

Mr. JOHN TAYLOR, whose card may be found on the opposite page, established his particular branch of business in this city as early as the year 1852. At that time, everything pertaining to a systematic knowledge of the peculiar labors incident to the Prospector and Assayer was as yet comparatively undeveloped, and in an imperfect condition, and the advancement since made in that particular has already become a matter of history. In this connection, we think we can confidently state that there are to be found but few, whose personal efforts have contributed more in facilitating the production of a system, to which in a great measure the industrial and commercial prosperity of this country owes its existence, than the one whose name heads this article. Closely observing and familiarizing himself with the increased wants which each new development in the production and refining of metals created, Mr. Taylor enlarged his facilities accordingly, and his large stock of fixtures and materials in this line is, in itself, complete and fully up with the times.

In addition to the foregoing, Mr. Taylor also keeps a large assortment of Glass Ware, such as is used by Druggists, Perfumers, &c.

---

Messrs. CALLAHAN & SANDERSON would most cordially invite the public to call and inspect their beautiful assortment of Crockery, China, and Glass Ware. Their stock embraces a choice variety of styles, and is unsurpassed by any in the Trade. They are in constant receipt, direct from the New England Glass Company, Boston, of a superior article of Glass Ware, and will supply the same in packages to suit, and at the lowest market rates. Hotel and Boarding House Keepers about to refurnish or furnish anew their houses will do well to call and examine their stock before purchasing elsewhere. Orders from the country promptly filled, and satisfaction warranted.