

This Office has been successfully conducted for nearly nine years by George W. Chapin & Co., having been established under the auspices of the Young Men's Christian Association of San Francisco, and has justly earned the reputation it now bears, of being the only reliable first class Employment Office in the city. Mr. CHARLES S. EATON, the present proprietor, has been connected with the Office for three years, and, by his untiring industry and attention to business, has contributed in a great degree to its present success. The Employment Office is a necessity of all large cities, and when properly conducted is of great service to all classes of the community. It stands in the light of a Business Directory, to which any one may turn, and in a few hours, by the payment of a small fee, secure the information, which otherwise might cost days of anxious search and perplexity. To people residing in the country, especially, it affords an excellent means of securing help in all branches of industry from the surplus population of the city, and to those of all trades and conditions in life, in search of work, it gives employment without that serious loss of time and uncertainty of search which would necessarily result, were no such institution in existence. The proprietor of an INTELLIGENCE OFFICE, too, if he be really intelligent, becomes an excellent reader of character, and can often tell you what you want better than you can yourself. Mr. Eaton combines in himself all the requisites for the successful management of an establishment of this kind; he is well known in this community as a prompt, honest, careful and energetic business man. He has been also fortunate in securing the services of Mr. D. W. FOLGER as assistant in the office, and the public generally, both employer and employed, may rely upon being honestly and courteously dealt with at their hands. We cordially recommend them to the public patronage.
