The average attendance during the current session, is 65 pupils. Ancient and modern languages, with the higher classical studies, are taught as in other graduating institutions. There are at present, seven professors. Rev. A. Maraschi, S. J., who is at the head of the establishment, is also general agent for Santa Clara College, Santa Clara, California. A large structure for the better accommodation of the pupils, is in contemplation. This is the first college ever chartered in the city of San Francisco. Location, Market Street near Stockton.

UNIVERSITY OF THE PACIFIC.

Medical Department. — Faculty: J. Morison, M. D., Professor of Pathology and of the Principles and Practice of Medicine; Isaac Rowell, M. D., Professor of Chemistry; R. Beverly Cole, M. D., Professor of Physiology and of Obstetrics and Diseases of Women and Children; E. S. Cooper, M. D., Professor of Anatomy and Surgery; B. R. Carman, M. D., Professor of Materia Medica; Hon. Geo. Barstow, Professor of Medical Jurisprudence.

This medical college is established upon a firm basis, and has already a larger class than similar institutions have generally had for the first session in the older States. The college has six professorships, and lectures are being given with the greatest degree of regularity.

San Francisco has several advantages over any other city in the United States for the permanent establishment of a flourishing Medical College. Its climate is equally adapted to dissections at all seasons of the year, giving the student an advantage in that respect which cannot be enjoyed at any other place on the globe.

There is probably no city of the size of San Francisco in which the same number of important surgical operations are constantly being performed, which is an important feature, and calculated to advance the interests of medical teaching here. The habits and avocations of our people are such that there is an immense preponderance of casualties, giving rise to the necessity for the performance of surgical operations over other regions of the United States, with the same population. And the medical gentlemen constituting the faculty of this new Medical College appear resolved to make the best use of all the advantages which nature and circumstances have offered in favor of medical teaching in this city.

PRIVATE SCHOOLS.

San Francisco is not only fortunate in the possession of her excellent Public Schools, and in the enjoyment of their blessings, but she has also many flourishing private institutions of a deservedly high character. We note the following which have come under our notice:

SAN FRANCISCO COLLEGE.

Commenced in March, 1854, as the Trinity High School, and was in June of this year organized on its present basis, supplying the necessity of an institution where an University education can be obtained, contiguous to the city, free from any sectarian associations. The College, College Hall and College School are situated on Bush, between Mason and Taylor streets, on a planked road, easy of access from the city, on an eminence commanding an extensive view of the surrounding country. The dwelling-house is commodious, affording ample accommodation for such students as board at the college, with suitable conveniences and comforts. A play-ground inclosing two fifty-vara lots, is attached to the college, with gymnasium for senior and junior pupils. The academical year consists of one session, commencing on the 1st of August, and lasting until the 30th of June. There is a recess of a fortnight at Christmas; also, a week at Easter. The summer vacation takes place in the month of July. The annual examination and exhibition take place every Christmas. There are never less than 80 students in attendance. The course of studies in the several divisions includes the ordinary English branches, Latin, Greek, modern languages, mathematics, drawing, painting, music, etc. There is a well-selected library, and the most complete set of philosophical apparatus in the State, and one of the globes is seven and a half feet in diameter. The whole is under the direction of the Rev. John Chittenden, of St. John's College, Cambridge, England, and of University College, London; A. S. Lowndes, of Oxford University, England; with other professors from the continent for the foreign languages, and others for music, etc. Terms of tuition, with board, are from $30 to $35 per month; without board, from $7½ to $15 per month, payable, the
