

OAKLAND GLOVE FACTORY.—Mrs. Spaulding & Mrs. Robbins, formerly of Stockton, have established, recently, at 406 Twelfth Street, a manufactory of gloves. Already, the enterprise affords employment for a number of persons and every effort will be made by its proprietresses to ensure its success.

RIBBON MANUFACTORY, corner Market and Twenty-second streets, Joseph Green, proprietor. This is the pioneer ribbon factory in the State, all kinds of ribbons are made of any width, shade, or color, to suit, and entirely from California silk, it has not been so well patronized as it deserves, although Mr. Green is endeavoring to satisfy both the trade and private custom; but as the ribbons manufactured are equal to any imported they may in time find a ready market, both at home and abroad.

THE BROOKLYN TANNERY, Crist & Rued, proprietors, located on East Twelfth Street, between Twenty-first and Twenty-second avenues, East Oakland, is the largest in Alameda County. Operations were commenced in July, 1873. The business consists in the manufacture of sole leather, also harness and skirting leather. At present eight men are employed. The quantity of leather manufactured is about two thousand sides a month.

THE OAK GROVE TANNERY, John S. Derby, proprietor. The business consists in the manufacture of harness, skirting; and sole leather, the principal market for which is San Francisco. Six men find constant employment. The quantity of leather manufactured is about two hundred and forty sides a week. The tannery is located on the corner of East Twelfth and Eighteenth streets.

THE OAKLAND TANNERY, located on the Bay shore, about two miles north of the old charter line, is owned by Wm. Watts. The specialty is the manufacture of the finer kinds of calf-skin, for boots and shoes, and the principal market for which is in San Francisco.

CALIFORNIA REDUCTION WORKS, late Brooklyn Metallurgical Works, located at East Oakland, A. P. Minear, proprietor. Not in operation.

LUSK'S MANUFACTORY OF PRESERVED FRUIT.—These works are located on Evoy Avenue, between San Pablo and Telegraph avenues. The principal building is one hundred and eighty feet in length, by seventy feet in width; and, in addition, there are several small structures for the different departments of the enterprise. Ten thousand cans of preserved fruits and vegetables are packed daily, and over one hundred and fifty persons are constantly employed. Three hundred and fifty acres of land are in cultivation, on which are raised nearly all the vegetables required in this establishment.

CARRIAGE MANUFACTORIES.—There are several establishments in Oakland engaged in the manufacture of carriages, buggies, and wagons, and a variety of articles connected therewith, the quality of which will favorably compare with those produced elsewhere. One of the most extensive is the Oakland Carriage Factory, M. W. Allen, proprietor, located on the corner of Tenth and Franklin streets. The Pioneer Factory of Sohst Brothers, corner of Franklin and Eighth streets, is extensively engaged in the same line. The new and commodious building recently erected by these gentlemen affords ample facilities for the economical and prompt dispatch of the various departments of their business. Northey & McGrath, 803 East Twelfth Street, are also engaged in the manufacture of carriages, buggies, wagons, and all kinds of agricultural implements.

In this connection may be mentioned the establishments of King & Williams, 414 Eleventh Street; T. Weymouth, 365 Eleventh; John O. N. Smith, 502 Seventh Street; Henry Weeks, 314 East Eleventh, rear of Washington Hall; and P. H. McGrew, 1050 and 1064 Thirteenth Avenue, where carriage-making, repairing, and general blacksmithing is done in a workmanlike manner.
