WASHINGTON ADMINISTRATION

For centuries people have thought of the physical world as consisting of many parts—oceans, continents, islands, climatic zones, etc. The human has been thought of in terms of nations, languages, customs, religions, and races. Today we have a new reality—that of a physical air world which has no barriers or boundaries, and no static physical divisions. In spite of this new reality, the separations on the earth's surface continue to dominate attitudes toward world problems. People the world over demand a solution to the problem of facing universal relationships.

Mankind is facing its greatest test in history. Can man go one step further in that old conquest, the conquest of himself? Could there be a birth of a new citizenship? The world is ruled by symbols. Let's create a new symbol: world citizenship.

The young people of today can do much to develop this ideal of one world. Their attitudes and actions should force us to realize that only the greatest efforts of the spirit, the most generous attempts of the heart, can save the world from destruction.

O. I. SCHMAELZLE

Every great institution has a personality all its own. The personality that Washington is developing under the leadership of Principal O. I. Schmaelzle is one of friendliness and cooperation among faculty, parents, and students.

The inauguration of the Principal's Cabinet, composed of representatives from all registry classes, has produced a spirit of unity among the students, and a growing feeling that they are participating directly in school policies. An increased sense of responsibility has resulted, and an augmented pride in the title "Citizen of George Washington High School."

"Family Night," now become a Washington tradition, bespeaks harmony and friendliness between the homes of Washington students and their school. This function, initiated by Principal Schmaelzle in the spring of 1945, is an occasion on which parents, teachers, and students dine together in the school cafeteria, and later enjoy entertainment in the auditorium, witness games in the gymnasium, or perhaps, just visit.

"When we work we work hard; when we play we play hard." Mr. Schmaelzle believes in this slogan.

Recently a young man came into my office. He had applied for a position of some importance. Whether he was to be considered for the position depended upon his high school record.

Together we looked it up. It was the young man himself who finally suggested that it would be a waste of time to copy and mail the report.

Day after day we are asked to furnish transcripts. All we can do is to forward the record which the student made.

It is, therefore, of the utmost importance to you as an individual that your record in high school be clean and commendable. It may prove to be the turning point in your life beyond school.

I think it was in the case of the young man who came to my office. And neither of us can do anything about it now.

G. M. KLINGNER

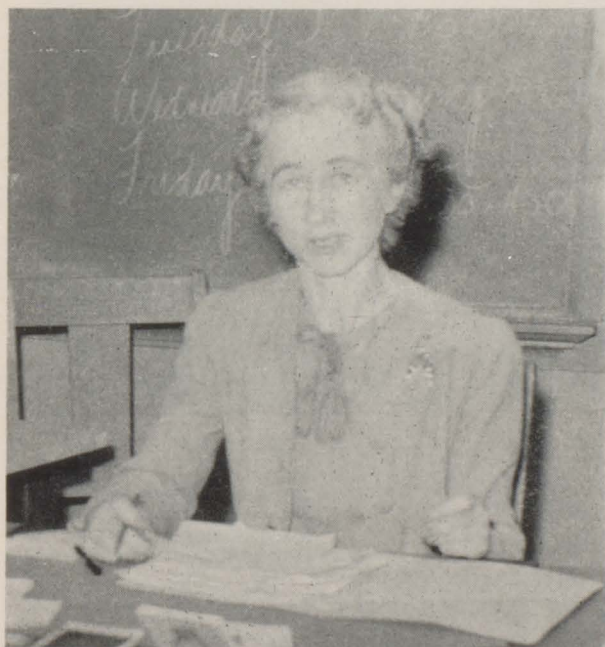

"Go to it, boys and girls. The world is yours. Nothing has been done perfectly. Everything remains to be done right—everything.

"During your years here you have witnessed science removing barrier after barrier and making, in a physical sense, of the universe; but one world in spirit remains yet to be created.

"What can you do about it? Much! Your one world at Washington has provided you with ideals of tolerance and of cooperation. From your ranks and from the ranks of young people over the land, must come the makers of new patterns of human relationships; must come the fighters for world peace. One world needs you. Go to it, boys and girls."

ELEANOR M. JACKSON

Today the student body depends on you for leadership and unity. Tomorrow your country and the world will depend on you—on your trained minds and understanding hearts; on your alert perception and your ability to keep your feet on the ground. The ground in this case is the history, the literature, the culture, and the civilization of the world.

You have tasted of this history, this literature, this culture. This taste should whet your appetite to know every people, every country. To know people is to understand them and where there is understanding there cannot be hate. Strive then "not to be understood but to understand; not to be loved, but to love; not to be pardoned, but to pardon."

With love, pardon, and understanding as your goals you can go forth with confidence to meet this world.

The big event of the spring term each year is the federal inspection. Since the battalion has been formed here, George Washington has always been rated an honor school which entitles the cadets to wear a red star on the sleeve of their uniforms. This term has not been an exception as the battalion came through with a high rating.

The cadets were inspected by Major Clark, representing General Eisenhower, Chief of Staff of the United States Army. The major stated that the battalion was one of the best he had inspected. Major Clark has inspected about forty schools in the United States, some of them colleges. About ten of these were formal inspections such as he conducted here. Principal Schmaelzle told the cadets that they are a credit to the school.

The next important event was the awards by the Sons of the American Revolution to the best private, sergeant and staff sergeant of the battalion.

Another important set of awards are given to the battalion by the school. These awards are given to the best company, best platoon and best squad.

The rifle team, an important part of the R.O.T.C., has made a record for itself. It is recognized as the best team in the city and is competing in the National R.O.T.C. rifle meet. The team has a chance of winning this event, and if it does it will be the first time a Washington rifle team has held this honor.

The Block "W" Society is composed of those girls who have been members of the G.A.A. (Girls' Athletic Association) for at least four terms.

It is the honor society of those who have been faithful members of the G.A.A.

Under the leadership of President Margaret Larson the Society has been active in fulfilling its pledges and promises.

The pledge taken is in part as follows: "I promise . . . to do all in my power to promote a spirit of fine sportsmanship."

These girls have learned to be good losers as well as generous winners. They know how to play hard but fair and to win or lose honestly.

It is their promise to try to teach others to be good sports.

They cannot help but carry their message of clean sportsmanship throughout their lives.

Here, in the Block "W" Society, are born the feminine leaders of the better world of tomorrow.

The spotlight is directed on the girls who want to demonstrate that the "weaker sex" are not so weak.

Those who love ice skating, volleyball, horseback riding, softball, badminton and other physical activities, join the Girls' Athletic Association.

Under the sponsorship of the physical education teachers, they learn to keep their bodies healthy and their minds alert.

There are academic requirements for the members of the G.A.A. if they hope to win an award at the end of each term. Four such awards entitle them to membership in the honor society — the Block "W."

In our fast-moving, active world it takes a sturdy system and a quick-thinking mentality to survive.

The G.A.A. was organized to encourage girls to build strong constitutions.

The Fall '45 president, Jean Sliter, and her assisting officers led the organization in an active term.

Mildred Canata, the Spring '46 president, and her officers had many girls participate in their program of a wide variety of sports.

SPORTS

BY CHAD MICHEL 146

When a long and very hectic football season came to an end last November, the team breathed a sigh of relief. It was as eventful as it was gruelling. Although Washington victories over Sacred Heart and their arch-rival Lowell rank as Washington's greatest efforts, our great stand against Poly somewhat overshadowed these triumphs. Poly's fabulous team had rolled over opposition with magic-like ease. Washington scared the daylights out of them when they completely outplayed and outscored Poly for the first half, 7 to 6.

Washington's Coach Milt Axt did a fine job

COMMERCE, 6; WASHINGTON, 6

The Eagles took on very strong opposition in their first game but fought their way to a tie with Commerce. After Washington had trailed for most of the game, Burr Wark made his sensational 88-yard run to tie the score.

BALBOA, 13; WASHINGTON, 0

The Eagles were slightly overmatched in this game but threatened on numerous occasions. Hard running by Hank Becker and Duane Harder featured Washington's offense.

SACRED HEART, 18; WASHINGTON, 7

Displaying a new and unexpected aerial attack the Eagles had a field day against Sacred Heart. Bob Orr, Burr Wark and Dick Munday developed an unknown passing accuracy which, coupled with the accurate catching of Ric Adkins, placed the ball in scoring territory throughout the game.

In the running department, Hank Becker, Norm Stumes and Duane Harder made substantial gains.

MISSION, 27; WASHINGTON, 7

Washington was off to a fast start as they scored in the first few minutes. Aubrey Melton's bullet pass to Sam Danos put the clincher on a touchdown drive.

LOWELL, 7; WASHINGTON, 13

Although favored, Lowell was never in the running. It seemed as though Washington could do no wrong, as time and time again they intercepted passes and recovered fumbles.

It was a real field day for Hank Becker as time and time again he ran wild.

Washington's line deserved much of the credit for this great win. With fellows like Ken Mirch, Don Hancock, Seymour Handleman, Morrie Kock, Frank Arietta, George Lagier and Neil Gunn giving their all, the Lowell backfield was held to very little gain.

POLY, 33; WASHINGTON, 13

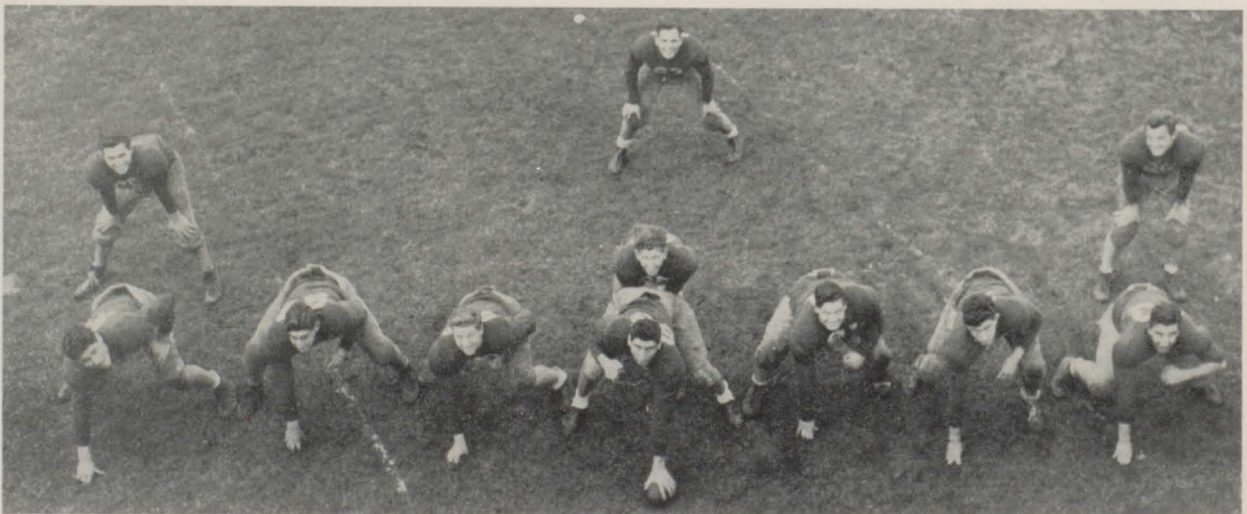

Washington gained a moral victory although they lost to championship Poly. The fellows were out to beat the champs but injuries to top players in the second half weakened our team and Poly took full advantage of this.

LINCOLN, 25; WASHINGTON, 6

Washington was fairly well riddled with injuries from their previous game with Poly. Lincoln was in fine shape and were out after a victory. Washington's lone score came in the second half as a result of excellent running by Duane Harder and Norm Stumes. Stumes finally scored on a power drive through center.

Varsity Basketball Team

MR. TINY BUSSENIUS

Our varsity basketball team showed promise at the start of the season of being a championship team. However graduation time came along after the team had played four games and four of the five first-stringers bowed out. The hardest blow to the team came in the loss of Billy Hahn, a sure-fire candidate for all-city. Only a little less disheartening was the graduation of center Bob Rosenberg.

Our coach, Bill Busenius, did a great job with the material that remained after graduation, but inexperience plagued the team throughout the remaining games.

Featuring the Washington offensive in the latter half of the league were the Sutton twins, Bill and Leo. Leo was one of the finest guards in the city.

Others who played excellent ball were Earl Lowart, Bob Eckoff, Theron Berry, Tom McGowan, Art Parsons and John Dilg. Boys also seeing action included Len Begun and Dick Hare.

The opening game proved to be the most thrilling encounter Washington had all season. Our team fought their way to a 26 to 24 win over favored Poly.

Bill Hahn swished home the bucket that gave Washington their victory. Forward Theron Berry sparked the team to an 11 to 5 lead in the first period. Poly went ahead at the end of the third period but Bill Hahn sank seven points for the Eagles in the last period.

The Washington five avenged an earlier defeat in the J. C. Tournament as they smothered Galileo under a 30 to 18 pasting.

Bob Rosenberg, Eagle center, who was thought to be merely a defensive player, scored ten points. Bill Hahn and Leo Sutton held up their share of the scoring.

The Suttons, Bill and Leo, showed marvelous backboard control. Theron Berry played another sparkling game.

The powerful Mission Bears were at their best in winning a 30 to 16 victory over Washington. The Eagles tried hard but couldn't seem to cope with the superior Bears' defense and offense.

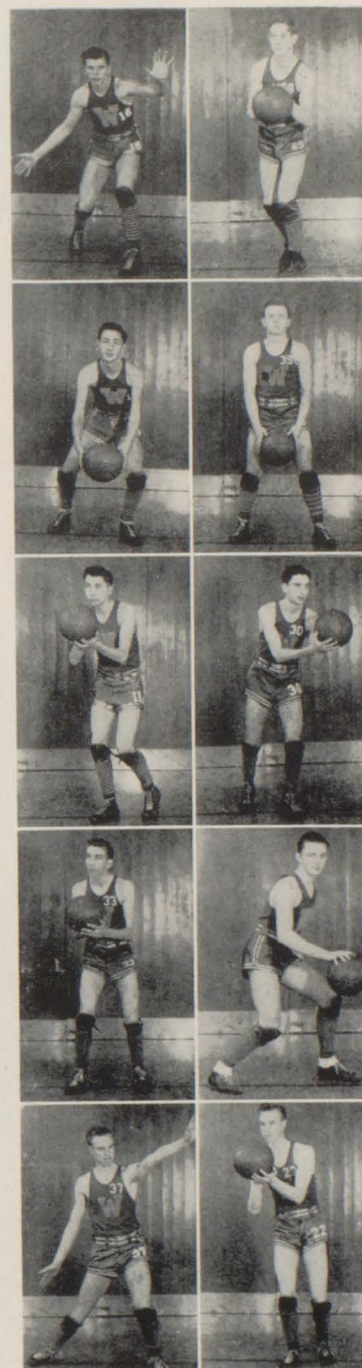

Against Balboa, our team completely riddled by graduation, dropped a 32 to 28 decision. Leo Sutton handled himself better than good, scoring eleven points. Art Parsons led in the scoring with 13 points. Washington's spirit was typified by the fact that although the students realized we had little or no chance to win, they turned out in large numbers to fill our rooting section.

Meeting our old nemesis, Lowell, on the Kezar hardwood, the Eagles lost, 27 to 20. Our team quickly disproved the assumption that they could not cope with the Indians, for the issue was in doubt going into the last quarter. We again displayed spirit by coming in a big crowd and for awhile we thought Art Parsons, Bob Eckoff and newly returned Bill Sutton were going to defeat the kids from Hayes Valley.

In the last game of the season our team engaged Saint Ignatius. The score was close throughout as the Wildcats won, 34 to 26. Leo Sutton scored 15 points and his timely field goals kept Washington in the game. Bill scored 4 points.

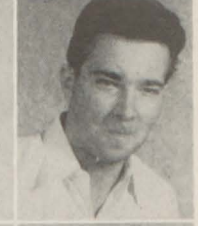

The Mission Bears proved to be the strongest team in the league. However, the championship was divided three ways—Lowell, Commerce and Mission shared the crown.

Leo Sutton took high point honors for the city's guards with 73 points. With such players next year as Bill and Leo Sutton, Dick Milkovich, John Dilg, Theron Berry, Milt Kaffen and many others coming up from the thirties, our team should be one of the best.

Washington Track Teams

On Saturday, May 18, 1946, S. F. high schools held an "All-City" track meet at Kezar Stadium.

Washington had entered seven men, including Charley Bordin, 440 man; Dick Hare, broad jump; Bruce Bernhardt, shot put; Frank Arietta, shot put; Andy Gamberadella, broad jump (lightweight); Bob Keropian, broad jump (lightweight), and Ollie Mattson, low hurdles. The relay team also made a fine showing. Ollie Mattson, Bob Kissick, John Kitta, Charley Hardin, Dick Hare, and Tony Olivera made up the team.

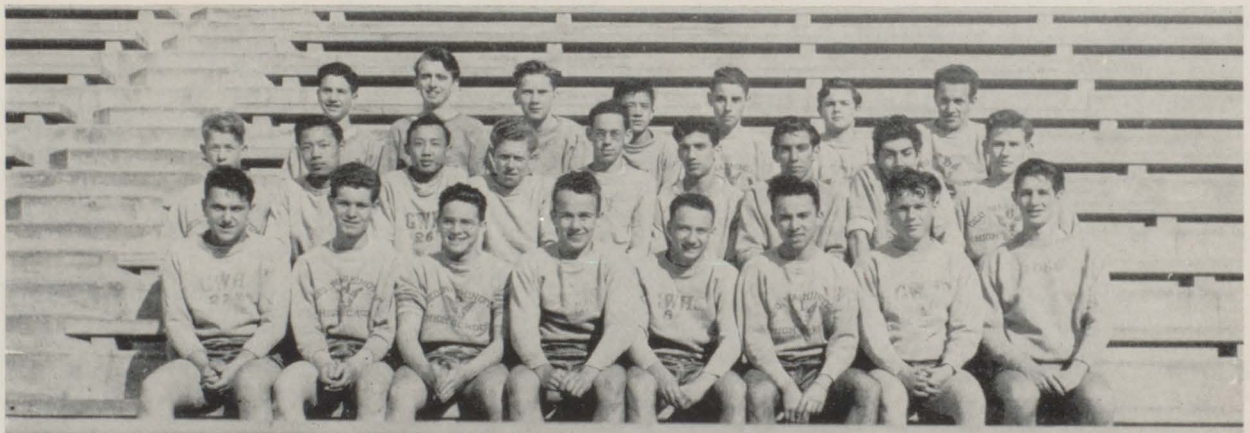

The unlimited 440-yard dash was the most sensational race of the day. It was like the kind you read in comic books, or happy-ending novels, but never actually see.

Charley (Chuck) Hardin, who didn't get off to a very good start, was boxed in all the way to the turn by Poly and Lowell men, and was running a poor fifth.

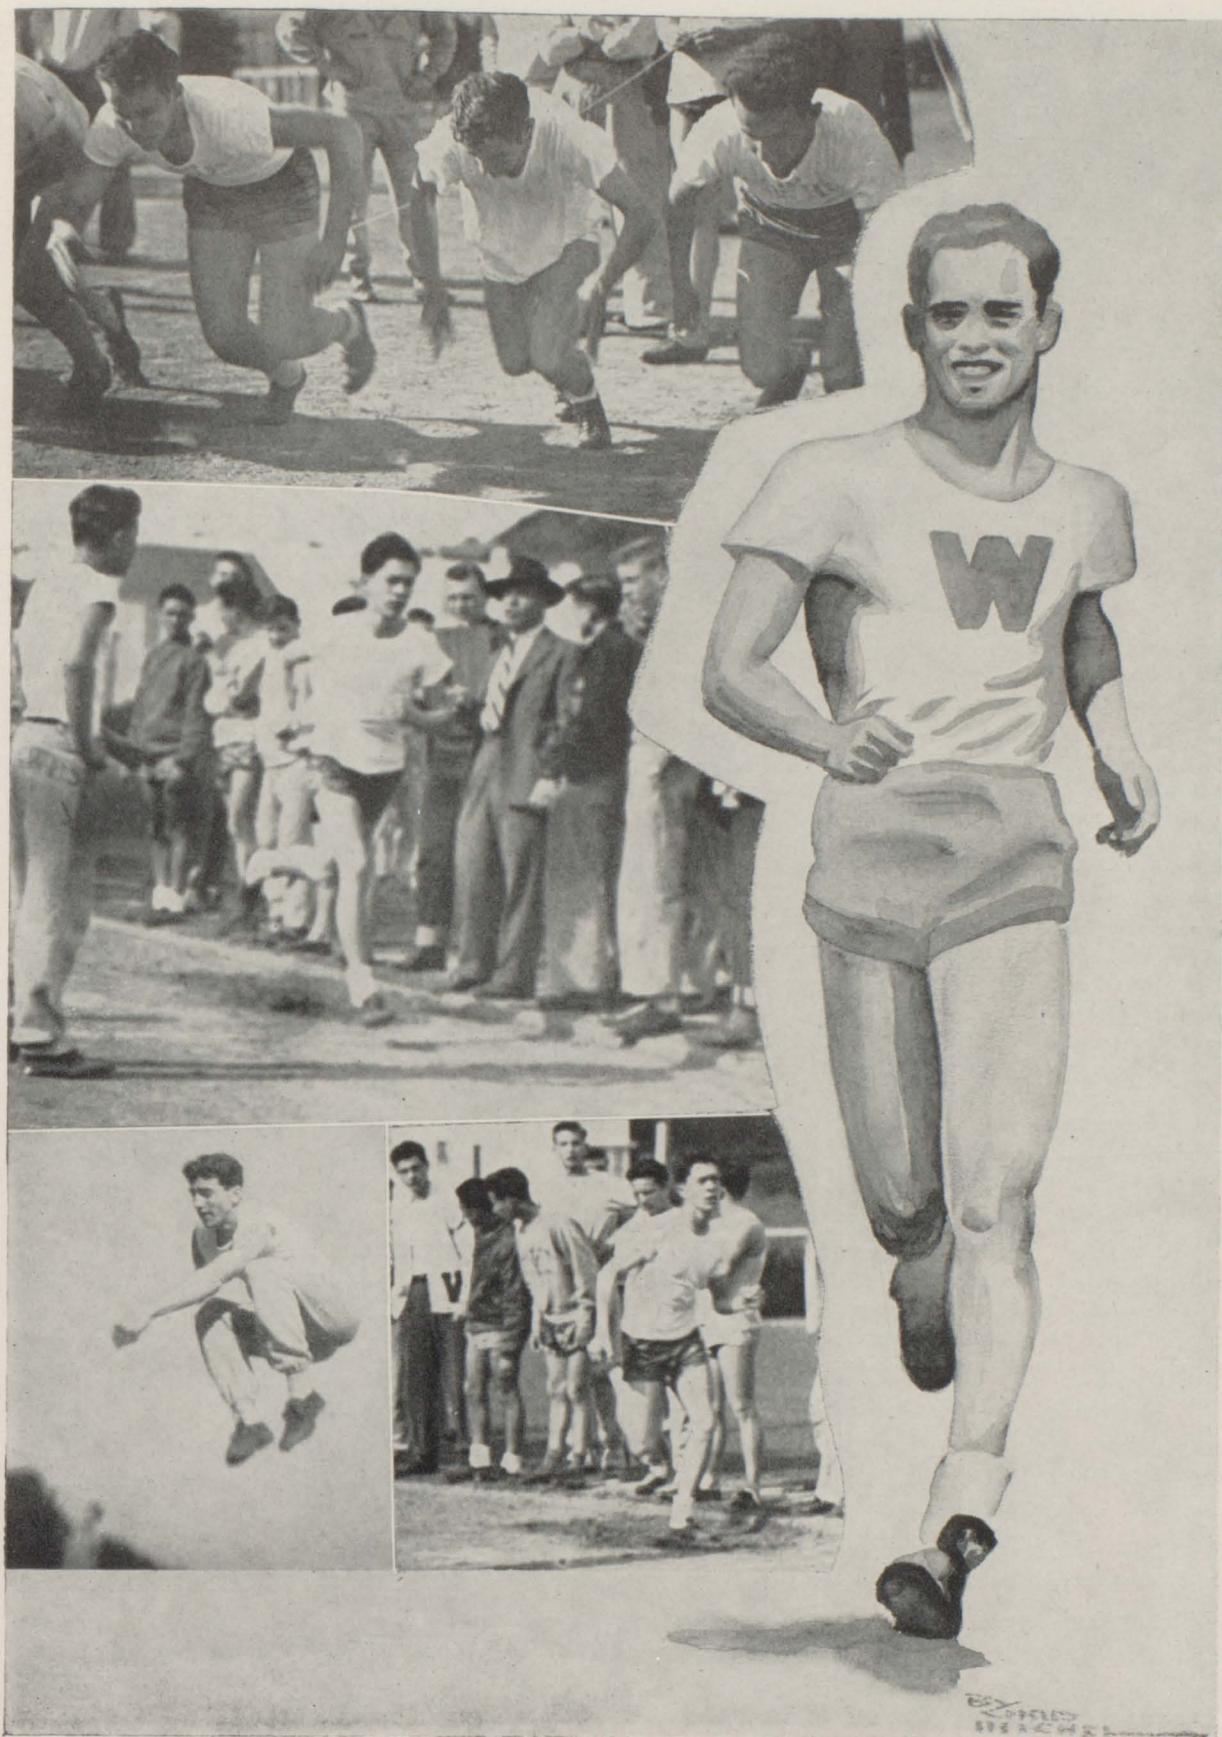

Going around the turn, "Chuck" found an opening, kept his head, and with all the spirit and strength he could muster up in those few seconds, outsprinted the rest of the field and brought glory not only to himself, but to the school he so nobly represented.

The Eagle staff wants to thank our newly appointed track coach, Jim Coffis, who did such a fine job with the boys out for practice every day after school.

Baseball Team

When a hectic baseball season came to a close, the Eagle team looked back on one of the most surprising and successful seasons in the school's history. Washington, picked to be the cellar club, clubbed out victories over some of the top teams. What the team lacked in experience and skill, they often made up in hustle and fight. The team fought like the famous Gas House Gang of old.

The Eagles had a champion coach in Saul Madfes. Coach Madfes in his first crack at baseball mentor had all the answers when the Eagle team needed them and instilled the fight in the team which gave us that extra punch.

So strong was the Eagle team that in their last game against championship Galileo they dropped an extra inning, 4 to 3 decision. Washington Eagles' Clayton proved to be one of the finest pitchers in the league and with a bit more hitting support would have won an all-city position.

Another outstanding performer was second-baseman Al Glazbrook. Al's batting average was over the 300 mark and he played steady defensive ball.

The following is a revue of the games:

LINCOLN, 6; WASHINGTON, 9

The Eagles got off on the right foot with this victory. Lincoln took an early lead but the Washington bats beat out a steady stream of runs. This game typified Washington's fighting spirit as they came from behind twice.

SACRED HEART, 3; WASHINGTON, 0

Some weird umpiring and the luck of the Irish teamed up to beat the fighting Eagles.

ST. IGNATIUS, 17; WASHINGTON, 3

Weak pitching victimized Washington as St. Ignatius clubbed out a series of homeruns and a barrage of base hits.

LOWELL, 6; WASHINGTON, 16

After the first inning the situation was never in doubt. Clayton pitched this tilt for Washington as the Eagle bats more than supported his effort. To show how one-sided it was, Coach Madfes put in an entire new team as early as the fifth inning.

COMMERCE, 10; WASHINGTON, 1

The Commerce Bulldogs were just too strong for Washington. George Granera started and was relieved by Ron Kasabian. Bill Kinney doubled in the second inning, accounting for Washington's only extra base blow.

BALBOA, 2; WASHINGTON, 3

Balboa was picked to trample Washington, but the Eagle team had other ideas. Ron Kasabian turned in a brilliantly pitched ball game, scattering the three Balboa hits. Gorgeous Georgus Granera, with two out, singled in the winning run. George broke a long slump with this timely blow, but he picked the right time to do it. Earl Clayton took over left field and smashed out a pair of singles.

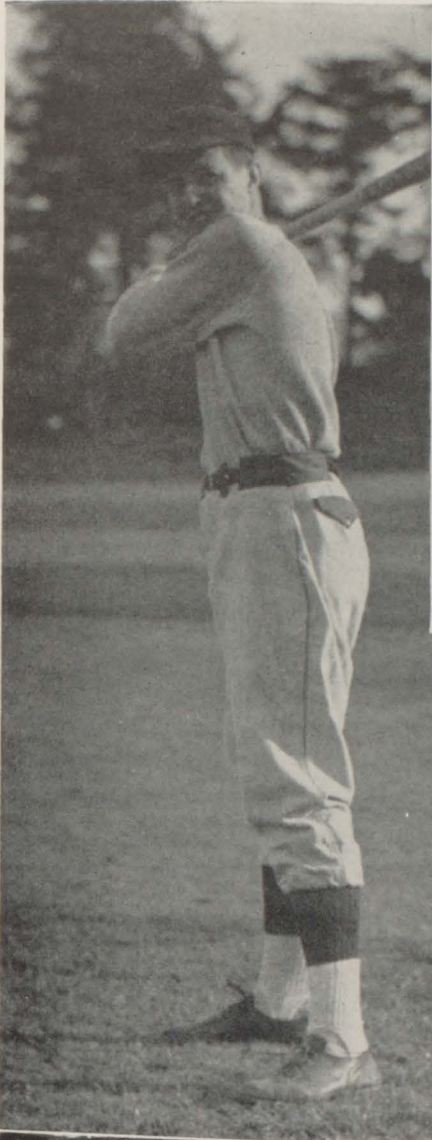

POLYTECHNIC, 2; WASHINGTON, 3

Poly was picked as a championship contender but the Eagles were in a winning mood and weren't to be denied. The Eagles played tight defensive ball all the way. The Parrots were limited to four base hits by Earl Clayton. Earl was in danger of losing his lead in the last inning but a nice play by George Granera, third baseman, helped to remove the pressure. Earhardt and Schuneman played a sparkling defensive game at first base. Al Glazbrook's booming triple was the best hit of the day.

GALILEO, 4; WASHINGTON, 3

After leading all the way over the champs themselves, the Washington team faltered defensively behind their ace, Earl Clayton, and allowed Galileo to tie the score. In the second overtime inning, with rain drizzling down, the Lions smashed a single to center that careened off the wet grass to go for a homerun. Clayton no more deserved to lose that game than "the man in the moon," but the breaks were against him.

The team did a great job and deserve plenty of praise. They were dark horses but it didn't stop them.

SOCCKER TEAM

Minor Sports

With the soccer season coming around again the students can look forward to one of the finest teams we have had in years. Although the soccer teams of the past have been anything but champions, we can safely say that at least we have a really fine team to represent our school.

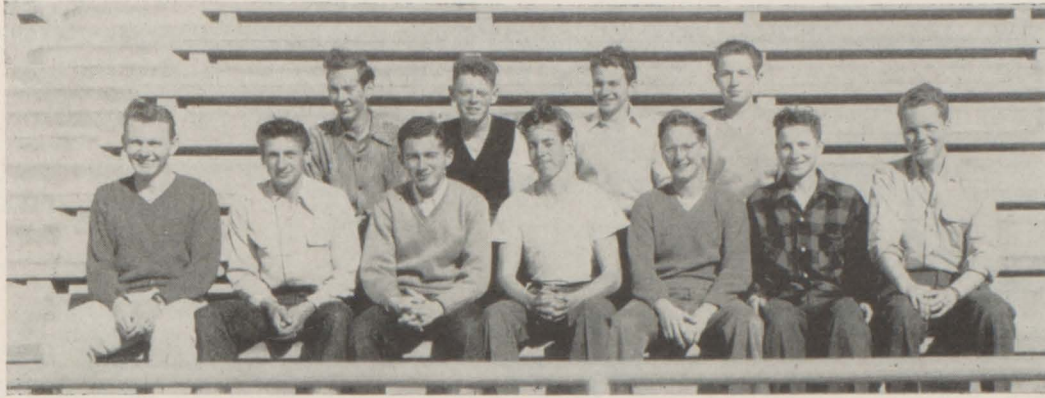

One reason for our optimistic outlook is the fact that almost everyone of last year's team is returning. In fact, the majority of the team has had two years' experience here at Washington. The fact that they have been playing together for two years indicates strong teamwork. Teamwork is very important in soccer. Another reason that lends an optimistic note is that for the first time in years the team will have a coach. Some of the returning players are: Al Glazbrook (wing), a two-year man who should star next year; Bob Friedland, another veteran of two years; George Toscanini, with two years' experience; Ernie Oppenheimer, last year's captain, playing his third year; Len James (goalie), in his second year; Ronnie Meyers, a newcomer who promises to be one of the best; Frank Torres, playing his third year; and Ken Rosenberg (inside right), out for his second year. A flood of new talent is expected to bolster this already well stacked squad. The team has every reason to look forward to a successful season.

Last year's squad had a bit of tough luck, dropping every game by a close margin. They missed beating the champions by a margin of one point. The team lacked coaching and teamwork.

Ernie Oppenheimer was the team's outstanding player. He acted as coach and captain and had it not been for Ernie's efforts our school might have been without a team. The students did not support their soccer team as well as they should have. The boys gave their all in every game and deserved more credit than they received.

Soccer is one of the roughest and most gruelling games, so turn out next year to support your soccer team when it embarks on a hopeful season.

BOYS' TENNIS TEAM

Swimming Team

The Washington lightweight swimming team came through to take a fifth place in the All-City Meet. The meet was held at Fleishhacker Pool on May 25. The team came up with a total of 28 points behind Lowell (58), St. Ignatius (52), Galileo (38), and Commerce with 40 points.

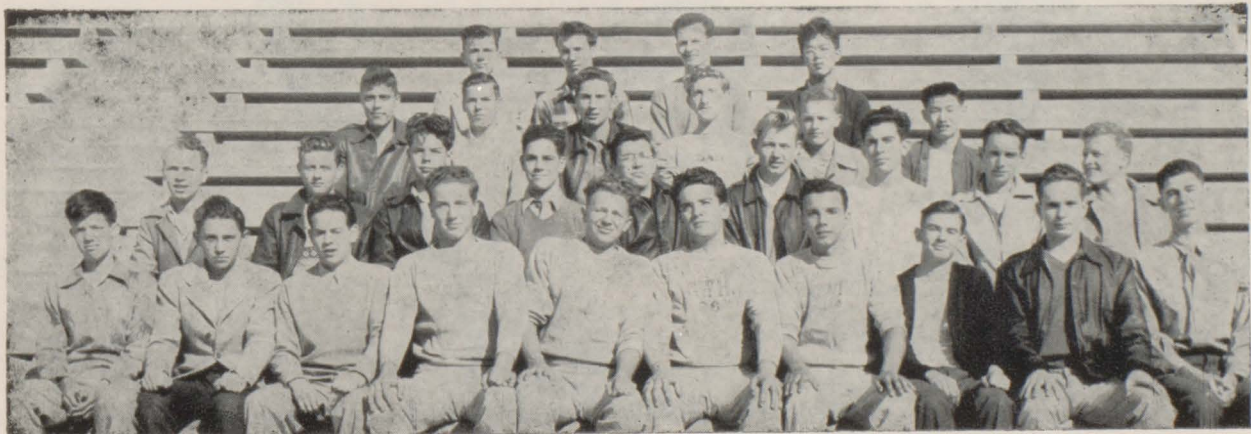

Starring for the lightweight team were 130 pounders Bob Pickens and Dick Lewis. Pickens came up with a first place in the 50-yard backstroke. Lewis, who got a late start, came in to take a second in the 100-yard free style. He was beaten by Jack Wade of Poly, who broke the record by three-tenths of a second.

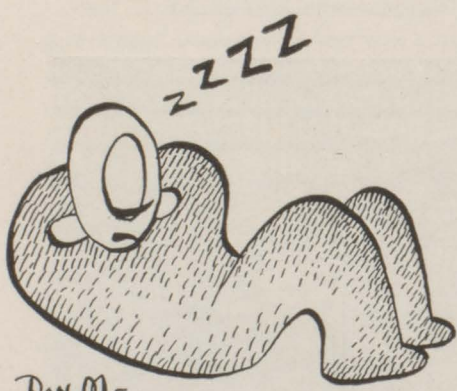

Other members who placed on the lightweight team were Dick Pickens, who took a fourth in the breast-stroke, and Morrie Green, who took a second in diving. In the 150 medley relay the team came up a third behind Lowell and Commerce. In that race Bob Pickens swam backstroke, followed by his twin brother Dick, who swam breast style, and then by Dick Lewis, swimming free style.

The varsity swimming team didn't do so well, only getting a total of two points. We got the two points by High Senior Don Hancock taking a fourth in the 100-yard backstroke.

BOYS' SWIMMING

Dress Rehearsal

MISS HELEN ARCHER

Here they are, just as they looked at the dress rehearsals. Now if Miss Archer's picture at top left would start speaking ("Move a little up stage, watch that exit, wait for your laughs, don't come so far under the lights"), the cast's pictures would probably come to life and follow her directions (reflex action).

The pictures above would emote lines from last term's production, "Spring Green." Jack Lipian and Marjory Saul were the enthusiastically applauded stars.

Below, are scenes from this term's play, "Quality Street."

In "Quality Street" the drama class gave the finest performance that Washington's footlights have yet shone upon. Leading lady Colleen O'Toole had the heart of the audience in the palm of her hand. She carried every mood, every scene, every line. She laid down every laugh and every tear right where the audience had to pick it up — or fall for it. Bob Schwartz and Marjory Saul shared the curtain calls with her. The entire cast was convincing and refreshing.

Yet, for all their deftness and sureness on stage, the actors and actresses still can't escape the traditional backstage turmoil. Once in the wings, poise and graceful movement disappear. Instead cast, director, stagehands, curtain men, make-up men, and prompters alike become gusts of wind as they dash about, attending to the hundred last-minute details that must be handled in split seconds.

Opening night jitters overcome everyone. Director Miss Archer, standing in the wings, murmurs six lines to every one on stage. The cast chews "Sen-Sen" by the boxes. The leading ladies get frantic about costume changes. (And why not? In one act of "Quality Street" Marjory Saul had to make a change of heavy period costumes while no more than 14 lines were spoken on stage!)

In between acts everyone restrains the overpowering urge to peek out of the curtains at the audience. (It's not only bad luck, but from out front it is the first tell-tale sign of an amateur troop.) The act is on again, and a worried drama class marvels at that straight line that gets the laugh, and the gag line that misses it somehow.

But when the final curtain call is over and applause is still ringing in every ear, an exultant cast whoops and embraces each other. And not one of them would swap that nervous stomach or that grease paint smear or that itchy costume for a ticket to a plush seat in the auditorium.

Graduate to a Telephone Company Job!

Choosing that first full-time job is a big step in a girl's life . . .

Pay is important, of course. And there are other things to consider, too, such as opportunities for promotion — will you work with girls you'd like to have as friends — is the work interesting — the company a good place to work.

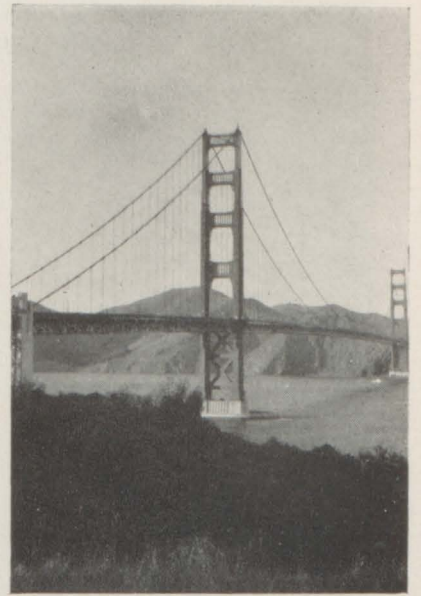

You'll find the Telephone Company offers you all those things, and more, too.

You may choose either telephone operating or an office position. And remember, you can earn while you learn.

One of the jewels in the gem-studded panorama visible from Washington's windows, is the Golden Gate Bridge.

In one long single span it stretches, four-fifths of a mile long, across the entrance to San Francisco Bay. The serene, undisturbed blue of the water is shadowed by this great flashing streak of red steel. Below, the quiet, unchanging waves; above, a vibrating hustle of men and machines against modern steel.

This bridge is the longest single-span suspension bridge in the world. Giant passenger liners passing beneath it are dwarfed, and look like toy boats. Its towers are 750 feet high. The distance between them is longer than on any other bridge span.

It was built by Sydney Taylor who grew up in Fort Winfield Scott, an old garrison on the San Francisco shore of the "Gate." He is now in charge of controlling the traffic on the bridge.

With the weather bright, and a weekend ahead, Washingtonians gaze out their northern windows and watch the sun light to flame the glittering steel that is another link between Washington and the great wide world.

Those fresh sea breezes that blow over Hilltop have an earlier chore to do before they sweep our walks. They must first turn the paddles of the old Dutch windmills that stand guard at the Beach entrances to Golden Gate Park.

There are two of these windmills and they are more than decorative landmarks. By tapping an underground supply of fresh water they furnish water for the lakes and irrigation of the park. For the statistical-minded, the southern windmill is the largest in the world, pumping 40,000 gallons an hour, while the northern mill comes close behind with a capacity of 30,000 gallons an hour.

These facts should help the visitor to Washington to understand why we take that perpetual wind so good naturedly. When a roofer's cap blows off and rolls into a mud-puddle, he just chuckles with happy humor because he knows this same wind is turning the old mills that keep the grass in his favorite park green, that nourish the trees and flowers he loves, and that keep the water sparkling in the lakes he likes to dream beside.

Put a camera in the hands of a camera-fan and he will make a bee-line for Golden Gate Park, head out the driveway toward the ocean and pause beside a small lake which is fed by a tumbling waterfall.

On the opposite shore of the lake is an open doorway, Portals of the Past, a famous San Francisco relic. Prior to the fire of April 18, 1906, this was the portal of a residence at California and Taylor Streets, belonging to A. H. Towne, for many years vice president and general manager of the Southern Pacific Company. Following this fire in which the residence was demolished, Mrs. Towne gave the portal as a gift to the city. The flames have cracked the white marble, but neither time nor disaster has altered the beauty of the six upright pillars, and the sculptured perfection of the beckoning doorway.

Gleaming white in the midst of a clump of green foliage, it casts a clear reflection in the mirror waters of the lake.

The Surveyor's ace photographer has an artists eye for pictures that tell a story. The snapshot above tells its own story of a peaceful world. The lake is one of the hundred magic spots in nearby Golden Gate Park.

Against backgrounds of dense greenery or quaint bridges, the Park's pools are mirrors of misty reflections. Frogs sun themselves on broad lily pads and croak a lusty chorus. Ducks float gracefully on top and down below fat goldfish swim lazily about. Around the pools strange dwarf pines and cedars cast their shadows and the air is sweet with the haunting odors of the flowers of many lands.

A picnic lunch beside one of these pools is an experience hard to forget. With a loaf of bread and a jug of Seven Up, there is no better place to relax than at one of these lakes with the ducks and the frogs, the goldfish and, incidentally, that algebra book with tomorrow's problem.

Just a stone's throw (figuratively speaking) from the gymnasium toward the Golden Gate is China Beach. Here in a sheltered cove at the base of Sea Cliff is a wide expanse of smooth beach slanting into the blue ocean.

This is a "must" on any Washingtonian's list of things to do after school. The routine usually calls for a quick bike ride to the cliffs towering over the beach, then a scramble down the steep path to sea level. A short swim in the cool Pacific, then the bonfire and roasted weenies—ah, what a combination!

After the inner man is satisfied, the inevitable exhibitionist starts turning hand-springs, the sun bather gazes earnestly skyward seeking the magic tan, and the scholar opens his history book and crams for the next day's test.

Yes, every day is picnic day at China Beach. The setting is so conducive to fellowship that even a stray band of Lowellites or an occasional Lincolnite can venture there and find a warm welcome. That's Utopia!

As Washington students worked and studied in their classes on May 1, 1946, history was being made when the famed aircraft carrier Saratoga sailed through the Golden Gate on her way to sacrifice herself for humanity. Accompanied by the battleship New York the "Queen of the Flat-tops" left for the atom bomb test at Bakini Atoll carrying delicate instruments to record the results.

While harbor tugs towed the huge "Sara" out of Pier 30 crowds of sailors and civilians watched from buildings adjoining the Embarcadero. A Navy blimp, several planes, and nearby ships joined her cheering friends on shore in giving the Saratoga a wonderful sendoff. More sailors waited with their families and friends by parked cars on the Golden Gate Bridge to say a last goodbye to their beloved ship.

Pride and sorrow mingled in the hearts of the captain and the crew as they leaned on the rails of the Saratoga and sang "Meet Me in Bakini" to the tune of "Meet Me in St. Louis"—pride in the glory and honor that their ship had won in the Pacific . . . sorrow, deep and gripping, that now, for the last time, she would move down the bay, steam through the Golden Gate, and proudly face the open sea.
