Cache County. Organized in 1856. Bounded north by Idaho Territory, east by Rich, south by Weber, and west by Box Elder. Area, 700 square miles. Assessed valuation of property for 1870, $1,020,086. County seat, Logan. Principal towns, Hyde Park, Paradise, and Wellsville. The County embraces Cache Valley, which extends north into Idaho, and is one of the best agricultural and grazing sections of Utah. The valley is one complete meadow, of excellent soil, well watered by mountain streams, and capable of supporting 200,000 inhabitants. Timber grows in the cañons of the bordering mountains, and coal is supposed to exist. Cache, or Muddy Creek, flows northerly through the valley, joining Bear River in the northwestern part. The Utah Northern Railroad runs, for twenty miles, through the northern part of the county, passing the towns of Logan and Hyde Park, to Franklin, in Idaho.

Officers: Milton D. Hammond, Probate Judge; James A. Leishman, Clerk; A. K. Cranney, Prosecuting Attorney; Alvin Crockett, Sheriff; George L. Farfeli, Recorder; Thomas B. Cardon, Auditor; Joel Ricks, Treasurer; W. B. Preston, Tax Collector and Assessor; James H. Martineau, Surveyor; C. O. Card, Coroner; Samuel Roskelly, Superintendent Public Schools.

Camp Douglas, Salt Lake Co, P O address, Salt Lake City, is a United States military post, situated on the "bench," or upland, two miles east of the city. It is well laid out, and the buildings are neatly built and tastefully arranged, affording quarters for 3,000 troops. The locality was happily chosen, giving it a commanding position and an extended and beautiful view of the city below, the broad valley, and the great lake in the distance.

Corinne, Box Elder Co, P O and incorporated town of fifteen hundred inhabitants, 6 miles west of Brigham City, and 44 miles northwest of Salt Lake City, is on the Central Pacific Railroad at the crossing of Bear River. The river enters Great Salt Lake a few miles south of the town, and is navigable for light-draft steamers to this point, one such craft being engaged on these waters. Corinne is a production of the Pacific Railroad, and being eligibly situated for trade, has rapidly grown into importance. Here is the depot for transhipment of goods and passengers to Idaho and Montana, and to surrounding localities. It bears the distinction of being a "Gentile" town, whereas all the other places of Utah are chiefly occupied and under the control of Mormons. One newspaper, the Corinne Mail, is published daily.
