

The House of Hobart, Dunbar, & Co., Importers and Wholesale Dealers in Boots and Shoes, at No. 223 California street, San Francisco, was established in the year 1852, under the style and firm name of Hobart & Boyle, and so continued until January, 1858, when, Mr. Boyle retiring, it was continued under the name of Hobart, Brother, & Co., and the business carried on under that name until the first day of January, 1864, when the then existing firm was dissolved by mutual consent, Mr. Joseph Hobart retiring, and the new firm began its existence, and is composed of Benjamin Hobart, Jnr., resident partner in San Francisco, and Wm. H. Dunbar, resident partner in Boston, Mass., under the style and firm name of Hobart, Dunbar & Co., in San Francisco, and Dunbar, Hobart & Co., in Boston, Mass.

We keep a general assortment of all kinds and qualities of goods in our line of business, received by every steamer and clipper ship, direct from the manufacturers at Boston, Philadelphia, and other Eastern cities.

Our stock comprises in great variety every description of Ladies', Misses', Children's, and Men's Wear, and consists in part of the celebrated make of Godfrey, Fogg & Houghton, Reed, Underwood & Walker, Wing, Bowker, Benkert, &c., &c.; also all the first class Philadelphia and Eastern make of Ladies', Misses', and Children's Goods, with a full assortment of articles necessary for the Mexican trade, to which we would solicit the attention of those wishing to purchase, feeling confident, from our long experience in the trade and great facilities, that we can supply our customers at the very lowest market rates with all the various qualities and styles of goods in our line, equal, if not superior, to any other House in this State.

HOBART, DUNBAR & CO.