A Great Industrial Army Needed at Home

Young men under military age and all young women from sixteen to thirty-five can find immediate employment in any of the following professions:

|                  |                        |                     |
|------------------|------------------------|---------------------|
| Stenography      | Mechanical Engineering | Wireless Telegraphy |
| Bookkeeping      | Civil Engineering      | Machine Shop        |
| Morse Telegraphy | Electrical Engineering | Multigraphing       |
|                  | Automobile Engineering |                     |

"Our country needs from ten to twenty millions of skilled workers at home," says Frederick C. Howe, U. S. Commissioner, "to make effective the army it puts in the field."

If you cannot join the ranks of those on the firing line, you can still serve just as patriotically, just as honorably in the great army of skilled workers, by preparing for service in the Field of Business or Industry.

A MAXIMUM PRODUCTION WITH MAXIMUM PRICES

The operation of the law of supply and demand has reached a condition in this country never before known—an unlimited demand with the highest prices for all commodities. This means an increased volume of business, an increased demand for trained men and women in every department of commercial activity; increased opportunities.

Mechanics of all kinds are in great demand. Stenographers were never before in such demand as at the present. This college could locate one hundred good stenographers during the next sixty days. Wireless Operators, Railroad Telegraphers must be trained by the hundreds. Bookkeepers and office assistants are scarce, and so a is absolutely required.

The Polytechnic College is in reality a University of Business and Technical Training. It specializes; it concentrates; its courses are intensified; it eliminates the frills and fads—the "side lines," and goes straight to the fundamentals—and its graduates straight to success.
