

Adams Robert, laborer, Livermore.

ADAMS W. G., house mover, res cor 9th and Market, Oakland.

ADDISON THOS., laborer, San Leandro.

Adolphe O., laborer, San Leandro.

Adrin V., physician, Oakland.

Agar Mark, gen. merchandise and station agent, Sunol.

Agaro S., farmer, Washington township.

Agusier F., farmer, Oakland.

Aiken Miss A. E., teacher, Oakland Seminary, Oakland.

Ainsley Geo. P., carriage trimmer (Northey & McGrath), Brooklyn.

Akerly Rev. Benjamin, rector, St. John's Episcopal Ch, cor 8th and Grove, res Adeline, Oakland.

Akerman A. E., painter, Alvarado.

ALAMEDA.—This very pretty town, containing 1,200 inhabitants, is the western terminus of the San Francisco and Alameda Railroad. It is situated on the eastern shore of San Francisco Bay, or more properly on a point extending into the Bay, south of San Antonio. Ferry boats make one trip every two hours between this place and San Francisco. It takes its pretty Spanish name, which signifies a shaded walk, from that which makes the town so attractive, its beautiful groves of evergreen oaks. Large parties often emerge from the San Francisco fogs to enjoy this grateful shade and ramble in the parks, which have been laid out for their accommodation. Alameda supports a weekly paper—the Encinal.

Alameda County Medical Association, Broadway, bet 8th and 9th, Oakland.

Alvarada L., laborer, Brooklyn township.

Albert Hugh, laborer, res cor 8th and Webster, Oakland.

Albertson John, laborer, Haywards.

Alden R. C., res 4th, bet Harrison and Webster, Oakland.