

Mr. E. AYERS, whose card appears on the opposite page, offers to those in want of that most indispensable article of all household furniture—a good and economical stove—inducements nowhere to be met with. We refer to the “AMERICAN HOT AIR GAS-BURNING COOKING STOVE,” for which Mr. Ayers is the Agent for California. Though keeping on hand Cooking Stoves of other make and patterns, of which we would mention those bearing the distinguishing titles of Black Knight, Empire State, and Henry Clay, yet the American Hot Air Stove, as mentioned above, stands prominent in usefulness over all others, and of which Mr. Ayers makes a speciality in his business. Of its peculiar merits our space will not permit us to speak at length, further than to say that it is beyond question the best Family Cooking Stove now in use in the United States.

Mr. Ayers also keeps on hand every size and style of Monitor Ranges, Box and Parlor Stoves, together with a large assortment of Tin-Ware, including Lard and Fruit Cans. His facilities for the manufacture of Copper and Sheet Iron Work of all descriptions are unsurpassed by any house in the business.

Mr. N. P. LANGLAND, Stair Builder, &c., corner of Beale and Market streets, has been carrying on his particular branch of business since 1858, and many is the passage way, both winding and straight, during that time, that he has constructed from one floor to the other, in a large portion of the stores and dwellings of our city. Mr. Langland also has wood-turning and scroll sawing connected with his establishment, and is prepared to execute every kind and description of work in those branches satisfactorily to all. The machinery employed is of the best kind, which, with his long experience in the business, gives to him facilities for turning out work, in class and quality, unsurpassed by any other establishment in San Francisco. Parties entrusting work to his care can rely on its being executed promptly and in a workmanlike manner.
