

AYDELOTTE'S Business College, Y. M. C. A. BUILDING, Oakland, Cal.

A THOROUGH Commercial Training School, up to date in every particular. Fine rooms in a new building, which were arranged expressly for the school. Young men and women thoroughly fitted for positions or equipped for their own management of their own business. There are pupils in this school from California, Nevada, Oregon, Washington, Idaho, and Montana. Its graduates are scattered all over the Pacific Coast; in the Banks and Railroad offices of San Francisco, Express and Post Offices, Commission houses, and in every line of business from the largest houses to the retail shops.

The four departments, Commercial, Shorthand, Telegraphy and English, include every subject that is usually taught in the modern Business College.

Oakland offers many inducements to the student. Its equable climate, its beautiful homes and its general surroundings make it an ideal school town, and it is the educational center of the Pacific Coast. It is a thriving city of 60,000 inhabitants, and is connected by a veritable net-work of cable and electric street railways with all the suburban towns and contiguous districts, reaching by electric line as far as Haywards, ten miles away. Berkeley, the seat of the State University, and Alameda, across the Estuary, both little cities of 10,000, are within a few minutes' ride from Oakland. Cars pass the college doors.

GENERAL INFORMATION.

There are no vacations. Pupils can enter at any time. Those not sufficiently advanced for the regular course can enter the English Department for a while and coach up. Individual instruction for all. Punctuality and regular attendance insisted on. Strict discipline and a close watch of the student's progress. Board and room can be had in the city at $5.00 and upwards per week. We do not promise or guarantee positions for our graduates, but we do all we can for them in this regard. We are constantly putting students into positions. Business men frequently call at the College for help. No extra charge for any branch taught in the college. $100 for 1 year, or $60 for six months, pays for any combination of studies. Books and stationery for the Commercial course cost from $15 to $20. Further information may be had by addressing the Proprietor and Manager,
