

Taiwan

island province of the Republic of China
The fabulous National Palace Museum in Taipei houses the world's greatest single collection of Chinese art treasures, including 4,402 bronzes.

The museum is one of the countless reasons why no trip to or through the Orient is complete without a visit to Taiwan. Among other reasons are: The reflection of China's glorious cultural heritage not only in the priceless relics of the past, but in the everyday life of the people—in their manners, customs, and traditions.

The comfort of luxury hotels. Moderate prices which give the traveler better value for the dollar.

The legendary loveliness of an evergreen island that the enraptured 16th century Portuguese travelers christened "Ilha Formosa" (Beautiful Island). The undisputed fact that Taipei is the gastronomic capital of the world in Chinese cuisine. Airline stopovers can be made in Taiwan without extra passage fare. All the listed and unlisted reasons point to one irresistible conclusion:

IN THINKING OF TRAVEL, THINK OF TAIWAN

And remember: stopovers in Taiwan involve no extra air fare. For further information please contact your travel agent or write to:
