Putting all her efforts toward maintaining the standard of former editors, Florine Levinson, Eagle editor, has succeeded in reaching this standard and in setting a higher one for future Eagles. In reaching this goal Florine has introduced new features into the Eagle that have benefited George Washington's students immensely.

The editorial staff, ever eager to please its reading public, includes energetic Kay Rucker, assistant editor;

Scribes, Scripts, Scoops

Catherine Parac, city editor; Helen Winter, feature editor; and Dick Johnson, sports editor. Student Advisor Annette Klepper, former editor of the Eagle, has helped immensely in putting out these stellar editions of the paper.

Publications of the Eagle would be impossible without the assistance of the business staff. Business Manager Lorraine Taylor, Advertising Manager Marilyn Coleman, and Circulation Manager Beverly Mirsky have all put their best efforts into balancing the budget and generally keeping up the business end of the Eagle.

Mr. O. A. Wilson, faculty advisor, has earned the gratitude of the whole staff with his wise counseling and assistance to the editorial staff, as has Mr. Frank Lyons as circulation advisor.

Paragraphs and Photographs...

For the third successive year Washington's light but fast gridiron aggregation presented one of the most versatile and baffling attacks ever seen in the A.A.A. league. The Eagles displayed down-the-middle-power in All-City Fullback Howard Shields, a spectacular passing attack led by Louis Franz, Joe Chun, Jimmy Bell and Kenny Spargo, a fast breaking ground game led by Henry Tom, Don Ellis and Jack Hafner, and grand kicking by Al Markarian.

The Minutemen line, though small, put on a great display of fight throughout the season. Led by hard charging Warren Scott, one of the city's finest tackles, the Washington line outplayed many a heavier and more experienced opposing line.

The Eagles' record of two wins, two ties and four defeats is excellent in view of the squad's lightness and inexperience.

POLY, 13—WASHINGTON, 6

Coach Schefflin's "bantamweights" encountered a tartar when they met the ultimate league champions, the powerful Polytechnic Parrots. However, the Minutemen disregarded the heavy odds against them and proceeded to scare the living daylights out of the giants of Poly by actually leading 6-0 for two and a half quarters. A nifty pass from Lou Franz to Jack Hafner was the play that almost upset the apple cart. The Poly powerhouse, however, finally started rolling and by the time these Parrots had stopped rolling, they had chalked up 13 points against the hard-fighting Eagles. The Washington defense, which held Poly from touchdownland for the first half of the game, was led by scrappy Jim Finnegan.

WASHINGTON, 0—COMMERCE, 0

The Minutemen, minus the services of two-thirds of their first team, battled the highly favored Commerce Bulldogs to a scoreless tie during four quarters of surprising football. The first half was all Commerce, but the second half was all Washington. In fact, the battered and crippled Eagle line stopped Commerce so cold in the latter half that even the spectators began to get chills. Ed Rain, Warren Scott, Charlie Zeiback and Louis Franz were the lads who stood out in Washington's spectacular stand against the highly favored Bulldogs.

WASHINGTON, 6—ST. IGNATIUS, 0

Coach Schefflin's gridiron heroes, a bit overconfident, perhaps, but with plenty of scrap in their systems, trod

MEN'S COACHES
Mr. Hunter, Mr. Fagin, Mr. Schefflin, Mr. Leith

over a big, but woefully weak St. Ignatius squad.

Washington held the Wildcats to a mere 20 yards from scrimmage all afternoon, one of the best defensive exhibition of the season. After pounding relentlessly at the Ignatians' goal throughout the game, the Eagles scored on a "strike" thrown by Joe Chun to Tom Fox in the closing minutes of the game.

Lou Franz's sensational 58 yard run and Howie Shields' smashing line plunging were the highlights of this contest, in addition to the stellar work of Terry O'Connor at tackle.

WASHINGTON, 13—SACRED HEART, 2

Strange as it seems, the Fighting Irish were favored over the Eagles. Washington, however, blasted pre-game predictions and went on to crush the Irish 13 to 2.

Putting on one of the season's finest passing shows, the Eagles, led by the trusty right arms of Jim Bell and Joe Chun, struck twice via the air waves to score the decisive points.

Washington first scored on a pass from Chun to Markarian, followed by a plunge by piledriver Shields. The Irish then drove to the Eagle three, were held on downs, and then nabbed Bell behind the goal line for two points.

Pertaining to Pigskin Progress

Late in the game, the Chun-to-Markarian combination produced the remaining seven points.

WASHINGTON, 0—BALBOA, 19

Ouch—this one hurt; but despite the score, the game was fairly close. It was just that the Eagles met the most baffling attack they had encountered in many a day, and were so busy trying to stop it that they forgot to capitalize on the many breaks with which the Buccaneers presented them.

Howie Shields played superb ball, both defensively and offensively.

WASHINGTON, 0—MISSION, 21

It was a case of too much power against a scrappy but weakened Eagle. The burly Bears had the power and did they display it! The Eagles had the deception, but were weakened badly by the loss of Shields in the first quarter. As usual, the Eagle line played fine ball, Bob Henri, Bob Johnson and Jim Turner being particularly outstanding.

WASHINGTON, 7—GALILEO, 14

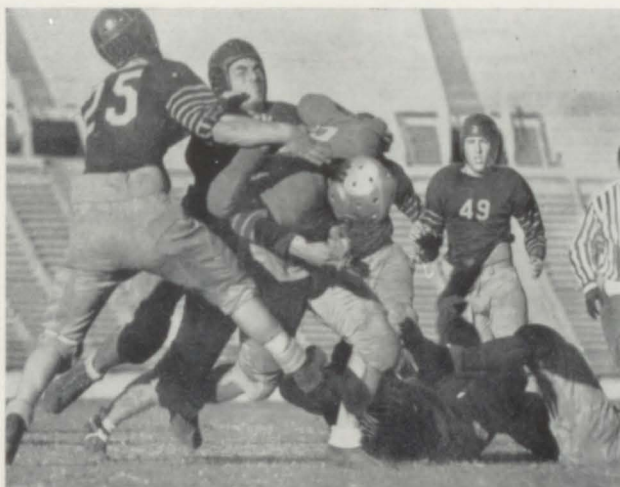

The Eagles were the better team for 47 minutes and 3 seconds. The Lions were the better team for 57 seconds. But, oh, those 57 seconds—two touchdowns for Galileo, two conversions for Galileo.

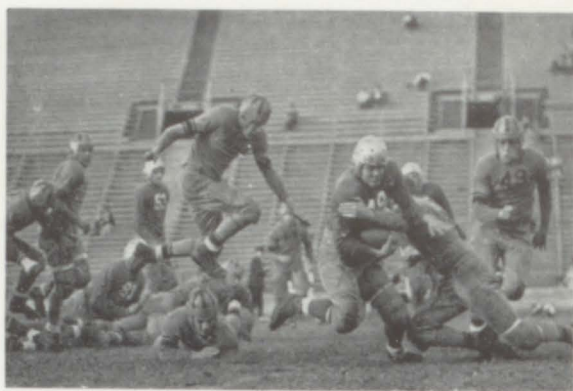

The Minutemen, capitalizing on one of their numerous golden opportunities, scored in the first quarter on a pass from Joe Chun to George Pond; Ed Rain converted. All was going well until those fateful 57 seconds in the third quarter.

The Eagles, on the march again, had a spot pass intercepted and on the first play the Lions romped to a sensational touchdown, followed by a successful try for points.

Eagle back finally stopped by Balboa line. Shields runs into everything but the referee in the S.I. game.

Howie Shields breaks away for a big gain in the Lowell game. Minutemen caught flatfooted in Galileo encounter.

One of the more thrilling scenes of the Washington-Mission game. Notice one of the Eagles flying through the air with the greatest of ease.

Football Review

After receiving the kickoff, the Minutemen had another spot pass intercepted, this time for a touch-down. Thus, Galileo, capitalizing on two breaks, defeated a hard luck gang of scrappy Minutemen.

The game was marred by the injury of Warren Scott, Washington's fine lineman.

WASHINGTON, 0—LOWELL, 0

Meeting in the third of their traditional clashes, the Washington Eagles and the Lowell Indians battled nip and tuck for four quarters to a scoreless tie.

The highlight of the game, aside from Russell and Hoffman's passing and running for Lowell, and Shields' plunging and Rain's defensive for Washington, was the magnificent goal line stand made by the Eagles in the first quarter. Lowell had ripped the Washington line to shreds and had gained a first down on the four yard line. Four smashing plunges were stopped cold by a fighting Washington line that surged up four times to smash the Lowell attack to bits. The last quarter was played in semi-darkness, nullifying any chance of aerial warfare.

Among those playing their last game for the Minutemen were Howie Shields, Jim Bell, Joe Chun, Don Linville, Al Markarian, Jim Turner, Terry O'Connor, Bill DeRecat, Bob Schaezlein, Argalus Anderson and Warren Scott.

This was to be the "Big" year for Washington's Touchdown Twins, Jim Finnegan and Lou Franz. But that "ole Man of Misfortune," Father Fate, decreed otherwise; for ere the season had hardly begun, Messrs. Finnegan and Franz were badly injured and were unable to play the remainder of the schedule.

Yell Leaders Girard Rhine, Bill Cummins, and Jack Gardner.

Finnegan, after playing a magnificent defensive game in the season's opener against Polytechnic, sustained a broken leg just as he received a spot pass. Displaying real sportsmanship, the Poly team presented Jim with a trophy emblematic of its respect for him during the half time ceremonies of the Washington-Galileo game.

Louis Franz, after leading the Eagle attack for the first two games, received an ankle injury just as he was driving for a touchdown in the St. Ignatius game. Lou, being an all-around athlete, will compete in either basketball or baseball in the Spring '41 semester.

Soccer and Basketball

SOCCKER

Washington's red and gray clad soccer team, refusing to be cellar occupants this year as they have been in the past, proved to the competing shin-bruising teams that Washington is also in the league.

During the practice season, the Eagles were beaten but once in eight starts. The defeat came at the hands of the San Francisco State Varsity eleven by the close score of 2 to 1. This defeat raised the morale of the Washington team, as the Golden Gaters upset the highly favored California Varsity the following week end.

One of the wins was played at Berkeley against the California frosh.

LEAGUE GAMES

Washington, 1—Lowell, 0; Washington, 2—Commerce, 1; Washington, 3—Balboa, 0; Washington, 0—Mission, 1; Washington, 1—Poly, 2; Washington, 0—Galileo, 0.

The season is now history, the best since Washington opened A. A. A. competition. The Eagles closed with three wins, two defeats, one tie, and took possession of third place.

BASKETBALL

Led by Forward Tom Tomioka, Washington's 110-pound cage team ran over all but one of its opponents. The single defeat was from the always tough Commerce five. Listed below is the team's season record: Washington, 22—Sacred Heart, 6; Washington, 18—Commerce, 22; Washington, 31—Galileo, 18; Washington, 46—Mission, 17; Washington, 14—St. Ignatius, 12; Washington, 21—Balboa, 16; Washington, 14—Poly, 13; Washington, 20—Lowell, 13.

In the final game of the season (against Lowell) the Eagles showed a brilliant passing game, shooting only with men in the clear. The win dead-locked Lowell and Washington for first place in league standings.

Lacking mid-season form, Washington's 120 quintet closed its 1940 season with five wins and three defeats. Listed below is the season record:

Washington, 25—Sacred Heart, 15; Washington, 22—Commerce, 21; Washington, 35—Galileo, 15; Washington, 15—Mission Bears, 32; Washington, 25—St. Ignatius, 14; Washington, 23—Balboa, 24; Washington, 17—Poly, 23; Washington, 28—Lowell, 17.

G. A. A. - For Gaiety, Action, Agility

Short girls, tall girls, big girls, small girls, every girl, all girls joined in this semester to make one grand and glorious term of after school sports, for that is of what G. A. A. is composed. Every day after school, different sports are offered for selection by the fair damsels of our school; and do they like their sports? You bet they do! This is proven by the extra large turn-out this term. Having not a little to do with this showing were those grand gym teachers who taught the sports, and also the set of officers that the girls chose to lead them in their activities, namely, president, Barbara Wilder; vice-president, Nancy Gallagher; secretary, Nathalie Willard; historian, Ruth Mangan; and those three exponents of songs and yells, Mary June Dygert, Elaine Jackson and Theodora Tjovenos.

A good time was the keynote of this term's activities. Starting off with a sign-up rally that was really a "hum-dinger" and which was supervised by Jeanne Zaro, the girls got into the spirit of this organization which is simply stated in three words: Friendship, Sportsmanship, and Fun! Round-robins, tournaments and friendly competition all provided pleasure-packed moments in the various sport meetings. But G. A. A. girls were not selfish. They did not keep these good times all to themselves. G. A. A. sponsored something new this term by extending to all the teachers a small sample of their good times. It was a Teachers' Playday in which the teachers could let down their hair and play at their favorite sport. This playday was ably handled by Phyllis Mirsky and the teachers truly enjoyed themselves.

Then, there was that spirited candidates' rally, splendidly conducted and arranged by Pat Gillespie. And last, but not least, that super, spectacular and unequalled banquet that climaxed this wonderful term. Chairman of the banquet and handling it most efficiently were Betty Morris and her assistants, Audrey Freese, Alice Penna, Lorraine Trussell, Jeanne Zaro, Marjorie Pape and Doris Norman.

The G. A. A. Board is composed of the officers of G. A. A. and all the managers of the various sports. These hard working managers certainly had fun this term on their big weenie roast that they had at the home of Mrs. Clayton. Sitting on the floor and sticky fingers were the order of the day and the Board loved it.

The Board was also the happy victor of the semi-annual softball game that it held with the Block "W." After the game a big dinner of spaghetti and French rolls was had and everyone went home contented.

Those girls who have gone out for sports for four terms in high school by which they have earned their Block "W" award are automatically members of the Block "W." This society this term was under the "prexyship" of Jeanne Zaro, with Geneva Runnels, vice-president, and Pat Gillespie, secretary. This group certainly had a most successful term of activities, including bowling, swimming and bicycle riding.

In fact, this term was one of the most successful in G. A. A. history.

Now Washington Can Sit Down!

George Washington stood for everything at Valley Forge and it seemed to be Washington High's heritage to also stand for everything; yes, even rallies!

But after four years of standing, Washingtonians became tired. They wanted to sit down! Now the city of San Francisco has built a nice, new stadium and auditorium complete with thousands of nice comfortable seats; so Washington students can sit down and enjoy themselves watching rallies, games, and scenery.

Washingtonians can sit down in the auditorium and watch the events that transpire on the mammoth new stage or they can relax on the stadium benches and gaze idly at the world famous view of the Golden Gate.

In other words, Washington can relax because its students can at last sit down.

With a seating capacity of approximately sixteen hundred, George Washington's auditorium is one of the newest and most modern of its kind in America.

Meet the Minutemen Musicians

Music as we know it today is not something to be regarded lightly. It is a masterful development of something that, a few centuries ago, was nothing more than a simple tune, lacking the charm of harmony and rhythm. Through the years it has progressed steadily and dominantly, until today it is one of the largest and greatest fields with the richest of opportunities.

The future has much in store for Washington's musically inclined students. In the sound-proof rooms of a newly planned music wing, which will be added to the rear of the auditorium, beginners will learn the fundamentals of playing many instruments; further advanced students will practice so that they may become better and more experienced; and some day Washington may have turned out many famous musicians.

This long-needed addition to the school will perhaps make more enthusiastic the students interested in music; that is, if they need pepping up; for this term there was a larger enrollment in the music department than ever before in the history of the school.

It will probably seem rather strange to the classes by the inner court when the serenading from the Choir and Girls' Choral is no longer heard, for the musicians are to have the second floor of the auditorium wing for their practicing, arranging and club meetings. It will also seem strange to the boys in the shops and the pupils in the art metal classes when they can no longer keep time to the marches of the band playing in the adjoining shops, for they also will move.

This past term has been a busy and successful one for the music department. For the radio play, "San Francisco," presented at the dedication of the auditorium on Armistice Day, the Girls' Choral and the Choir furnished the vocal background as well as solo selections, under the direction of Mrs. Myrtle Swanson. The advanced orchestra, which, by the way, was so good that it was chosen to play at the Teachers' Institute in the Civic Auditorium the day before Thanksgiving, furnished the appropriate music for the occasion. According to Mr. Marion Knott, this is the best orchestra the school has ever had.

Also the R.O.T.C. Band played and helped to make the ceremonies more impressive. This band, which is the largest the school has ever had, forty-eight members in all, had been marching and drilling, preparatory to accompanying the R.O.T.C. unit in competition for the Commandant's Cup, which Washington had won for the past two years. At present the results are not known but it is safe to say that they will make a fine showing.

The greater part of the R.O.T.C. Band makes up the "Swing Band" which is still in want of uniforms. At the P.-T. A. night benefit dance held last term, two hundred dollars was made; at least five hundred more are needed before the uniforms can be had. The "Swing Band" plays a large part in the school's activities. It has played for all of the rallies and at all of the games; filled the students with spirit before the game and helped to cheer the team during the game.

Dedication: Armistice Day, 1940

The story of San Francisco was unfolded before the eyes of hundreds of public educators and interested spectators as the new George Washington High School auditorium was dedicated on Armistice Day, November 11.

The radio dedication related the story of San Francisco with its mission days, its gold rush, and its modern achievements; of San Francisco with its people, Richard Dana, Emperor Norton, Lotta Crabtree, Engineer Strauss; and of many others of her historical characters from the days when San Francisco was a boom town and the cry for gold rang in everyone's ears until it became the city that it is today: a prosperous industrial city with its bridges, seaport, and numerous industries that were only dreams of yesteryear.

The series of scenes was climaxed by Shirley Overton's singing of "God Bless America," with the audience joining in the chorus. Altogether the performance made November 11 one of the most enjoyable days of George Washington High School's history.

Preceding the radio dedication, the George Washington R.O.T.C. staged a formal, full dress battalion parade in the new stadium before a large group of enthusiastic spectators. After the parade the audience filed into the auditorium, some 1500 strong, to hear the dedicatory addresses by Superintendent of Schools Joseph P. Nourse; President of the Board of Education, C. Harold Caulfield; and George Washington High School's Principal, Ernest J. Cummings.

The Hutchinsons — Bless Them!

The night of December 13 was indeed a gala one for the students of George Washington High School; it was a night of firsts.

In a more serious vein, it was an occasion that will go down in the history of a school famous for firsts. For it was on this night, Friday the Thirteenth, that the new auditorium, built for success, was filled with the success of the first senior play presented in the spaciousness of the new building. True to their reputation for setting the pace, George Washington Seniors presented a play that set the audience's sides rocking with laughter.

"The Hutchinsons, Bless Them," left the audience with a lighter heart and an easier laugh. Miss Archer, dramatics teacher, was coach of the cast.

A harum-scarum family of not-too-typical American youths, whose equally flighty mother had a job keeping her family by the old fireside, "The Hutchinsons, Bless them," were portrayed by the following cast:

Lennox Cinnamond, Audrey Freese, Don Michaelian, Marge Krase, and Lawrence Helscher composed the younger generation of the Hutchinson family, while Joyce Barnett fluttered through the part of Mrs. Hutchinson, and Janice Goldstein portrayed with excellence, the crusty old grandmother. Marilyn Felix, Mary June Dygert, George Konevich, Carmen Burke, and Warren Heiman all lent their talents to making the play a success. Mary Mangan was the student director and Rosalind Cohen the student prompter.

The music was supplied by the Washington orchestra under the direction of Mr. Marion Knott, Eagle music instructor.

Upper Left: Oh, oh, looks as if Mr. Jackson, alias Warren Heiman, has stirred up a hornets' nest in the persons of Mrs. Hutchinson and Grandma Hutchinson, portrayed by Joyce Barnett and Janice Goldstein respectively. Lower Left: "To be or not to be," cries Larry (The Big Profile) Helscher, alias Ralph Hutchinson, while his girl friend, Joyce Wells, played by Mary June Dygert, looks on in astonishment. Upper Right: These smiling faces belong to the members of this term's cast of the Senior play, "The Hutchinsons, Bless Them." Lower Right: "Come on, Black Beauty!" scream the Hutchinsons as they listen to the Irish sweepstakes.

Reserve Officers

Four and a half years ago Washington's Reserve Officers' Training Corps was first organized with the scanty enrollment of less than 170 students. It did not take long for the battalion with its three rifle companies to earn an excellent reputation. Much of the credit for the rapid progress goes to Major J. M. McCormick, U. S. A., who was the military science instructor for the first two semesters.

In the three-year course the cadets learn all the fundamentals of modern warfare, including first aid and sanitation, military discipline and courtesy, military history and policy of the United States, map-reading and patrol scouting.

Throughout the fall the cadets practiced rifle marksmanship in the armory's fifty-foot indoor range. Often as many as seventy rounds of .22 caliber ammunition were consumed in a single day of firing. Next spring the best riflemen will be selected to represent the Scarlet and Gray in nationwide competitions.

Washington's West Pointers

Three years ago a new and powerful R.O.T.C. unit began to march down the victory road of competition, inspections, drills, and theories; the victory road to which so many San Francisco units have tried for years to gain access, some, but not all, with a share of success. On this road the cadets from Washington have marched successfully for the past three years, winning competitions and inspections with alarming (to the other units) regularity.

In 1938 the Marching Minutemen won the coveted cup that goes to the school winning the city-wide platoon drill held at the Civic Auditorium. Following this success, the Washington cadets captured the much-sought-after Commandant's Cup that goes to the finest marching battalion in San Francisco.

In 1939, the Eagle Reserve Officers continued their successful march down the victory road through the medium of victories of the Washington band in a city-wide competition; the Washington battalion in the Federal inspection, and the Washington battalion in the Commandant's Cup (this for the second consecutive term).

In the spring of 1941, the Marching Minutemen will compete for permanent possession of the Commandant's Cup by attempting to win the city-wide battalion competition for the third consecutive time.

During these past three years of continuous vic-stories, the Washington corps has at the same time contributed much to the life of this school's student body. Almost every valedictorian or co-valedictorian has been a member of the R.O.T.C. In the past year, and a half, almost all student body offices held by the male students of Washington have been held by members of Washington's West Point.

This term, Captain John Cleary was student body president, Lieutenant George Konevich was treasurer; Private Girard Rhine was assistant yell leader; Sergeant James Lindsey was high senior treasurer, First Sergeant Robert Willard was a speaker at the graduation ceremonies, and First Sergeant Arthur Blum was editor of this Surveyor.

Lieutenant Colonel Robert Simpson, besides being the "big gun" of this outstanding unit, was president of the Scholarship Society; Lieutenant Donald Scranton and Sergeant Jack Grannis were the advertising and business managers, respectively, of this Surveyor; Captain Lawrence Helscher was one of the stars in this term's senior play, and Captain Gerald Bidgood played an important part in the radio dedication ceremonies.

Thus it can be readily seen that Sergeant Feliciano, R.O.T.C. instructor, has not only guided the Marching Minutemen successfully down the victory road, but has also molded these cadets into fine, straightforward, ambitious young Americans, who are more than ready to take their places as good citizens in a world that sorely needs good citizens.

Superintendent of Schools J. P. Nourse photographed as he was making the acceptance speech at Washington's gala Auditorium Dedication. . . . Football hero Jimmy Finnigan receives a trophy from Mark Rivero, Captain of the Polytechnic team, in recognition of his outstanding work in the Eagle-Parrot game before he was badly injured. . . . One of the most spectacular scenes in the "Story of San Francisco" was the one showing Lotta Crabtree, portrayed by Shirley Overton, praising this city to her handsome young escorts. . . . Isn't this a beauty? It is, of course the brand new, modern switchboard in the auditorium, being proudly displayed by a student electrician. . . . Here's that man again. Yes, it's that master of wit, Art Linkletter . . . Joe phones, Paul draws, and Lorraine poses in the opening scene of "The Hutchinsons, Bless Them". . . . It's getting too wet for Senior Day Quiz Judges Katurich, Yavurich, and Smith, so they pull out their umbrellas.

Right page

One of the most appreciated features of the Dedication ceremonies was the fine singing of the girls' chorus. . . . For heaven's sakes—Are these men or what? Nope, they are just big, strong, intelligent Seniors in disguise for Senior Day—Honestly, they must have been cute babies. . . . What's this? Well, of all things—it's the Senior Play cast on the outside looking in. They were caught watching the stage crew at work setting up the scenery.

Your Present Play

All work and no play—you know the rest, and evidently you believe it if your participation in school activities is any criterion!

Modern education is planned to help students develop well-rounded personalities. Under the present 40-hour week, the average adult has 51 hours to spend as he pleases; that is, if he sleeps for 63 hours, and eats for 14 hours. He plays more than he works, really, and he wants to make "worthwhile use of his leisure time."

George Washington High offers opportunity galore to students who wish to experiment with hobbies, sports, and community service activities. There are clubs in school offering everything from language study to chess, from radio activities to photography.

Girls and boys have every opportunity to try out all kinds of sports, group and individual. They have chance after chance to develop their leadership qualities in class and student body officerships.

Here are some more statistics: One-fourth of the student body belongs to after-school clubs. Look at the chart on this page and see what advantages the 517 student clubsters are enjoying!

Inter-school sports are played by 16.6 per cent of the boys, and the Girls' Athletic Association has a membership of 21.2 per cent of the girls' student body. Reserve officers training is given to more than 13 per cent of the boys in school.

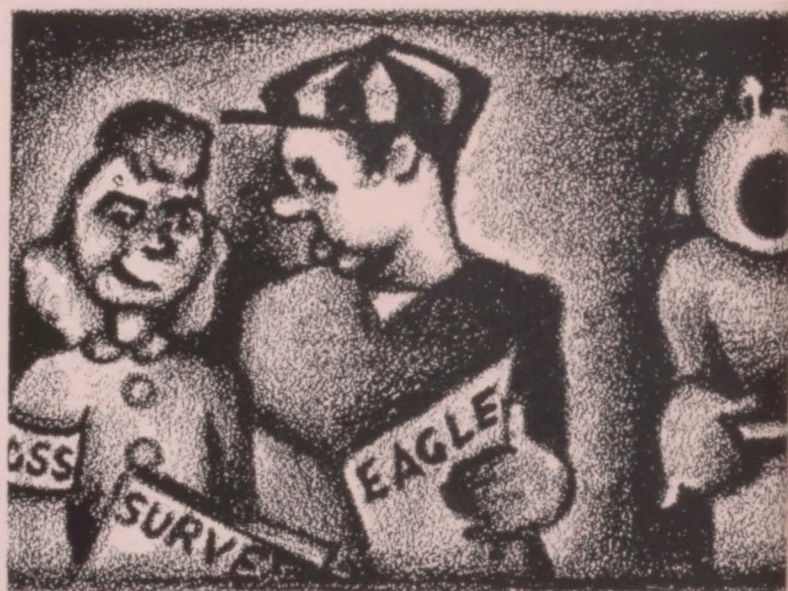

Only about 6 per cent of the students participate in student body or class leadership, due probably to the limited number of such positions. This does not include the many club and registry officers who gain experience with the smaller groups.

The two honor societies of the school, the Eagle Society for boys and the Service Society for girls, are open to about 3.2 per cent of the entire enrollment. Membership in both groups is limited, with election to the society dependent upon proven leadership and academic achievement.

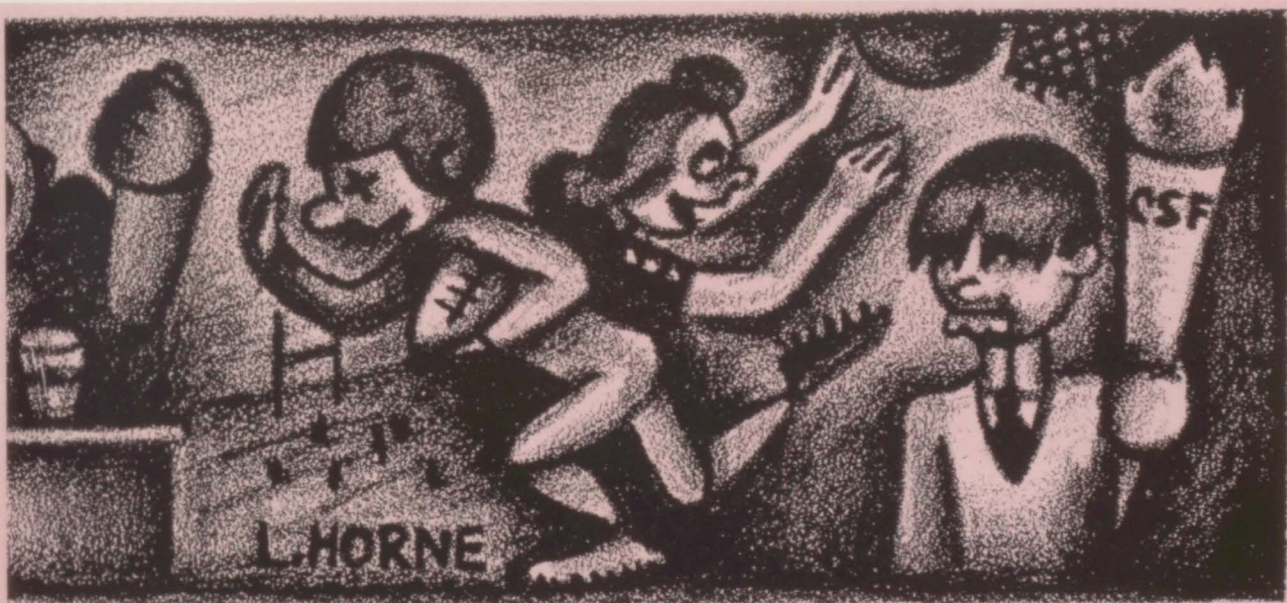

Of great importance scholastically is the Scholarship Society, to which only students with high grade averages are admitted. Chances are about one in twenty (5.6 per cent) that you'll get in.

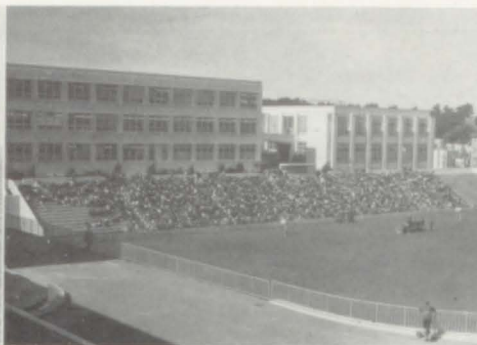

About every twentieth student you meet in the halls is a budding journalist, if statistics are to be believed, because during the average high school course, 5.5 per cent of the student body takes an active part in publishing either the Eagle or the Surveyor.

EXTRA-CURRICULAR ACTIVITIES AT WASHINGTON	SCHOOL CLUBS	SCHOLARSHIP SOCIETY
How Do You Get in?	The first meeting will be announced in the bulletin. When you attend the first meeting, the sponsor will tell the requirements of membership. Fulfill them and continue attending meetings.	Final marks on your report card must total 10 points, with A's worth 3 and B's 1. "U" or 2 "W's" automatically disqualify you as do C's in any subject except gym.
What Do You Do?	Activities depend entirely upon your club. Most clubs, in addition to gathering knowledge about their special interest, also engage in social activities.	C. S. F. members attend regular meetings; coach students having difficulties; have a term dinner and usually a dance for members and guests. Also are program assistants at the end of each term.
What Do You Get Out of It?	Besides gaining knowledge of the subject your club features, you have opportunity to make desirable social contacts, and to get acquainted with more of your school-mates.	Members belong to national honor society; active for 4 consecutive terms or more, they become life C.S.F. members and are presented with life membership pins. They are in line for scholarships and receive special attention at college.

SERVICE SOCIETIES	JOURNALISM	SPORTS	CLASS OFFICES
New members are elected, after being originally recommended by an old member. Participation in school activities and grades must be up to a specified level.	Editorial staffs of both Eagle and Surveyor are selected from journalism students. Surveyor advertising managers and circulation managers are chosen by Mr. Gates and Miss Parsons, Eagle salesmen by Mr. Lyons.	Boys: Before sports season starts, sign up with coach. Prospective players show their ability and are selected or rejected by coach. Girls: Sign up with a gym teacher for your pet sport. Go to meetings. You will be a G.A.A. member for a term.	Enter your name as a candidate. Your grades must be up to a C average and your citizenship satisfactory. Have an official petition signed by your teachers and 30 students.
Both Eagle and G.S.S. members serve the school; maintain order at open house; perform helpful duties; enjoy social activities.	Members of the publication staffs use their abilities in the writing or business ends of journalism. They write stories, collect ads, put out and sell the paper and the journal.	Boys: Come out for practice, and then play for your team. Girls: Attend weekly sports meetings and learn to play. G.A.A. holds a term banquet and rallies.	Depending on office you hold, perform the tasks your office requires. You must be a leader as well as a diplomat.
Eagle and G.S.S. members are recognized by their fellow students as popular, intelligent and desirable pupils. Members usually enjoy an Eagle-G.S.S. dance and banquet.	Staff members have excellent chance to gain recognition from faculty and students. Practical experience for working on college or daily papers, also learn tact and responsibility.	Boys: All the fame and glory of a college hero. You also can earn an award. Girls: G. A. A. offers plenty of chance to make new friends and to get plenty of healthy exercise. You also get sports awards.	Nothing can bring more fame than a class office. You will meet new friends, develop a knowledge of diplomacy and gain confidence in yourself.

The Richfield Reporters demonstrate their technique at a special rally held in their honor.
