

Lovelocks, Humboldt Co, P O
Lovelock George, postmaster

Lyon County. Bounded north by Storey and Humboldt, east by Churchill, south by Esmeralda and Douglas, and west by Ormsby, Washoe and Storey. Area, 1,000 square miles. County seat, Dayton. Principal towns: Silver City and Sutro. The county embraces a large portion of the valley of Carson River, and some of Walker River, along both of which are large tracts of arable or grazing lands. The general aspect is dry and barren, but the rivers furnish water for irrigation, and by this means the desert is redeemed and made productive. The great Comstock ledge, which in Storey county, is mined with such energy, extends or sends off branches into Lyon, which, in and around Silver City are divided up into a great number of mining claims, and worked extensively. At Sutro is the initial point of the great tunnel of the same name, running to pierce the Comstock vein beneath Virginia City, and will have a length of about four miles, and at its destined point will be at a depth of two thousand feet below the surface. The mining districts of Como and Palmyra are in the mountains southeast of Dayton, and are believed to be valuable. Copper ore exists on Walker River, and has been mined to some extent, and veins of lignite are found, but generally the mines of Lyon County, outside of the Comstock region, have not been sufficiently developed to prove their importance and render them remunerative. The water-power furnished by the Carson, as well as the wood floated down by it, or growing in the hills, promote the construction of mills for the reduction of the ores mined from the Comstock, which constitute an important resource of the county.

Mineral City, White Pine Co, P O 45 miles east of Hamilton, is a prominent mining town in Robinson District. A large number of veins of metal-bearing ore have been found, and partly developed, and considerable business is carried on. The character of the ore believed to be the most valuable is base, being an argenticous galena to be reduced by smelting. Copper ores are also found, and immense masses of hematite iron ore crown many of the hills. The district appears to be of great value, but developments are slow.

Mineral Hill, Elko Co, P O 63 miles s w of Elko, and 35 miles southeast of Palisade on the Central Pacific Railroad. This was a very active mining town a few years ago and two large and costly mills were built, but the rich body of ore was exhausted and the place declined. The Eureka and Palisade (narrow-gauge) Railroad runs near the place, affording ready means of travel and transportation. Formerly, this was in Elko County, but by Act of the Legislature of 1874, the strip of country taking in the line of the E. & P. R. R., and including Mineral Hill, was annexed to Eureka.

Mountain City, Elko Co, P O 85 miles north of Elko, in Cope Mining District, a mining locality where the developments promise encouragingly. A stage line is established from Elko, carrying the express and passengers, and the town bears the impress of busy enterprise. This was the first town in the extreme northern section of the State, now promising to rival the oldest mining locality in wealth. Cornucopia, Bull Run, Bruno, Capital, and Murray are neighboring districts, each indicating that the diffusion of the precious metals is wide spread. The Owyhee, a beautiful mountain stream, runs along the front of the town, and separates it from Placertown, where there is a large quartz mill.

Nye County. Bounded north by Churchill, Lander, and White Pine, east by the Territory of Utah and Lincoln County, south by Lincoln, and southwest and west by the State of California and Esmeralda. Area, 21,200 square miles. Assessed valuation of property for 1874, $1,686,265. County seat, Belmont. Principal towns: Carrolton (or Hot Creek), Tione, Jefferson, Morey, Reveille, Tybo, and Toiyabe City (or Ophir Cañon). Nye is at present the largest county in the State, which of itself is the best evidence that its resources are undeveloped, or it would be populated and made into several. Its distance from the great lines of travel is a serious obstacle to advancement, and unusual wealth must be shown to induce emigration. The northern portion, extending from Esmeralda County to the Utah line, north of Lincoln, near 200 miles in length by 70 in width, as far as explorations have been made, is the most valuable part. Its surface is composed of regularly alternating mountains and valleys, running northerly and southerly, containing little of the totally barren desert. The mountain ranges from the
