

A Journal for Men and Women.

CHARLOTTE PERKINS STETSON, Editor.

HELEN CAMPBELL and PAUL TYNER, Associate Editors.

GEORGE T. GADEN, Business Manager.

Published Every Saturday at 819 Market Street, San Francisco,

By THE IMPRESS COMPANY.

A Weekly Review of human activity, and a faithful exponent of the higher faith in Art and Literature, Science and Politics, Education and the Home. The week's happenings summarized and related. Live issues clearly and candidly handled in paragraph and essay.

The Home Paper. --The home to-day is not only a synonym for sentiment, but for science. THE IMPRESS will give its readers the newest thought and highest truth on this great question of Household Economics, on all that pertains not only to the peace and purity of the home, but also to the sanitary, culinary, decorative, and all other phases of the world's greatest industry--the Art of Living.

Live Literature. --THE IMPRESS seeks above all not only to speak of, but to BE the best literature of the day; to represent within its limits as a specific form, the art of journalism; in short, to practice what it preaches. Its poetry and fiction, satire and humor, are new, genuine and strong.

SUBSCRIPTION TERMS.

Two dollars a year, postpaid to all parts of the United States and Canada; for other countries in the Postal Union, one dollar additional to cover foreign postage. Sample copies sent free on application.

RATES FOR ADVERTISING.

Outside page, $50; half page, $28; quarter page $15, each insertion. Inside pages, one dollar an inch each insertion. A column, $12; a page, $30. School and College, Professional and "Want" advertisements, ten cents per agate line (15 lines to the inch) each insertion. Liberal discounts on yearly and half-yearly contracts.

No advertisement of a doubtful or objectionable nature will be inserted in THE IMPRESS at any price. The advertising usefulness of the paper is distinctive and genuine. Space will be given only to trustworthy and high-class advertisements. THE IMPRESS in its monthly form has already had a successful career of two years' publication, gaining a high reputation for character and literary ability, and an excellent circulation among thinking people on the Pacific Coast. This circulation has been steadily increased and extended since the enlargement and improvement of THE IMPRESS as a weekly.