

The TEL-ELECTRIC PIANO PLAYER

An Old Love Song

WITHIN the heart of every piano there lies dormant the power to make home so attractive that outside temptations lose their force.

Melodies long forgotten, familiar in by-gone days, conjure up peaceful recollections of boyhood and girlhood, softening in a measure the effect of the modern struggle for existence.

The songs that mother used to sing, the quaint ballad of Tom Moore and his contemporaries with their haunting melodies and verses, overflowing with simple sentiment make for contentment and nullify the desire for constant nerve-stimulating excitement.
