HEN this school was founded in 1896, the question of where to put it was answered by placing the school in one room of the Horace Mann Grammar School under the instruction of Miss Ada Goldsmith and supervision of Mr. Joseph O'Connor, principal of the grammar school. Almost immediately the Board of Education voted $20,000 to be used for the construction of a new High School, which was ready for occupancy that same year.

At one time there was a move to consolidate Mission and Lowell. Similar plans were made for Mission and Polytechnic. Neither plan was completed.

In the first decades of its existence, Mission organized many extra-curricular activities. Notable among these were the athletic teams and the debating society. This society soon took the lead in most of the school activities and became one of the leaders in the Northern California Debating League. The organization assisted in selecting the editorial staff of the school publications. Miss Mary Donnelly, a member of the English Department and later Vice Principal, started the journal.

MISSION AFTER 1923 FIRE

FOREWORD

Celebrating Mission's 50th Anniversary, this year of 1946, our minds wander back to the alumni who have gone out and through the years adapted themselves successfully to the ever changing world through the turbulent years.

We point with pride to these alumni, who have made Mission what it is today — a school with everlasting spirit.

Wherever you are, and wherever you go, Mission's glorious days always stay within you and bring back cherished memories.

The following pages of the Journal will bring back happy memories to you, when you too, will be an alumni of Mission....

Mission R.O.T.C. was a popular group from the time of its organization about 1910, as its membership increased over four-fold in a year. The school orchestra made its first appearance in 1913.

In 1922 a fire destroyed most of the school building. The remainder was torn down. Students then attending Mission were housed in temporary buildings which were erected in the park. At the time of the construction of the new building the school site extended along the whole of 18th street between Dolores and Church.

In August of 1923 the first wing of the new building was completed. At the same time it was decided that the school should have a newspaper, and that the paper should be called the "West Wing" in honor of the new building.

The main building was occupied on April 18, 1927 and formally dedicated on June 12 of the same year.

During the fall term of 1927, the Mission High Chapter of the California Scholarship Federation was organized under the direction of Miss Simon.

DREW FIELD GROUND BREAKING

Miss Ada Goldsmith, who graduated from Girls High School, was the first teacher at Mission and a member of its faculty for thirty years. During this time she held many positions, including those of history teacher, head of the history department, vice-principal, and dean of girls.

Since her retirement and during her years of teaching, Miss Goldsmith has done considerable traveling which has taken her to many of the other countries, though she is still a resident of San Francisco ,her native city.

Drew field became part of Mission on November 5, 1938, after Mr. Drew, the principal, had circulated petitions throughout the city in an attempt to obtain an athletic field for his school.

In 1916 Mr. Joseph O'Connor retired from the school of which he had been principal since 1896, when it began, except for a two year period when he was appointed to the Board of Education and Mr. Walter O. Smith acted as head of Mission. He was succeeded by Mr. F. H. Clark who was transferred to Lowell High in 1919. Mr. William Drew became principal, a position he retained until his retirement in 1943.

BREAKING OF GROUND FOR NEW BUILDING, 1923

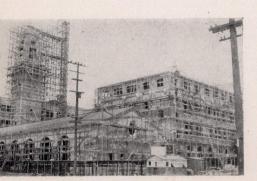

DEDICATION

Miss Ada Goldsmith, one of those responsible for the successful beginning of Mission High, was an integral part of this school for over thirty years. Beginning her teaching career in 1896, amid many inconveniences, she was head of the History Department and also held the position of Dean of Girls.

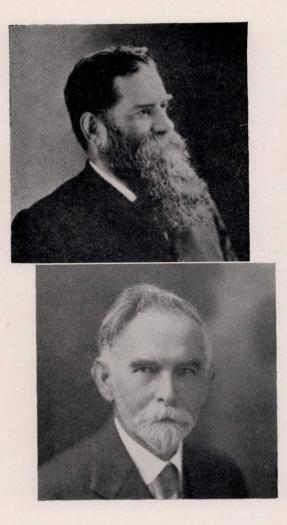

A far-seeing person with those sterling qualities that make her an inspiration to those with whom she comes in contact, Miss Goldsmith has set many a student on the road to success. Her determination to complete whatever she begins has also had its influence upon her fellow associates.

A picture of this tiny personage seated at her seemingly oversized desk, always willing to give advice when it is needed, will ever remain in the minds of those Missionites whose privilege it was to be among her students.

Mr. Louis Conlan, the present principal, was appointed his successor. However he was then serving with the U.S. Navy. Therefore Mr. Joseph Newman, who had joined the faculty in 1923, was appointed acting principal until Mr. Conlan's release from the Navy in 1944. At this time Mr. Conlan became active head of the school while Mr. Newman resumed his post as Dean of Boys and Vice Principal.

NEW BUILDING UNDER CONSTRUCTION

JOSEPH O'CONNER

Joseph O'Conner, one of the founders and the first principal of Mission High School, received his appointment as principal in 1897. He remains in the memories of those who knew him as "a fine teacher, a strict disciplinarian, a just and kind man." He was an athlete as well as a scholar and held the distinction of being the first man to swim the Golden Gate.

FREDERICK H. CLARK

Frederick H. Clark succeeded Mr. O'Conner as principal in 1916 and held the position until 1919. A quiet, scholarly man, he was himself a Mission boy. During his brief tenure he carried on Mr. O'Conner's work and did considerable planning for the proposed new additions to the school building and future courses of instruction. Mr. Clark's quiet and unassuming leadership was a godsend in those panicky days of World War I.

ADMINISTRATION AND FACULTY

In 1896 Mission High School was dedicated, and its doors opened to the youth of our community. There is no record of the words uttered at the dedication ceremony; but in view of the contribution which has been made to the culture, welfare and development of our community by Mission High School, the following dedication, which was written by William Henry Scott, would, indeed, have been appropriate for the occasion:

"Let us now with earnest hearts and with exalted faith and hope solemnly consecrate this building to its high and holy purpose. May the youth of this community for generations to come gather in this place to receive instruction in knowledge and training in virtue. May they find here every condition necessary to a true and enlightened education. Especially, may their teachers be examples of excellence in scholarship and character, seekers after goodness and truth, lovers of children, enthusiasts and adepts in the finest of all arts, the development and inspiration of human souls. May these rooms always be pervaded with an invigorating atmosphere of mental and moral life; and may no child pass from this school to a higher school or to the outer world without having been made more intelligent, more thoughtful, more courageous, more virtuous, and in every way more capable of wise, just, useful, and noble living."

It seems fitting on the occasion of the fiftieth anniversary of the founding of Mission High School, that we, who are now privileged to be associated here, should re-dedicate our school to these noble purposes in order that the heritage which was left us by those who have gone before may be transmitted to succeeding generations.

Wielding the gavel for the Fall term '45 was Student Body prexy Don Nolan, who should receive a great deal of credit for his interschool relation and smoothly running football rallies. Barbara Bohn actively understudied Don and was kept hopping as the president of the Girls League. In charge of the leather-bound secretaries' book and quill was Virginia Arias. Keeping a close watch over the coffers of the Mission High treasury were Mary Ellen Berry and Harold Harp, Girls' and Boys' Financial Secretaries, respectively. Elected to the posts of Athletic Managers by a majority vote were Adele Scalise and Tom Combis.

E PASSING PARADE

Few seniors, if any, will ever forget the scenes of their high school life depicted on these pages. Those days at Mission that passed all too quickly ... the assemblies ... especially those put on by the Block M. Pictured above is a musical extravaganza, feature of which was the big name band attired in Block M sweaters. The front stairs ... filled with the pride of the Mission District busily discussing anything and everything. The Senior Breakfast . . . attended by the high seniors . . . one of the last chances to see the class together and doing the same thing. The Last Wills and Testaments . . . Sam Kadlecik, high senior president, and Rita Main view the hundreds of varied wishes . . . willing anything from soup to nuts.

These seniors of the Fall Class of 1945 are typifying their senior class by viewing a world once more open to international trade and commerce . . . a world that no longer cringes with fear at the sound of an airplane motor but smiles in anticipation of the life-giving foods that are speedily being transported over land and sea. Graduates of this class will be the first from Mission with an opportunity to help rebuild a world shattered by the world's devastating war.

Fall Class of 1945

The Graduation Class of F'45 bears the distinction of being the first peacetime graduating class in six years.

As members of the class began the first of six terms of school at Mission, most of them felt the High Senior year as being hundreds of years away. Some students began carefully mapping out plans to follow during their three years of high school, and under the guidance of Mrs. Baxter, head counselor, arrangements of programs were made and the class began working towards the 150 credits necessary for the diplomas they hoped to receive. Under the direction of Bill McMillan as president, the class enjoyed the events of the sophomore year.

With promotion at the end of the fall term of '43, the group got rid of the appellation of "Sophs" and received the muchdesired title of "Juniors." Vince Custodio and Sophie Athanaso-poulos were elected as president and vice president, respectively, for that spring semester. Class members often met with the "big guns," student body officers, and football heroes.

By the time the low junior term was under way, students were getting acquainted. Lasting friendships were formed between Jack Sherratt and Bruno Pacini, Rita Main, Lois McDonald and Barbara Bohn, Ray Gustavino and Don Howard, and many others.

Then the class became serious about academic work; most majors were completed and the only worry was civics which was made nteresting under Mrs. Kortwright. The term's wienie roast held at Sigmund Stern Grove included food (which cost) and laughter and fun galore (which were free to all).

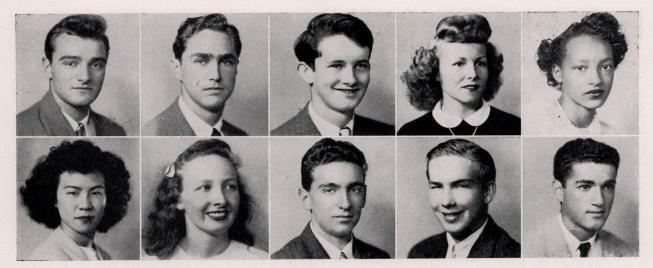

By the time the title "High Seniors" could be bestowed on the class, the number of members had dwindled to 200. Army, Navy

Now that the winning of peace rests on their shoulders, this group realizes the importance of their actions in the world into which they have now stepped.

The '96 Senior events in review show that the hustlers who were at Mission at the very beginning enjoyed themselves in much the same way as the modern teensters do. For picnics such distant spots as Mill Valley, Larkspur, and San Anselmo were favorite haunts. All of the Senior class were included on these jaunts; the "contrivance" that drew crowds was that the boys paid the fares and the girls brought the lunches. Roaming jakes of today enjoy sunshine basking at Lake Tamescal Beach and, if a friend with a car is around, visit Searsville, Fairfax, Walnut Creek and the Russian River area.

Privilege of eating lunch on the front stairs was allowed to boys only; all girls enjoyed their lunch in the enclosure of the girls' court. For the past two years only, have the girls been allowed the freedom of the front stairs, lawns, and Dolores Park.

Just as we stand for the extreme styles sported by our dappers, so did ninety-sixers tolerate their dandies' attempt to imitate the very latest fashions. The "White Vest Trio," well-known quipsters of the day caused comments and laughs by endeavoring to present themselves as dashing clothes horses. Today's lads, particularly seniors, explore dry goods emporiums rebounding with blindingly bright plaid shirts, flashy shoes, anklets, levis, suntans and slacks.

Senior students were very active in journalism then as compared to today. The Senior Edition for each term was completely taken over by the Senior class. Every edition of the school's paper contained classified ads. In fact, "The Mission" probably contained more ads of this nature than any other paper in the city. Gossip columns were literally unheard of; the only mention of school incidents being under "School Notes."

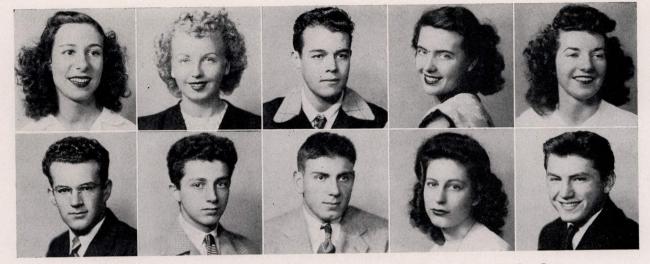

Student Body Cards were not known in those days. The classes in order to earn money for socials held annual candy sales. The only class of Mission today which is still to benefit by a social is the senior class which holds its dance once a term in order to ease the expenses of the Senior Prom.

After graduation exercises it was customary to have some sort of celebration, so dances were held in the boy's gym. There is no record of the first graduation party, but for years, according to many students, they have been the most exciting socials of the year.

Graduates, then, received their diplomas from the President of the Board of Education, whereas now the principal of the school makes the presentation. Student body officers held the titles of president, first vice-president, second vice-president, corresponding secretary, recording secretary, girls' financial secretary, boys' financial secretary, basketball man, baseball man, and Bay Co. delegates. The duties performed by them were much the same as those performed by our officers today.

Girls weren't very active in sports then and you never found any girls venturing forth in conquest of Block M's. After 1904 when calisthenics were advertised as advantageous for everyone, girls began exercises in the gymnasiums. Now, one of the first things a sophomore girl does is sign up for after school sports, and after continuing this for six terms is awarded a Block M, a gold pin and becomes a member of the GEB.

In '96 there was only one school orchestra which held weekly rehearsals every Wednesday. Dance bands weren't authorized then. Mission today has a reputation for being the most democratic school in the city due to the fact that she has no sororities or fraternities in her midst. But in the old days, she had the Alpha Nu Fraternity and the Omega Nu Sorority which were very active in "rushing" affairs. Today's school organizations include Tri-Y and Hi-Y, organizations for boys and girls sponsored by the YMCA and YWCA, GEB, Block M Societies, Girls' League Cabinet and the Arktules Council.

Available only to the high and mighty seniors are such time-honored duties as digging into the practically empty senior wallet, prying loose some change, scutting up four flights of stairs to room 410 and being relieved of $1.75 for high senior dues. Cap and Gown fittings are also reserved for the future graduates. Stepping into the fitting, the prospective senior is instantly whipped in and out of a variety of sizes until he is told that it fits. English VIII is also "For Seniors Only." It deals with composition forms and sentence structure—all in preparation for the threehour English test given by the University of California. Most missed, perhaps, will be those assaults upon the boys' beanery in quest of some form of nourishment.

The main events of the spring 1946 term included the celebration of the 50th anniversary of the founding of our school and the presentation of the operetta "Trial by Jury" by Miss Becker and the choir.

Half a century written in the pages of the world covers no more than a paragraph. . . But written in the pages of a community or a school it is practically a whole book. . . . Fifty Years of Mission High. . . . From its conception in a tiny school room to the present day structure of four stories. . . . That intangible something, a spirit some call it, has always been here. . . . and that is what has sent students out into all walks of life—some successful—others had a hard struggle. . . But one thing was always with them. . . . The remembrance of those early days when they were preparing for life. . . That something is what brought the alumni back to put on an assembly for the students of their Alma Mater. . . . Monday saw the completion of a monster field day—pie eating—tug-of-war —and other fiendish sports devised by Mr. Alex Schwarz... Tuesday, Alumni activities. . . Wednesday witnessed another huge assembly sponsored by the faculty. . . And that evening a tremendous costume dance that was held in the boys court. . . the end of the anniversary celebration. . . Some fifty years from the time of this celebration . . . when Mission celebrates its hundredth anniversary . . . some writer will sit down and talk of the years past when people rode in cars . . . squabbled about world security . . . and male Missionites worried about being drafted. . . . Then he will talk of the rocket ride to Europe . . . starting second period . . . and getting back in time to catch the beginning of sixth—wishful thinking perhaps . . . but they laughed at Edison. . . .

Evidence of the fine work that is being done by the woodwork classes at Mission is the delicately done spinning wheel that is depicted above. Also included in the curriculum at Mission is a fine art course which includes, among other things, a full course of instruction in use of the potter's wheel. This wheel has been used for many centuries by the peoples of the Far East to make their beautiful clay work. The delicate smell of finely cooked foods that sometimes wafts through the halls of Mission is not the work of a Paris chef, but the handiwork of the cooking classes, one of which is whipping up a serving of crepe suzettes or something.

The latest innovation at Mission is the cleanup committee. This committee inspects the building, boys' and girls' courts, and front of the school to decide whether or not the building is being kept clean enough.

With the helpful assistance of Miss Karsey and Will Buckhouse, Registry 314 came out on top of the list in the March of Dimes Drive which turned out to be a successful one.

This isn't the first time that Miss Karsey's registry class has come in first place, as they have led the list for the Red Cross, Blood Donor Drives, and Savings Bonds and Stamps for the past three years.

So, Mission views with pride this registry, which has attended faithfully to all of these important drives.

As the last reverberation of the first bell dies away, a slamming of doors is heard and the sleepy-eyed Missionite is well on his or her way into another high school day. It is in the registry that the students learn that Mr. Newman or Miss Morrill wants them for some reason or another (usually cutting). It is here that the principal's bulletin is first read, among moans and groans, and the day's program is gradually unfolded. There has never been a dull moment in the short twenty minutes that make up a registry period and that will never be as long as there are such things as West Wings to be sold, Red Cross pleas to be read and the pleas to be answered by the appearance of cash money. There also comes the cry that Philippine libraries have lost all of their books due to the ravages of war. Also included in the early morning cries is the request for canned food to alleviate the suffering of the starving peoples of Europe. But this is only a sample of the variety of announcements and directions that hit the poor Missionites as they enter the portals of their respective "reges," sleepily rubbing their eyes.

Organizations in Mission this year have been stressed as never before for the simple reason that now more interest is taken in them. It used to be that if a few students got together who were interested in one activity, they would form a club. Now, however, these organizations are directed toward a definite end, an endeavor to teach each member something definite about the subject involved. In the next few pages will be shown some of Mission's activities, training young men and women for their futures in America's ever-changing world. What a change from the old days when activities were unorganized!

A worthwhile project . . . A Missionite always comes through, no matter what obstacles are against him. Phyllis Jones is the person who, this time, carried the banner for Mission, when she collected more money for the Red Cross Drive than any other student enrolled in the school.

Other activities on the part of the various service groups during 1945-46 included paper collection, canned food drive, entertainment at various USO shows, and the clothing drive.

WILLIAM J. DREW

William I. Drew knows what to do about foundations, and those foundations of high scholastic attainment coupled with sound vocational training that were Joseph O'Conner's dream became a reality during the twenty-four years of progress that were Mission's under Will Drew's leadership. In 1923, fire reduced Mission to ruins and Will Drew once more had foundations to deal with, but this time it was the physical aspect of the building. Undismayed he completed his plans for a new building and began the long, uphill fight for the playground. When he retired in 1943, the beautifully planned and equipped building had been in use for nineteen years, and the playfield fittingly named in his honor by a grateful school, lay at Mission's back door. His constant companion through all these years was his flute with which he entertained at many a Mission assembly. Pictured also is the replica of the Mission tower that was presented to him by an eternally grateful school at the time of his retirement in 1943.

The model was made in plaster under the direction of Miss Emily J. Michels, assisted by Mr. Rust, who made the wooden frame, and Mr. Tiesselinck, who did some metal work.

The West Wing, F'45

With the beginning of a new school term came a new policy in the publication of the West Wing—bi-monthly publication. This meant a readjustment of long standing policies and a great deal more hard work by all members of the staff. But by the same token, it meant more and fresher news for the school. After the first month of publication it was found that the reception of the students was well worth the extra effort. Combined with a new type face and method of makeup, the paper drew favorable comment.

During the fall term, there was a change of advisors as Mr. Charles Thurmond left to do some advanced work at the University of California and Miss Mary Ziebold took up the reins and carried on with the journal. Many tiresome hours were spent at Lexicon Press. To Mr. Watson, the printer, should go a great deal of credit for his kind understanding and ability to decipher the many novel attempts at typing.

The Mission, 1946

Choosing a theme is always a headache for any journal staff, but this year the theme was practically made to order with the advent of Mission's Fiftieth Anniversary Celebration.

First was the dusty work of looking through old journals and newspapers vainly trying to piece together readable history of the school. The typewriters were then uncovered and work was begun on the cartoon writeups, histories, dedications, forewords, etc., another headache which kept the typewriters humming. While this was going on, the photographer was whizzing around the school taking pictures here, there and everywhere, trying to get as much of Mission life as possible. Then came the weary hours at the printer's, correcting the proofs and trying to correct the hundreds of things that always manage to go wrong no matter how careful everyone is. Finally that day which no one on the staff ever expected to see arrived, and the journals came from the bookbinders. With ohs! and ahs! the staff viewed their handiwork and only hoped that the school would like the yearbook as much.

Fifty Years of Progress

At this point it is only fitting to give Miss Michels and her journal art staff the full amount of credit for their efforts in producing the cartoons which grace the ad pages and also for the division pages which depict Mission life not only locally, through the years, but nationally as well.

Always an integral part of Mission High School is its Music Department. This year, even more than in the past, the students may proudly acclaim it one of the best in the city. All of the school bands and orchestras are under the personal direction of Mr. George D. Ingram, while the vocal division is under the capable leadership of Miss Isabelle Becker. San Francisco's best high school choir most easily describes Mission's A Cappella choir. This blending of youthful voices has sung for the USO on several occasions, for Easter services in prominent churches, and at countless assemblies. The choir is also responsible for light operetta production. Also quite active is the Boys Glee, composed

Dual Cast for Opera

Boasting a double cast of leading characters, the Music Department's spring extravaganza, Gilbert and Sullivan's operetta "Trial by Jury," was presented on consecutive nights. Leading this were Choir Director Miss Isabelle Becker and Musical Director George D. Ingram. The role of the judge was sung by Ross Price and Bruce Castro. Ushers were Willy Buckhaus and Sol Weiner. Al Hernandez and Jack Aho played the parts of defendants while counsel parts were sung by Johnny Brown and Jack Billmire. The feminine interest was added by Melanie Flynn and Evelyn DiLuzio as plaintiffs. Foreman of the jury for both nights was Joe Canjur.

The Boys' and Girls' Glee Clubs presented "Martha" as an additional attraction. Solo parts were taken by Louise Schmidt, and Phyllis Myhren.

"Janie" was the play presented during the spring term on the school stage by the Drama class under the direction of Miss Donaldson.

THE PASSING PARADE

That old adage, "A strong body should go with a strong mind," has been emphasized in Mission High School physical education, as never before. In the present era, one of reawakening, re-birth, and re-discovery, Mission High boys will go out into the work-a-day world with a keen understanding of what is existing around them, and they will be better adapted physically to take what society has to offer them. Within the next few pages, the Sports Staff intends to show, photographically, how gym teachers Alex Schwarz, Art Jones, Glenn Haas, Lloyd Leith, and "Pop" Elder put the boys through their paces.

Mission athletes, wherever they go, will be definitely more sport-minded than ever before in the Eighteenth and Dolores St. institution's fifty-year history. With a record of a basketball championship, a soccer championship, a third place football berth, a track championship, and a third place baseball slot, the Bears have an enviable record to look back upon as having attended a school whose athletic pursuits place them among the city's leading contestants.

Bears Finish Season

Keeping up the high standard of Mission tradition, the 1945 gridiron guys kept the bright outlook for next year's squad by landing in the semi-finals and finally finishing the season in third place. Records show that as we did not play Balboa, we were tied for this position by Commerce, but as the Bal game was rained out, and as Mission beat Commerce in their season meet, the Bears were the technical third place roosters. The two teams who beat Mission, St. Ignatius and Polytechnic, were in first and second place, respectively. Eighteenth and Dolores has always had a good representation in this sport, and have been at least in the semi-finals for the last eleven years. All of those years mentioned it has had at least one Mission man on the All-City and this season was no exception. Art Psaltis won a tackle berth, and Jack Sherrat was placed in the mythical backfield.

The Bruins' season was started against the Mustangs from Lincoln High. Sporting their new canary yellow suits, the Missionites scored at least once in every quarter to trounce the hapless Ponies, 32 to 6. This was a breeze for the boys and every man on the bench was given playing time. The Brown and Golders were dropped in their next game by their jinx, St. Ignatius, by the score of 6 to 0, which was conceived on a pass from Tommy Green to big Joe Donovan, All-City basketball center, who was standing in the end zone. Noted in this fray was the hard hitting power of fullback Roy Giorgi, who slashed the Wildcat line for many a yard. The losing streak continued with the next game, when we were pecked into submission to the tune of 14 to 6 by a strong Poly Parrot. The flashy foursome backfield of Peacock, Marlowe, Hagler and Fromm was stopped most of the way, but managed to get their markers first on a long run by "Legs" Peacock through the center of the line, and then via the air lanes on a pass from Duke Marlowe to halfback Bob Hagler, who scampered the remaining 20 yards to the gold stripe. Mission's T.D. was received first on a pass from Jack Sherrat to Jack Hayes, who was stopped on the 25 yard line, and then Sherrat running it around right end from there.

Then started Mission's ramble toward the semi-finals. The Eldermen took their loss of two games in a row out on the Galileo Lions who they met next. Led by "Rippin' Roy" Barni, the Galileans started off with a bang and scored the first 6 points of the day, but that was the end of their scoring line. Schwarz's protogees started to ramble, and Barni, Pippus, and Co. folded like the proverbial Arab, and stole toward their North Beach homes, stinging from that last look at the scoreboard, which read Mission 20, Galileo 6. Big surprise of this game occurred when Art Psaltis, a tackle, mind you, intercepted Dolph Pippus' pass intended for Roy Barni, and weaving back and forth, headed for Mission's goal, and six big points. Art got his six digits, and that All-City slot mentioned above.

The next contest saw more playing time for the subs, who that day looked almost as good as the varsity. It was against the impotent Washington Eagles who were given 7 points while the Bears racked up 25. Washington, composed almost entirely of sophomores and juniors, could do naught against the tough Mission line, and their touchdown was scored against the above mentioned subs. Really starting to roll by this time, the boys moved to their game with their traditional rival, the Commerce Bulldog.

The Commercials had upset St. Ignatius earlier in the season and were looked upon as a stellar club. Unpredictable as ever, the Bruins went ahead to score their only shutout of the season and dump the 'Dogs at the same time, 19 to 0. Touchdowns were scored by Roy Giorgi on an intercepted pass of Harry Farmer, Commerce fullback, Hal Williams around right end, and Jimmy Bishop, sub for Giorgi, through the center of the line.

Semi-finals day was reached with Mission re-playing St. Ignatius, and Poly tangling with Commerce, who was still rankling from her defeat at the hands of the Bears, and ready for any oncomer. The jinx was still going strong, and it was another pass which broke Mission's neck, this time from fullback Pete Williams into the outstretched palms of halfback Burt Larkins, who scampered for paydirt. That was the story of Mission's bow-out to the finals and to look toward the basketball season was a bright future anyway, as was later discovered.

The outstanding man on the club was possibly un-sung, practically un-heralded Les Johnson. Les was always in there for the Brown and Gold, and seemed to play better ball when the going got rougher and rougher. Playing the other tackle slot, big Les was in on many a tackle, and plugged many a gap in the notalways perfect Mission line.

The starting lineup for the Bruins would look something like this: ends, alternating Jack Hayes and Don Steele, and Roy Pozneikoff; tackles, Art Psaltis and Les Johnson; guards, Bennie Albrecht and Bruno Pacini; center, George Johansen; quarterback, Al Meyers; halfbacks, Johnny Brown and Jack Sherratt; fullback, Roy Giorgi or Hal Williams.

Coached by a man who really knows what Mission spirit is, being a graduate himself, the Mission High basketeers won the 1946 basketball gonfalon in conjunction with the high schools of Commerce and Lowell. Coach Schwarz, who in his first year as coach of the varsity brought them through their seven win, two loss season with flying colors, and won for himself the title of Coach of the Year, to boet. This championship was the first A.A.A. crown to be garnered in the history of Mission High.

The boys finished the season with two men on first string All-City, Joe Brodnik, high scorer for the whole league, and Art Psaltis, big guard who was dynamite under both backboards, and Student Body Prexy Tommy Combis on the second string of that mythical team playing sterling ball all the way. The other boys, Gus Triandos, Joe Polich, and Ernie Gisler were important links in the Brown and Gold chain. Eddie Rueda, who played but four games for the Bruins, would have been a cinch for All-City, had he finished the season. Boasting an ever changing method of offense and defense alike, the Bear prepsters puzzled many an opponent, and it would be Joe Brodnik hitting the net from the side, behind Art Psaltis' screening, or Tommy Combis swishing the mesh from far out with his baffling accuracy.

The casaba kids schedule started with their battle of Lincoln High. This one didn't look so good as the lads finished at the wrong end of a 29 to 20 score. The tip-ins of big Bob Payne cut our throats that day. However this was the first game, and the boys were just getting started. They proved this in their next contest with the highly rated Lowell Indians, and defeated them, 33 to 31, on Art Psaltis' under-the-bucket "sudden death" shot, that put the game on ice for the Mission men. With two contests in back of them, one won and one lost, the Bears were on an even keel, and went hunting for Polytechnic Parrots. It was good hunting as the Birds were plucked by a 26 to 20 score. The Schwarzmen played their next game the day after "Grad-night," and proved that in this case anyway, parties and basketball do mix, and went ahead to drub Washington's Eagles, 30 to 13. More bird feathers for our collection. Plucky Sacred Heart, who later proved to be the most improved club in the loop, was next on our road to victory, and the Irishmen fell to our onslaught by a 38 to 22 score. As luck would have it, the Mighty Bears fell to the clawing of the Wildcats of St. Ignatius, next, and our winning streak was halted for a very short time, by a one point deficit, 27 to 26. Art Psaltis was ruled out of the game on five fouls, and his rebounding was sadly missed, Joe Donovan of S.I. taking over from there. Things looked a little black for the boys, but they were determined to stay in the fight for the crown, and took the one point loss out on their traditional rivals from Commerce High. They racked up the highest score of the season to shackle the Bulldogs, 51 to 34. Nothing could stop them, after that, and they went ahead to top first Galileo's Lions in a point spree, 41 to 12, and then slaughter the Pirates from Balboa, 36 to 16, to cinch their first championship in history. These last two games were good practice for the subs, Jimmy Bishop, Bill Riddel, Walt Stenfath, the Collins boys, Dick and Bob, all of whom will be back next year to form the nucleus on which to build, yes, maybe another championship team.

Cubs End Poor Season

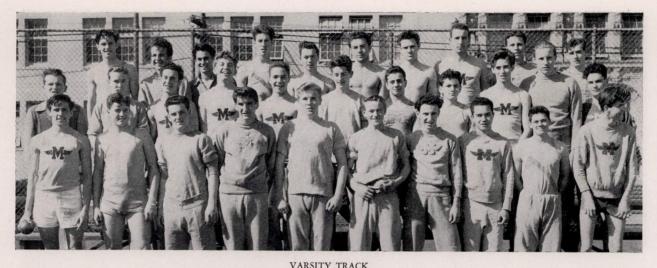

Although not at the top of the A.A.A. race this year, the lightweight basketball team was still one of the most feared in the city. Led by Captain Irv Gisler and high scorer Roy Brodnick, the group ended the season with a record of one and eight.

The Bears' one victory came against a fighting Sacred Heart Irish team. Led by Irv Gisler who racked up 13 points, the lighties swamped the Irish, 43 to 33. The best game of the year, although a losing one, was the Mission-Commerce night. Expecting an easy victory, the Bulldogs were forced to come from behind to beat a stubborn Mission squad.

At the forward spots for the lighties was Roy Brodnik. Roy, like his older brother Joe, led the team in scoring. Tiny Herb Garcia was perhaps the best defensive forward in the city. Two boys shared the center post — Bill Peck and John Larsen. Both of these boys were tall and controlled the backboards as well as getting through their share of points. At the guard slots were Jack Malloy, good defensive boy, and the pride of the Mission thirties, Irv Gisler. Irv held the team together and what success the lads enjoyed was due no small degree to Irv and Coach Lloyd Leith.

130's Take First Crown

Closing the A.A.A. track season with a record of five wins and no losses, the Mission High 130-lb. class track team won a welldeserved but hard-earned All-City championship. This was the first track championship ever to be won by Mission in any division.

With a group of runners such as Don Vollers, Kenneth Fitts, Bruce Castro, Norman Ow Yang, Dick Chapman, Bruno Orsi, Don Jones, Harold Clough, Walter Boehm, Les Koenig, Craig Ryan and Rudy Martinez, the thirties trounced Washington 65-12.

Their next meet was with St. Ignatius, which had a very strong group of lighties and were trying their hardest to defeat the Bears, as both teams were in line for divisional championship and the victory probably deciding which team would be the champions. The final score was 48 to 28, with the Brown and Golders, of course, the victors.

In Mission's History

In their third meet, the Bears deefated their traditional rivals from Commerce to the tune of 57 to 20. This made the Haasmen champs of Division 1 and they now had to meet Balboa who were the champions of Division 2.

They had dropped a practice meet to Balboa earlier in the season, $40\frac{1}{2}$ to $36\frac{1}{2}$, and were itching to get back at them. Not taking any chances, the thirties gained their revenge, defeating Balboa, 45-32. This win gave Mission the dual championship of both divisions and they were favored over the other schools to take the All-City championship.

On May 18th, the All-City meet was held at Kezar Stadium. With the best runners from all schools competing, Mission came out on top with a total score of $40\frac{1}{2}$ points. Closest contender to Mission was Lincoln with $34\frac{1}{2}$ points. Third was Poly with $24\frac{1}{2}$ digits, and fourth was Balboa with 22 markers.

Baseball Team Takes

Starting with what seemed a winning team at the beginning of the 1946 season, Pop Elder was most assured of another championship. Although the Bear nine didn't live up to pre-seasonal predictions, every Mission game provided an afternoon of good baseball.

Losing our first game of the season to Sacred Heart with a 4-3 score, Mission broke the two-season chain of wins totaling 19 victories.

It seemed that hopes for a championship were not yet lost when the Bears made a comeback that took the Lowell Indians for 20 runs, trouncing them 20-2. The winning stream continued as Mission came out the victor in the Mission-Lincoln game, defeating the Mustangs 3-2. They went on to swamp the Washington Eagles 19-5. The upset came when Mission met the Galileo Lions who were destined to win the 1946 championship. Everything was going well under the brilliant pitching Jack Hayes did for the Mission Bears until the fateful eleventh inning, when the Lions collected their six runs, beating the Bears 6-3. The losing of this game had an adverse effect on the team and they lost their next game to Balboa, 7-3. As the season drew to a close the Bears came into their own, being victorious in the last three games. Taking to the diamond again, this time against Poly, the Mission nine regained some control, winning this tilt 3-1. Commerce fell an easy prey to the Missionites as they gathered strength towards the season's end and defeated the Bulldogs 6-2. The last game of the season for Mission was against the Blue and Red of Saint Ignatius. The Bears turned the Blue and Red to Purple to the tune of 18-8. only man to repeat as an All-City choice this year was Joe Polich, Mission's sensational shortstop, who was elected captain of the All-City team. Gus Buono well earned his right to his All-City berth by being one of the city's best catchers.

Hard-hitting Johnny Brown was selected as the best of the All-City outfielders for his amazing catches as well as his hitting. Lloyd Dickey, Jim Baxes and Gus Triandos, first, second and third basemen, respectively, were chosen for second team honors as well as pitcher Jack Hayes.

Soccer Team Annexes

Playing a very important part in Mission's sport life, the various minor activities are enthusiastically participated in by students. Although the cheers are not as loud as for football or basketball, they are nevertheless just as spirited.

Coming under the heading of minor sports are swimming, coached by Dave Barker; tumbling, taught by Alex Schwarz; tennis, supervised by Art Jones; soccer, watched over by Glenn Haas, not to mention the nucleus of a boxing team which has alternately flourished and then died out.

Mission's present-day minor sports program is more than adequate, with sports that appeal to every taste. It is interesting to note that a one ime in our fify-year hisory, ice hockey, golf, and boating (crew) were also included. Known as one of the fastest and most gruelling games played today, ice hockey enjoyed rabid popularity. Under hte coaching of Mr. Tiesselinck the pucksters ran up a record of thirteen consecutive victories. It was abolished due to its risk of serious injury and high cost of renting a rink. Golf shows from time to time in the history of Mission. Coach of the par-boys was Mr. Terry. The team never won a championship but enjoyed great popularity. Last of these sports was crew, which was handled by Coach "Pop" Elder. The team was more than its share of championships but was abolished due to the extreme strain upon the participants.

In keeping with a tradition which is, to wit: having the city's top soccer team, this season's shinkickers kept up the good work by ending an undefeated, untied and unscored-upon season. Awarded to the team for their fine record were yellow championship jackets. Standouts on a standout team were: Captain Jack Hacker, Dick La Grille, Don Starkey, and Hal Scott, to mention a few. But it was teamwork that gained the coveted crown.

The Passing Parade

The Mission High School R.O.T.C. Battalion can be justly proud of its record of achievement since its organization in 1919. One of the oldest units of this type in the city (Lowell and Polytechnic high schools are somewhat older), Mission's Cadet Corps has by far the most outstanding record in the city. In the 27 years of its existence, this group has, along with the R.O.T.C. band, been awarded 25 trophies for the excellent showings made in band, rifle and drill competition. In addition to this our battalion has retained its "honor school" rating for three consecutive years. This is the highest rating that any school in the United States can receive for R.O.T.C. activity.

During the past year the battalion has successfully maintained these high standards despite the fact that Sergeant H. L. LaRiviere who had joined the battalion as instructor in 1943 and started it on its upward climb (the corps had lost its "honor school" rating the term before), left the unit upon his discharge from the service in 1945. During the years that Sgt. La Riviere was battalion instructor he was responsible for many improvements. Two of these were the organization of good rifle teams and the installation of gym facilities for physical training purposes.

Sgt. I. G. Smith was chosen as the successor to Sgt. La Riviere and proved himself to be highly capable for his assignment. Sgt. Smith gained instant popularity with the members of the faculty and the student body both as a teacher and a friend.

Previous to his present assignment Sgt. Smith had served overseas during the recent hostilities and was decorated repeatedly for gallantry in action. He now holds the Silver Star, infantry combat badge, five battle stars, and many other decorations. Before coming to our school Sgt. Smith was the R.O.T.C. instructor for the University of San Francisco and the High School of Commerce.

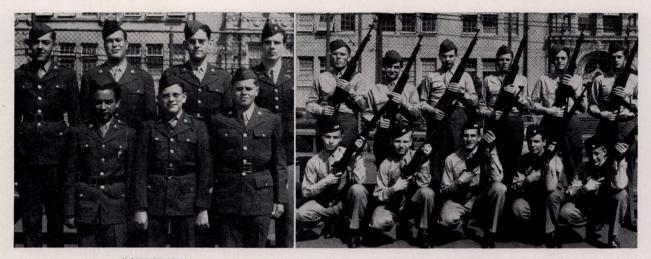

One of the most drastic changes in R.O.T.C. equipment took place this year when the order came through that the saber was to be disregarded for the more modern .45 caliber pistol which was to be carried by all commissioned officers. During the period between issuance of the order and arrival of the sidearms there was considerable argument over which was the preferred article.

Mission Honor School

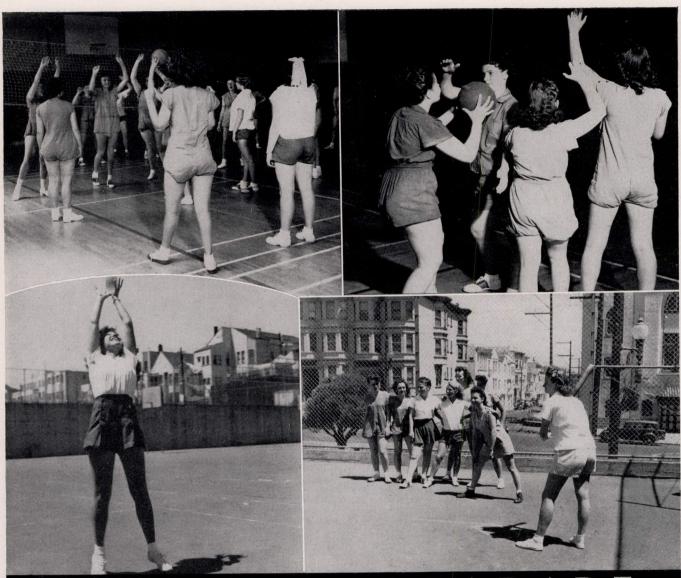

The past year saw a great deal of improvement in the battalion parades. Improvement was especially noticeable in the band which, under the direction of co-bandmasters Capt. Frank Kaiser and Capt. Richard Chapman, has made rapid strides towards becoming one of the city's finest bands. As the terms progressed, more and more improvement was noted in the performance of the battalion as a whole, until the parades became something that were a privilege to watch and were the pride of every Missionite. Memory of the year is the fine showing made by our R.O.T.C. in the parade honoring the return of General Wainwright.

THE PASSING PARADE

During the past term Mission girls have been active in a great variety of after-school sports. Baseball, basketball, volleyball, are offered as an after-school activity as well as being required in every-day gym classes. In addition, horseback riding and bowling are proffered to any ambitious bruinette anxious for some exercise.

Participating in sports has advantages other than just fun exercise. An award is given for each term of sports taken.

After-school sports at Mission are open to every girl and provide exercise and enjoyment.

Banquets, assemblies and play days . . . these are only a few of the activities sponsored by the Block M and Girls Executive Board of Mission. Girls taking active part in baseball, volleyball, horseback riding or bowling are eligible for awards. After four terms of sports and the winning of four awards, each girl is awarded her Block M; this entitles the wearer to become a member of the G.E.B.

Awards were made at the G.E.B. banquet held in February. For the first time officers were inaugurated at a candlelight ceremony.

A Variety of Activities

As the spring term draws to a close, so ends another season of girls' sports. Bats and balls are locked up for the summer. Johnny Swanson's bowling alleys are up for alterations and the tired horses from the Park academy are recovering from the Wednesdays that the Bruinettes spent in the saddle.

Come fall, everything will begin all over as usual. Junior, Senior and Sophomore Basketball will replace baseball in the fall, however.

The sophs, coached by Miss Mulcahy, ran off with the volley ball title this term beating Miss Davidson's juniors by two points. Mrs. Clawson's seniors were rival contenders.

When bowling is mentioned, so is the name of Miss Landon who has sponsored the girls bowling at Mission for several terms.

Part of the GEB banquet at the end of the fall term was the "Candlelight Ceremony" or installation of the new members. As Carole Boone was elected Girls' Athletic Manager she was automatically the president of the Girls' Executive Board. Bessie Argyres, vice-president; Ella Tarkman, secretary; and Shirley Essman, treasurer were also installed at the banquet attended by nearly all girls.

The Block M increased in size this term with many junior girls receiving their awards this June. The juniors this term had an unusually large number of girls participating in sports. At the end of this spring term an Award Assembly is given by the GEB instead of the banquet for the distribution of awards. After one term of participating in sports-bowling, baseball, basketball, volleyball or horseback riding-a girl is entitled to her first award, the circle numeral of the year in which she will graduate. If sports are continued thoroughout her terms at Mission, she will receive awards in this order: circle M, chevron, Block M, star, and gold pin. Upon reaching her high senior term if a girl has completed six terms of sports at Mission she will receive her gold pin. It seems rather easy but when the time comes there are never more than three or four gold pins awarded.

With bows in hair and doll in arms, the new members of the GEB who were initiated last February, spent three torturous days of school with uncurled locks or without the aid of the ever present lipstick. Bowing and scraping to the senior members, the new girls who had won the right to be in the GEB by winning their Block M or being voted in were lined up by fives on the front steps, singing chorus after chorus of "You Are My Sunshine." Once in the GEB, every girl realizes that it was worth the initiation to be a member and be allowed to take part in the various activities.

Year in, year out, girls' sports at Mission go on. The spring term has ended but fall is just around the corner and around that corner is another term of fun and activity for every Mission girl.

Singing "Daisy Daisy, give me your answer true," while mounted on bicycles built for two—Lotharios of the 1890's peddling proudly down the avenues waxed mustaches waving in the breezes beauties of the day coyly peeking from behind their bonnets at the dandies trundling by. This was a vital part of the era known as the 90's which is recalled by so many with nostalgia.

"C'mon on gang!" is now the battle cry of the teen-agers. The jaloppy of today is a far cry from the bicycle of yesterday. Painted bright colors and equipped with horns—making up in volume what they lack in melody, the crates are usually filled to the brim with young America.

In the days when girls were petite, and had the smallest feet, their hair was long as was the expression on their faces. They wore ruffles, and tussled with their bustles, edged with lace, while their corsets were pinchingly tight with staves. With their long skirts, high-necked dresses and bright colored bows, they had the best of manners.

Teen-age girls have caused quite a bit of comment throughout the country, so it is only natural to include something here about them. First off—a few compliments: the 1946 girl is broad-minded, capable of being independent, and possesses a great sense of humor. Though they slop around in sweaters, levis and saddles, they yen for that natural look and achieve it.

In those good old days a boy going to school had to wear those lovely "knickers." You know what we mean, those pants that come to the knees. To match those snappy trousers they wore those "beautiful boots," which come up to the ankle and are laced.

When some future archaeologist perchance comes upon a picture of a madly attired youth, buried among Mission ruins, he will most probably scream that the male of the species (junior grade) was feeble minded. Upon his glazed orbs shall fall the image of lightly scuffed shoes, myriadly colored sox, a pair of ancient levis or "sun tans" (empty wallet in pocket of same) and lastly the choice of (a) Tee shirt (b) stringingly colored sweaters (c) leather flight jacket.

Sitting there with your girl friend, her hair rippling in the breeze, watching the horses pull the trolley, thinking they must get awfully tired pulling such a load . . . it holds so many people. Gee, imagine anyone crazy enough to believe that these things could actually run by themselves.

Come on! One more shove and we'll be on this street car. If you're lucky you make it. If you don't . . . well that's another story. Of course you don't mind being packed in like a sardine . . . Wait, who are those creatures hanging on the front and back? I wonder if the conductor sees them?

Tip-toe! And around we go! The sw—ww—wish of my lady's skirt nearly drowns out the strains of the waltz. The gay Romeo can almost span m'lady's waist with his hand. To the dreamy old tunes, the couple circle 'round and 'round 'til the hour of . . . eleven, under the watchful eyes of anxious mamas.

"Dig me Jackson!" "All reet, Jack!" These and other so-called cute combinations of that language spoken in Hollywood, plus visions of dancers slinging their partners from one wall to another, accompanied by a blast of murderous music shaking the very foundations form the misconcepted picture the parents and others have of our modern dances.

Back in the days when men were . . . our "gridiron great" cavorted upon the turf in what might have looked like heavy upholstery. However, the upholstery was that provided by nature. The athlete's broad shoulders (and nose) came in for many a heavy blow. This accounted for his bandsome appearance after the game.

It seems that nowadays since padding has been invented the boys of '46, particularly the football players, are possessors of beautiful physiques. Practically every inch of them is padded and although they do get injured and scratched up, it's nothing compared to the game of '96. Since those days helmets have been invented. Now after a game the boys have their faces left.

Back in '96 when a person studied (which was every school nite) he really worked. His parents saw to it that he remained in a quiet room adequately heated and lighted and studied until what he learned was practically branded on his brain. This usually took five hours and was almost a necessity, because what can you learn in only 8 hours of school a day?

Doing homework while listening to the radio is practically an impossibility and listening to the radio is a necessity, so "no homework" should be compulsory. That's the theme of all students who have such subjects as Physiology, Latin, Math, and Science. School classes have been increased to practically an hour and then students are expected to do homework which is supposed to take about three hours.

In 1896 the compulsory subjects to be studied were the old faithfuls: "readin', ritin' and 'rithmetic." Wonder what a few of the brainiest students of the nineties would say if they saw the schedule some of the '46 students have which consists of Trigonometry, Chemistry, Latin, English, Dramatics and Glee.

Nearing 1:30 A.M. you decide to put away your Geometry Theory, your Shakespearean Tragedy, and Chemistry Equations. Visions of a simple little school house and students studying the three R's run through your dazed head. But really you don't have much to study. Only English, Trig, Physics, Civics, Glee, Chemistry and Biology. But you cheer up when you think of what the coming generation will have to study — thanks to the atomic bomb.

The "dandy" of '96 enhanced his charm with a "patent leather" shine on his hair (acquired with the use of slicum) which was dapperly parted in the middle and brought down on each side of the forehead in a wave. He didn't need to use a comb. All he needed was a handkerchief to catch the goo when it started dripping.

The hairdos of the '46 "dappers" could provide copy enough for a book. But since we only have a short space let us say most popular of all is the "Holly-wood" which consists of a large wave in front and a very low square cut in the back, touched off with a part down the middle formed by the hair which is combed back on each side. Hairdo No. 2 is the "botchie," which is a very short cut.

After much research we have come to the conclusion that the hairdo of the gay nineties lady was designed solely to frighten the poor male. The lady would spend hours combing her "lustrous locks," which during this operation would hang down to her bony knees. Next she would pin some material, which resembled cotton waste, to her scalp and roll her hair around it.

After no research we have concluded that the female of today doesn't worry about style in hairdo. She can wear her hair any way she wishes and still be in style. There's the ever popular "casual look." Next, the "artistic look." This is nothing but straight bangs across the forehead and straight bangs (reaching to milady's shoulder) all the way around.

Spring! And baseball! Our grandparents were just as eager to see a winning nine as the young (and not so young) of the present day. All thronged to see "Casey at the Bat." Though his suit might be different and his boots might be laced, his aim was to pitch an "outer" and hit a "homer" over the plate.

Nineteen hundred forty-six! A year of recovery, new findings, and, of course, baseball. Still retaining its title of America's most popular sport, it swings into another year of many promising new ball players and the ever-present bushers. Fans are delighted to see their favorite guy hit the apple for the winning run, or steal home on a catcher's error. Many a time "Joe Ballplayer" steps up to the plate, eyes the menacing pitcher, then hits the pill for another score.

The dandies, cake eaters, and sharpies of the "Gay Nineties" did not spend all of their time wooing the lady of their dreams. Many were the hours spent on tennis courts. Clad in their striped blazers, pegged trousers and sporting gymnasium sneakers, these tennis players provided gala amusement for the ladies.

The fellow rovers of today who go in for all sports and especially tennis, have more freedom on the tennis court now than those did about 50 years ago. When "Big Bill" ran on to the court in '96 he carried a lot of excess clothing, which surely was very uncomfortable and didn't let him play his best. Nowadays, he has on shorts and sneakers and off he goes to win the set match.

At one of the old-fashioned get togethers, things ran on a much different scale than they do today. The greatest enjoyment of these social gatherings was group singing. It was easier for the girls because it was quite a strain to dance while wearing one of those iron-staved corsets. To wind up the occasion, hot chocolate and cookies were served.

Today, when kids get together, they do it in a creamery or hall where they can be near a juke box and be supplied with all the latest music. You very rarely catch anyone holding community singing for entertainment. If there is any singing to do, let the "lovers" do it . . . life is too exciting to be so calm for the length of a whole song.

Oh! Those were the days! When you brought your lunch in a basket to school; fellows with their knickers and girls with yards and yards of skirts. They were very shy then. The boys went off by themselves to play and the girls sat quietly on the grass, eating their lunches and talking. No—they didn't have lunch rooms and cafeterias like we have today.

If ever a poll were taken to find out the periods most popular with students, 4° and 5° would probably head the list. In this modern age we're living in, eateries come under the names, beanery, creamery or cafe, and some food under the camouflage of "French fries," "Danburgers," "Hot Cross Buns" and "Coney Island Red Hots."

Working in '96 wasn't such a good deal for teen-agers. If, for instance, you worked in a drug store, you had to be extremely polite to the chief clerk, hardly ever say a word, do most of the work and receive very little pay at the end of the week. Now this is enough to discourage anyone, but if the kid had a little of the ol' punch in him—he could always manage to side swipe a little fun out from under the boss' near-sighted stare.

A modern teen-ager has been so popular with employers that he has been doing many other things than tendin' to the three R's. "Help Wanted" signs everywhere beckoned to him to come and get that green stuff. What then would Johnny do with his money? The creamery, of course!
