FAMOUS FEST

The 1951 "Campus" Staff through the pages of this annual wish to bring back to you, the students of San Mateo Junior College, glimpses of past scenes in your unforgettable college days. Through this book, we hope to help you recall drifting memories covering your life at Jaysee—the games, dances, assemblies, and classes in which you were a part, the friends and faculty members with whom you associated, and the former students you knew who left San Mateo to serve in the armed forces.

ADMINISTRATION

PRESIDENT CHARLES S. MORRIS

SAN MATEO JUNIOR COLLEGE

SAN MATEO, CALIFORNIA

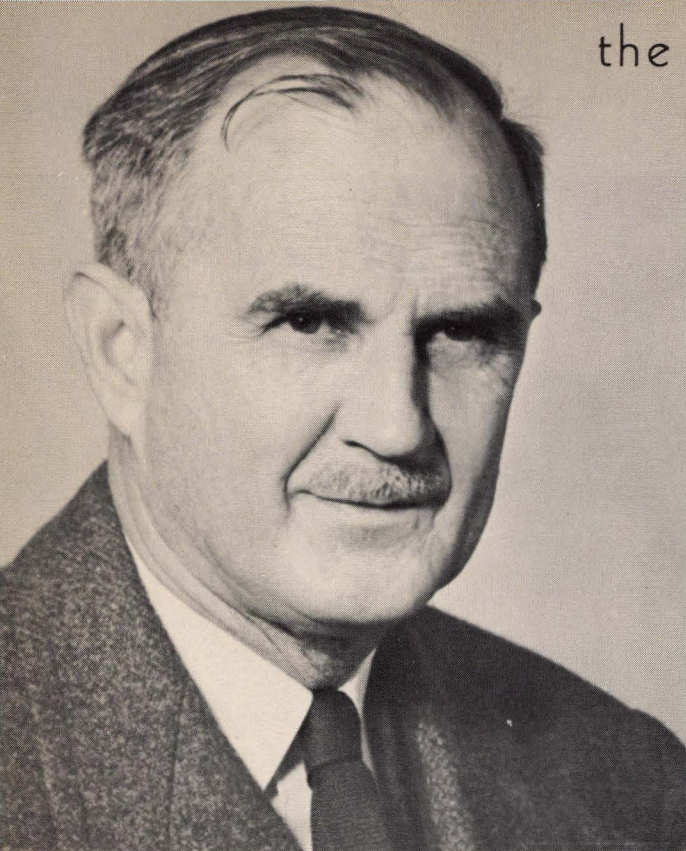

Ever since the beginnings of our nation on our eastern shores, there has been the struggle between those who would be masters and those who would be free. The Founding Fathers laid the groundwork whereby we should be free by formulating a Constitution and then themselves signing it as a mutual pledge to each other that they and their children's children should forever have that contract of freedom.

To preserve that Constitution and the nation so founded, our forefathers began America's great system of free schools patterned on the traditions of the countries from which they came. But as the years passed by, these public schools established themselves in the tradition of America itself till now on the far western shore in California the American people's schools have extended up into the college level -- the junior college.

This, your junior college, is an expression of our American freedom. We hope that the atmosphere of freedom in this college has helped you be better Freemen in the American tradition.

DR. HAROLD TAGGART

In view of the world situation this year, Dr. Harold Taggart, Dean of Men, has had many new problems of counseling, compared to those of normal times. He has given great assistance to the Jaysee men in their understanding and solution of these difficulties.

DR. ELIZABETH BALDERSTON

This college year, as in the many previous semesters she has advised Jaysee women, Dr. Balderston, Dean of Women, has been invaluable in helping the students adjust in their school life as well as in their plans for the future.

Mrs. Marjorie Hoffman

Counselors assisting Dr. Balderston on the three campuses are Mrs. Ruth Weston, Coyote Point; Mrs. Marjorie Hoffman, Delaware; and Miss Margaret Cornahrens, Baldwin.

presidents three

This year our student body government has been unusual in that we have had three presidents. When Fred Swearingen, fall president, was called to service, Bob Kennedy, vice-president, took over his position in the middle of the semester.

BOB KENNEDY

When Fred Swearingen departed for the armed forces, he left a well-organized student government for me to handle. It was an honor to work with the Executive Council of the Fall Semester. The many activities highlighted by the Sadie Hawkins-Homecoming Program in November all helped to make the Fall of 1950 an unforgettable season.

On behalf of Fred Swearingen and myself, I would like to thank all who helped make the events of the Fall Semester such a success.

—BOB KENNEDY

WIN GRIFFITH

I would like to venture a somewhat biased opinion—the Spring semester of 1951 was a success. Despite tight financing and other obstacles brought about by the drop in San Mateo's enrollment, the Executive Council was able to maintain a well-balanced program of dances, assemblies, sports, and special events. With the support of the students and administration, the Council offered what it considers an important part of education, the opportunity to plan and work for extra-curricular activities and benefit by those activities. We, the members of the Executive Council, have absorbed knowledge from that planning and working. We hope that you, as members of the student body, have received the benefit of those activities.

—WIN GRIFFITH.

The AMS and AWS cabinets function as a part of the student activities for the men and women students. Every semester officers for each cabinet are chosen at a general student body election. Throughout the year they plan the various social programs. During the fall semester, Norma Favors and her cabinet held the annual luncheon for freshman women in the Commander's House, and in December the AWS Formal was given at the Mark Hopkins Hotel. In the fall the men students participated in the traditional AMS smoker under the supervision of Dick Cameron, president. Sally Gosnell commenced the Spring semester AWS program with a luncheon and fashion show. In April the AWS-AMS cabinets gave a joint dance at Austin's Barn.

Learning, work and enjoyment have been put into and received from the 1951 Campus by its Staff. Many times during the year we expected our budget to be cancelled because the student body lacked sufficient funds, but in February it was verified that we would have a yearbook. Through the expert assistance and many hours of help given by Mr. Erford McAllister, Adviser; the wonderful cooperation and interest from the Staff members, the aid of Miss Martha Burrill, Miss Wini Stetson, and the many other students and faculty members who lent their support, the 1951 Campus was created for you, the students, to read and reminisce on your 1950-1951 college year.

Sweet music, smooth dance floors, and girls in misty formals—all these are a part of our memorable social days at Jaysee. The Fall Socials Committee sponsored our first two dances of the semester—the "Howdy Doody Hop" at the Baldwin Gym and "Autum Nocturne" at the Peninsula Country Club. In November was the "Sadie Hawkins - Homecoming Dance" at the Baldwin Gym and in December "Blue Champagne" was presented by the AWS Cabinet at the Hotel Mark Hopkins followed by the Fall Socials Committee's last dance of the semester, the "Snowfall," the Soph Formal, also at the Mark. The Spring semester brought again the Howdy Doody Hop and in April the AMS-AWS cabinets provided the barn dance, "Hayseed Hop," at Austin's Barn in Palo Alto. Along with May came the "Bird of Paradise," a Socials Committee dance, Hawaiian style, in the Coyote Point Gym and finally June arrived with the last dance of the year, the Spring Soph Formal.

In a season highlighted by a crushing defeat of the league-leading Monterey College, San Mateo ended up in fifth place in the conference with a total of three wins and five losses.

The practice season started off with a bang-up game, a decisive win over Marin, 33-13. Hopefully, our team and rooters looked forward to a great season for the squad led by Head Coach Herb Hudson and his assistants, Dell Fishback and Lee Bissett.

However, the Bulldogs met with a setback in the conference opener with Stockton. Our boys held a 13-12 lead at the half, but because of a blocked punt in the final period, which set up another Stockton tally, we came out on the short end of an 18-13 score. This was the beginning of a heartbreaking five-game losing streak.

Glendale and Hartnell both claimed wins over us.

Then our team traveled south to Pasadena and the Rosebowl for a meeting with John Muir. Though it was a fine game, again San Mateo was nudged in the final quarter by a 25-21 score.

Although the Bulldogs looked good in the Modesto game, they were unable to stop the valley eleven.

Things looked dark for our homecoming game as we had yet to win a conference tilt. However, the Bulldogs trounced their opponents, 21-6, in a game played in a constant downpour.

The high spirit and quality of playing displayed in this game carried over to the final contest of the season when we defeated Menlo, our traditional rival, to the tune of 19-7. The traditional San Francisco City College tilt was rained out and later cancelled.

At the close of the season, stellar Center Stan Pence was named honorary captain of the San Mateo squad. Pence played close to the total 60 minutes in every contest.

... the season's highlights

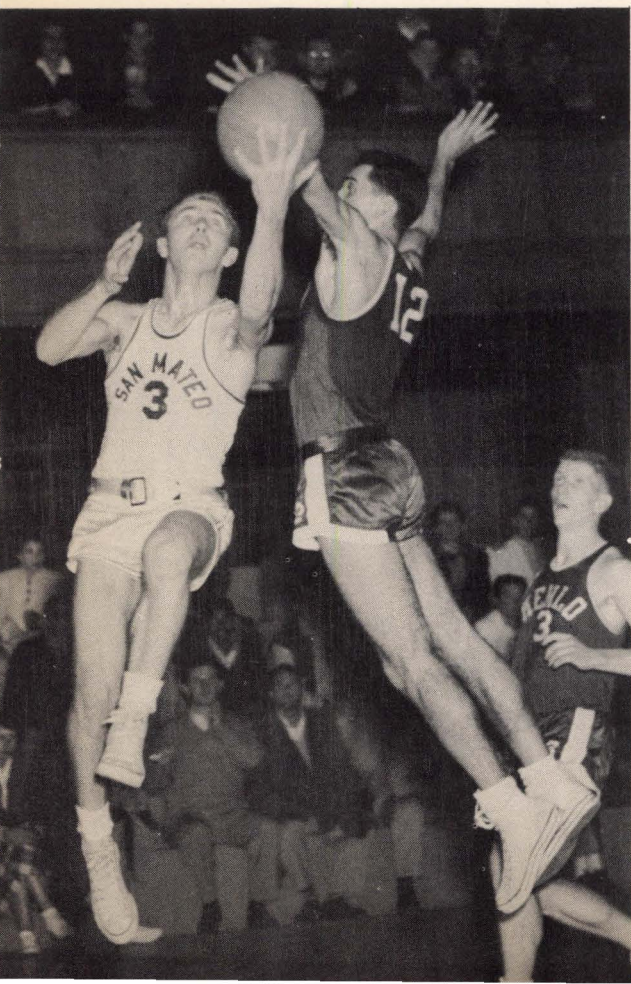

The 1950-51 San Mateo basketball team wound up in fifth place in the newly organized Big Seven Conference, and placed flashy guard Erv Bonner on the first string all-conference five. Ballhawk Jack Holmquist earned a berth on the second team at the forward spot.

High scorer for the Bulldogs was Bonner who boasted 175 points in 12 games played, with Holmquist a close second with 166. Bonner and Holmquist also rated second and third in league scoring.

Other individual league scoring for the Bulldogs is as follows: Julius Harrison 78, Jim Ogelvie 65, Ray Brown 61, Dave McCullough 53, Bob Carlson and Bob Poen 20, Ralph Gonzales 16, Roger Campbell 13, John Simmons 6, and Walt Iverson 2.

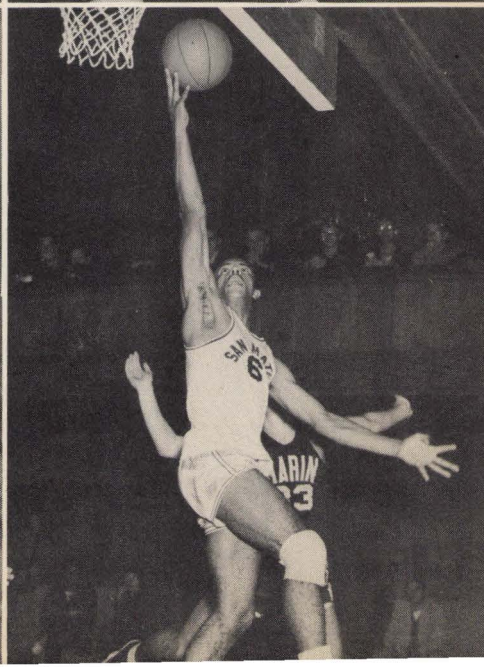

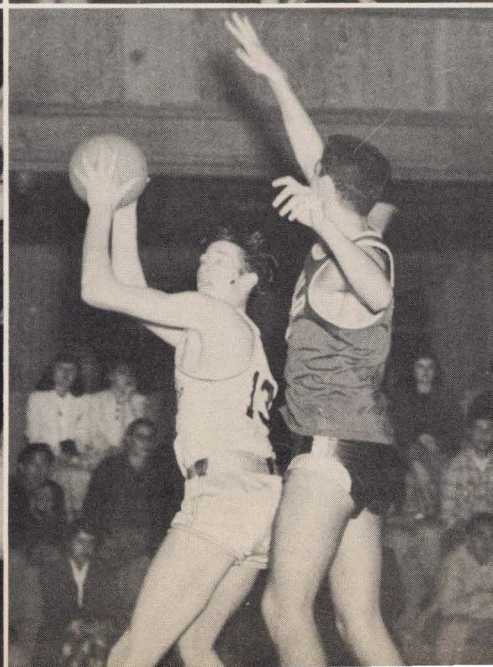

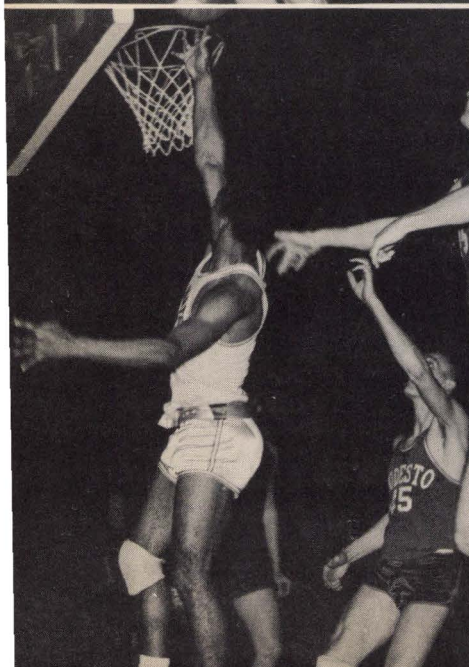

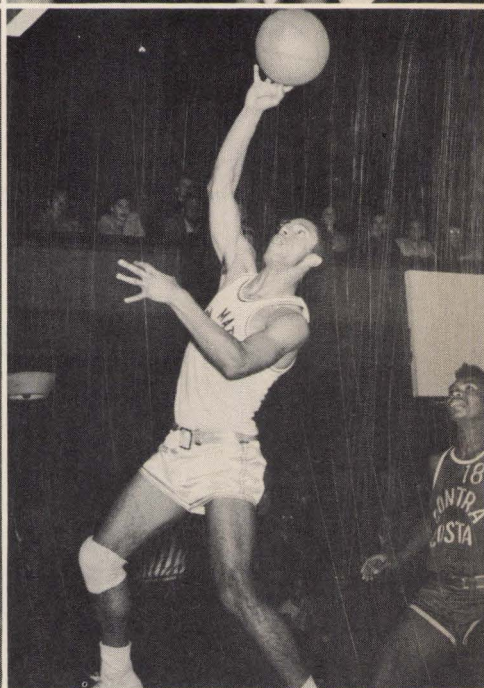

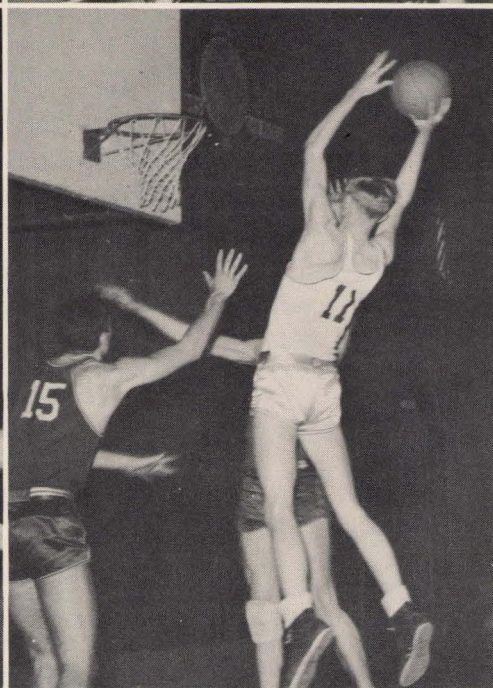

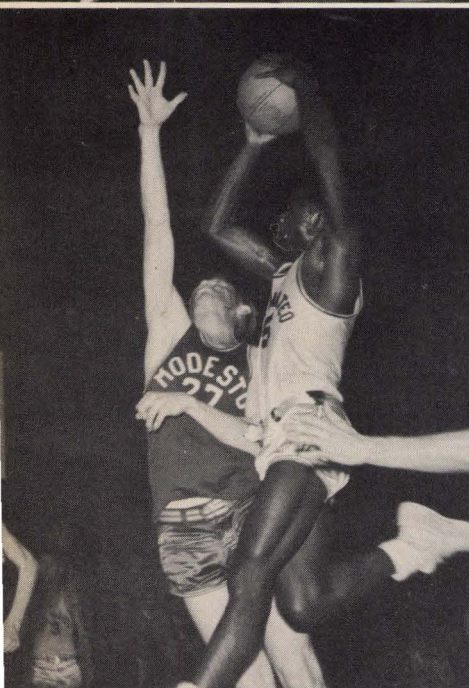

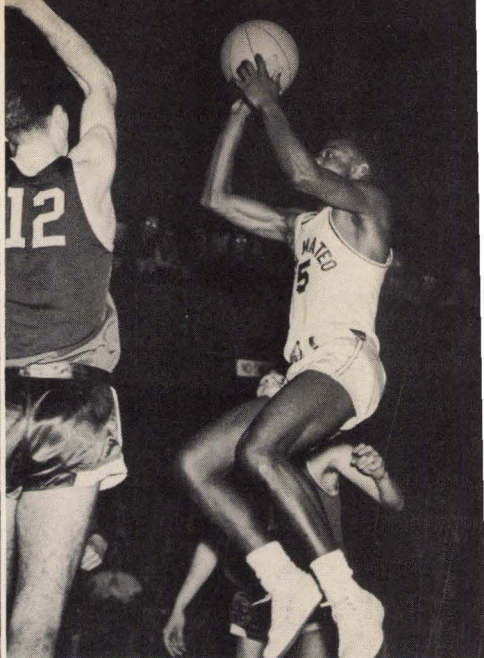

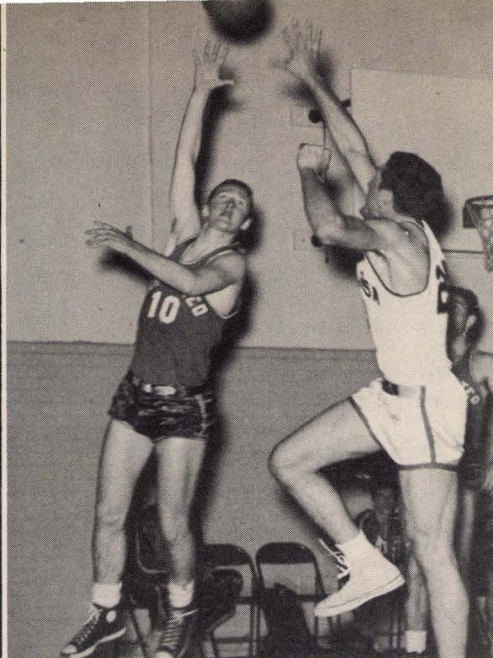

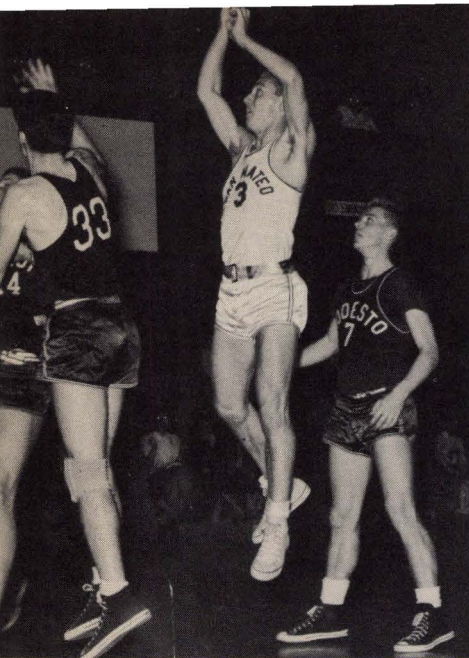

Coach Ray Balsley's casaba men started off the season poorly, losing the first three conference engagements, but came back to take the next three, and from there stayed nip and tuck until their final five win, seven loss record. Of the league losses, however, four were within the six point margin, and the Mateans scored 675 league points against their opponents' 689.
