

Andro A., laborer, San Pablo.

Anthony D., farmer, Pacheco.

ANTIOCH—Is on Suisun Bay, near the confluence of the San Joaquin and Sacramento rivers, and twenty-five miles east of Martinez. It has a population of about five hundred, which is fast increasing. This does not include the Chinese population. The Stockton and Sacramento steamers touch at Antioch and vessels of large tonnage may load at the wharf, there being at high tide over thirty feet of water. Antioch is gradually increasing in business and importance, which is owing in part to its manufacturing facilities, which are great. It is within three miles of the Mount Diablo coal mines and is the principal port for the shipment of coal, which amounts to over one thousand tons per month. There are four extensive brickyards here, and two establishments for the manufacture of pottery. There is also a flour mill, a large distillery, a lumber yard, etc. There are two churches at Antioch—Congregational and Catholic—a Masonic Lodge, one of the Order of Odd Fellows, one of the Good Templars, and a Tribe of the Improved Order of Red Men. There are three hotels, two livery stables, five general merchandise stores, and three schools. It has a weekly newspaper—the Ledger—which adds to its importance.

ANTIOCH DISTILLERY CO., Antioch.

ANTIOCH LUMBER YARD, Galoway, between Front and Wyatt, James Galoway & Co., props, Antioch.

Aravana Jose, laborer, San Pablo.

Arceano Posev, vaquero, Tp 2.

Argyle James, laborer, Antioch.

Arida Augustine, farm hand, Tp 2.

Armstrong James, laborer, Pacheco.

Arneson Nelson, laborer. Concord.

Arrellano Juan, farmer, Pacheco.

Free Coach to the VO SEMITE HOUSE, Stockton.