Colleges and Private Schools.

Notwithstanding the excellence of the free public schools of the city and State, their exemption from direct cost to the pupil or parent, and the great interest taken in them by the public as the nurse and strength of our free institutions, colleges and private schools of great wealth, popularity and importance rise and prosper. That such institutions exist, shows the great interest taken in educational matters. The public and private systems are rivals, each stimulating the other, and setting examples of enterprise, management, salaries, edifices, progress and standard of scholarships. There are in San Francisco over one hundred private schools, in which term are included the select school of a few pupils, the seminaries, commercial schools, academies, convent schools, and colleges, with their thousand students.

IRVING INSTITUTE.—A collegiate boarding and day school, located at 1036 Valencia, where young ladies are prepared for the universities, or graduated on completing its full academic course. The buildings afford accommodations for fifty boarding pupils. The attendance of the past year exceeded one hundred and twenty-five. It is now in its fifteenth year, and has an alumni association of nearly one hundred, graduating sixteen each year for the past two years. Rev. Edward B. Church, M. A., Principal.

SACRED HEART COLLEGE.—The Sacred Heart College, located on the corner of Eddy and Larkin streets, is a wooden structure of three stories high and basement, and covering a large portion of the block. This is conducted by the "Christian Brothers," under the direction of Rev. Brother Genebre. The number of students is 700. The object of this institution is to give a thoroughly Christian and secular education, embracing the classical, scientific and commercial courses.

PRESENTATION CONVENT.—Powell street, between Greenwich and Lombard. This convent was established in 1854 for the free education of boys and girls. It is regularly attended by five hundred children. The classes are divided into eight grades, besides the three years course for the graduates. Music, painting, needlework and the modern languages are taught as extras for a very moderate fee. The Presentation Sisters are the teachers, and the present Superior is Mother Mary Josephine.

SACRED HEART PRESENTATION CONVENT.—The Sacred Heart Presentation Convent is a fine brick building of ample proportions, located at the corner of Taylor and Ellis streets. This is a chartered college by act of the Legislature and empowered to confer graduating certificates. The school is free of charge to all denominations. It was opened on the 24th of May, 1869, and the number of pupils increasing, made it necessary to enlarge the building, and in 1870 the portion fronting on Ellis street was added. Later on a wing within the enclosure was built, to afford more ample facilities for the improvement of pupils in music, needlework, painting, drawing, etc. The institution contains about five hundred pupils and a teaching staff of nineteen Sisters, and is under the charge of Mother Mary Josephine, Superior of the Presentation Order in this City.

ST. IGNATIUS COLLEGE.—The St. Ignatius College located on the west side of Van Ness avenue, and extending from Hayes to Grove streets, ranks among the oldest and most prominent of the colleges of San Francisco, opening for the reception of students on October 15, 1855. It was incorporated under the law of the State April 30, 1859, and empowered to confer degrees and academical honors. The number of students usually in attendance is upwards of 600, with a staff of 27 professors and teachers. The college edifice consists of two main buildings, connected by spacious corridors. On the corner of Grove and
