MR. WILLIAM A. WIELAND

DEDICATION

Although he is officially spoken of as the Dean of Boys, if we, the students, were to give him a title, it would undoubtedly be "Friend".

Through his understanding and confidence in us, George Washington High School has truly been developed into a cooperative student body.

We only hope we may live up to the trust he has given us. As a small token of our appreciation, we dedicate this book to him — to Mr. William A. Wieland, our friend.

MISS KIRWIN

Although busy teaching history courses and playing the part of senior registry teacher, Miss Marie Kirwin has successfully guided the first three classes of graduates from George Washington High School in her capacity of Senior Sponsor. Miss Kirwin, who is the head of the George Washington history department, has taught at this school for the full two and one-half years of its existence. Before coming here she taught civics and economics at Mission High School.

When not busy teaching, Miss Kirwin takes a great deal of pleasure in gardening and traveling. She has traveled extensively through the United States and Canada.

MR. RIPLEY

Mr. Ripley has taught at George Washington High School since it opened. In addition to teaching physics, he is busy in sponsoring school clubs. Being sponsor of the Camera Club and in charge of the Movie Operators takes up most of his spare time.

Upon his graduation from the University of California, Mr. Ripley went to Sacramento where he taught science and mathematics.

He is interested in traveling and as a result has enjoyed the scenic wonders of both Canada and Mexico.

Mr. Ripley's favorite sport is tennis, while he enjoys photography as his hobby.

MISS COOK

Miss Jane Cook, who came to George Washington in August, 1937, teaches journalism, English, and history.

Before coming to Washington she taught journalism at Laton High School in Fresno County. She received her degree of Master of Arts at Stanford University and since then has worked on newspapers as well as taught school. While in college she worked on school publications.

Her main interest is in newspaper work, but her outside interests are painting, horseback riding, piano playing, and tennis.

Since coming to George Washington, Miss Cook has sponsored the publication of all three journals and has been faculty advisor for the last fourteen "Eagles."

MR. CUMMINGS' MESSAGE

You Can't Miss It:

In traveling through unfamiliar lands one needs to stop occasionally to ask directions and establish his bearings. Almost always, after he has been set right and his way made clear, the traveler receives this parting assurance, something like a benediction: "You can't miss it."

You Seniors have reached the first important stop sign on your journey toward the distant reaches ahead. The green signal will flash soon and you will be on your way.

Let this Surveyor go with you as a constant reminder of the faith and fellowship of the friends recorded in its pages. These friends know that the road you have chosen will lead you onward from horizon to horizon of achievement:

YOU CAN'T MISS IT.

MR. WIELAND'S MESSAGE

To the Class of December, 1938, Hail and Farewell! Just five short terms ago we greeted you upon the opening of a new school. Now we bid you farewell as graduates. As you leave, you have our best wishes, and our hope that from your stay at George Washington High School, you take with you a storehouse of pleasant memories, a band of staunch friends, the consciousness of a common task well done in the upbuilding of this school, and increased fitness to confront the next task that awaits you. You leave as a legacy to this school your splendid spirit, the fine example that you have set for future generations of students. For these, the school thanks you. May success and happiness be your portion.

MISS JACKSON'S MESSAGE

To the members of the December '38 Class:

You have used well the opportunities for education that the community, through this school, has offered you. Because you have done so, you have carried on in an excellent way the work that lies before all of us, that of continually striving to make George Washington High School a better and better place in which to be. For your great share in this "Building" process we all are grateful. The sense of responsibility towards yourselves, your homes, and your school — this quality has made your achievement possible — gives inspiring promise for the future. Our regret in having to see you go from us is lightened by our joy in your accomplishment and by our faith in you that you can and will continue to "build" for yourselves and others, wherever you may be.

STUDENT BODY OFFICERS

Under the leadership of David LeBaron, twice president of the Eagle Society and football quarterback, the George Washington Student Body has been an active association.

The social activities were handled by Vice-president Janet Wheeler and Secretary Mary Trussell. Both girls were members of the Girls' Service Society.

The student body card drive was handled by Treasurer Tom Trent. Selling over 1950 student body cards, the sales were very successful.

The school trophies were kept glistening by the custodian, Leonard Neumann. Elliott Parker was athletic manager. Peppy yell leader Frank Lawler, assisted by Bill Cramer and Mel Petievich, accounted for many successful rallies held this term, by clever dancing and leading of school songs.

The third "Hello Day" at George Washington High School was under the direction of Janet Wheeler this term. The day of signing cards was climaxed by a dance in the afternoon. Those aiding Janet were David LeBaron, Helen Blum, Stewart Gross, Jean Giddens, Robert LeBaron, and Bernice Praetzel.

Other activities were the dance given the winning class of the student body contest, the Thanksgiving Tin Can Dance, which was open to only those who brought a can of food for the benefit of needy families, the Girls' Service Society and the Eagle Society dance, and a dance held in the honor of the football team.

Celebrities such as John B. Hughes, radio news reporter; Bob Brachman, sports' writer for the Examiner; and Bob Stevens, sports' writer for the Chronicle, were among the notables who attended the rallies this term.

Class activities included a high senior "Book Day," a low senior "Pioneer Day," a junior "Hey Day," and a sophomore "Clean-up Day."

EXECUTIVE COMMITTEE

The Executive Committee, presided over by the president of the student body, is the most important committee of our school. Elected members from each registry represent their class at the meetings.

These student body officers, who are elected by student body members the term preceding their occupancy of the office, handle all the social and financial matters of the school. The meetings, which are held every other Tuesday, are needed to appropriate necessary money for school activities and organizations, to propose new amendments for the school constitution, to take charge of all school elections, to discuss issues for the improvement of the school, and to grant awards and honors.

This term when President Dave LeBaron was absent, Vice-president Janet Wheeler presided. Secretary Mary Trussell kept a written record of the doings of the committee.

The faculty advisor is Mr. W. A. Wieland.

Executive Committee members for the Fall Term, 1938, include the following: Gus Eliopolous, Shop 1; Leon Demetrios, Shop 3; Virgil Revie, Shop 4; Martin Keith, Shop 5; Myrtle Barger, 102; Yolanda Gomez, 103; Margaret Deakin, 104; Pat Henkel, 105; Anita Welt, 106; Betty DeLu, 107; Loretta Roger, 111; Shirley Graubart, 115; George Goodwin, 121; Dorothy Harris, 122; Sadye Pinkus, 123; Harold Caro, 127.

Upholding its everlasting aims of service to the school, the Eagle Society has completed its fifth successful term since it was first organized in the Fall of 1936 by Mr. Lloyd Leith.

Clyde LaVerne has led the Society in many activities as president, with the assistance of Bob LeBaron, president of the low seniors, serving as vice-president, and Bob Barsocchini serving as secretary.

CLYDE LAVERNE, President

The duties of the Eagle Society, as they have been in the past, are to maintain order at the rallies and dances, and this term, to assist the yell-leaders with the rooting section seating at the football games.

Membership of the club is limited to twenty-two. After each member has submitted the names of three candidates, who must fill the scholarship and citizenship requirements, the Society votes in enough new members to fill the vacancies left by the graduating members.

Eagle Society members leaving school this term are Barkef Kenchelian, Fred Leuenberger, Winston Halley, David Hunicke, David LeBaron, Stewart Gross, and Norman Lazarus.

The Eagle Society's main activity this term was a dance held at the Presidio Junior High gymnasium, in conjunction with the Girls' Service Society, with the student body as guests. The Society has been the guests of the juniors, sophomores, and seniors, at several of the class dances.

Under the diligent leadership of Bernice Praetzel, president, the Girls' Service Society led the student body in raising the standard of service at George Washington to higher levels than ever before. The earnest desire of each member to do her utmost in the field of service to Washington prompted every girl to accept every duty without the slightest hesitation. Frances Young and Adele Ohe filled the offices of vice-president and secretary, respectively.

Under the sponsorship of Miss Eleanor Jackson, girls' vice-principal, this organization admits only girls who have shown that they are capable and have done some service to the school.

Main activities of the Society were keeping order in the halls, in rallies, keeping the school grounds clean, and helping other girls. This term a dinner for the alumni members was held.

New members who were added this term were Martha McLaughlin, Yolanda Gomez, Mary Mangan, Eleanor Langpaap, Louise Jacobs, and Jean Weatherbe. The members who are graduating are Janet Wheeler, Mary Trussell, Roschelle Paul, Jean Cramer, Helen Blum, Bernice Praetzel, Adele Ohe, Frances Young, and Adah Parker, all of whom have taken prominent parts in student body activities.

The other members who will carry on with the new members are Erma Everett and Louise Payne.

HIGH SENIORS

President Fred Leuenberger, Vice-president Roschelle Paul, Secretary Jean Cramer, and Treasurer Stewart Gross, led the high senior class in many of the school activities for this term.

The important functions of the graduating class were the Senior-Sophomore Reception, the giving of "Fly Away Home," first senior play to be given at George Washington, "Book Day," in which all high seniors dressed as characters of books, two rallies, one for the senior play and one for "Book Day," and a graduation dance at the end of the term, held at a large San Francisco hotel.

The proceeds from "Fly Away Home" made it possible for the senior class to hold its dance at a very low cost.

LOW SENIORS

Under the guidance of Robert LeBaron, President; Dolores Cook, Vice-president; and Phyllis Anderson, Secretary; the low seniors, the largest class in the school, played an important part in the various activities.

The main feature of the class was "Pioneer Day." Dressing in clothes that their great grandparents wore, students made a successful affair out of it. A dance held in the library completed the festivities of the day.

The project for the low seniors was to try to improve the conduct of the students in the classrooms.

Truly distinctive are the sweaters of this future graduating class. The boys have chosen grey sweaters and the girls, white.

The class was second in the student body card contest.

HIGH JUNIORS

Prominent in student activities the past term was the high junior class, under the capable leadership of President Louise Payne, also a member of the Girls' Service Society; Vice-president Jean Weatherbe; and Secretary Phyllis Shane.

The main activity of the term was "Hey Day" held in conjunction with the low junior class. The students were entitled to wear anything they pleased from a Groucho Marx costume to baby sister's dress. Taking advantage of this privilege, the juniors made "Hey Day" more than successful.

LOW JUNIORS

President Marjorie Hunter, Vice-president Betty Verleger, and Secretary Tom Schibusch were responsible for the success of this term's low junior class.

In October, the junior class's "Hey Day" completely turned the school into a day of fun for everyone. The entire junior class, including high juniors, wore many different colorful costumes. A dance was held in the library to complete the activities.

HIGH SOPHOMORES

Capably led by their officers, Fred Lear, President; Margaret Deakin, Vice-president; and Barbara Keith, Secretary; the high sophomores have completed their first full year at George Washington with a number of activities accomplished.

A sophomore "Clean-up Day," the semi-annual event of the sophomore class, was held. The purpose was to clean the premises, thereby improving the school's appearance. A prize was given to the registry which cleaned its section the best. A Clean-up dance was held in one of the shops.

The project of this class for this term was Safety.

LOW SOPHOMORES

Although leading the youngest class in the school, President John Contos, Vice-president Doris Glazer, and Secretary Ruth Maltzer can certainly be proud of the achievements the low sophomores have completed this semester.

As the award for the first 100 per cent student body card class, they were given a dance, at which members of the Eagle Society, G.S.S., student body officers, and the football team were their guests. On "Clean-up Day," they with the high sophomores were awarded a dance.

The low sophomores were also entertained by the high seniors in the semi-annual Senior-Sophomore Reception.

ORGANIZATIONS

Senior Curtain Calls

You keep out of this, Professor . . . We want to see James! . . . Gettin' my breathin' relegated to my sub-conscious . . . You love me, Corey?

One of the most successful doings of the December graduating class was the presentation of "Fly Away Home," the first senior play ever given here.

Given in three acts, the play concerns the four Masters children, ranging in age from fourteen to nineteen, who are enjoying the early weeks of their summer sojourn at Provincetown. Without much enthusiasm but with indulgent good humor toward the doings of their elders, they are looking forward to the marriage of their mother to the professor who has for years summered in the cottage next door. Then word comes that their mother, who is just completing the last two weeks of her contract as dress designer in a Hollywood motion picture studio, has invited their own father to visit them and make arrangements for a divorce. They haven't seen him for twelve years and they are determined he shall not treat them like children.

They know he has been separated from their mother because he was inclined to be "bossy" and they decide in advance they "won't let him get away with a thing." James Masters, the father, comes, and the children, keeping their promise, let go at their father with both guns. Mr. Masters, however, isn't such a bad sort, as the children soon find out, and in his own way tries to fix things up. The play comes to a climax with Mr. and Mrs. Masters realizing the folly of their divorce.

The players were as follows: James Masters, Norman Lazarus; Nan Masters, Wanda Brown; Corey Masters, Frank Lawler; Linda Masters, Marguerite Cornils; Buff Masters, Audrey Tracey; Harmer Masters, Norman Franks; Armand Sloan (the Professor), Ronald White; Johnny Heming, Robert Cole; Penny, Adah Parker; Maria, Francis Diaz; Tinka Collingsby, Barbara Payne; Gabriel, Ernest Coccary; and the taxi driver, Philip Waxman.

Mr. Arthur B. Gleditzsch, dramatics instructor, directed the play, assisted by Jack Buchanan and John Mowbray. The production staff consisted of Fred Leuenberger, production manager; Roschelle Paul, business manager; Andrew Lerios, publicity manager; Irmajane Reichert and Mary Trussell, sales managers; Stanley Gilbert and Richard Rooke, art managers; Barbara Chisholm, property manager; Janet Hampton, make-up manager; Alan Samuel, stage manager; and Betty Goldberg, prompt girl.

Mr. Gleditzsch and the cast are to be complimented for the excellent performance given under unfavorable conditions. The cast was unable to rehearse on a stage until a week before the play was to be enacted. Forced to rehearse in school rooms and a social room, the cast worked doubly hard to put "Fly Away Home" over.

First proposed by High Senior President Fred Leuenberger, to raise money for the graduation dance, the idea was enthusiastically received and soon more than fifty high seniors tried out for parts. The exceptional wealth of talent made it difficult to cast the play and a close race ensued. Director Gleditzsch said, "There was a surprising amount of talent in the class, which made it very difficult for me to decide. I could have filled two or three casts."

THE CAST: Seated: Franks, Tracey, Payne, Mr. Gleditzsch, Brown. Standing: White, Lawler, Waxman, Diaz, Coccary, Parker, Cole, Cornils, Lazarus. But Linda . . . Now Mr. Masters.

By remote control, the orchestra, under the direction of Mr. Marion Knott, has presented many musical programs to the school from Shop 5. The musical background for the Constitution Day program which was presented three times, once at Presidio Junior High School, once over the inter-class room hookup, and the third time over the National Broadcasting hookup, was furnished by this group. The incidental music for George Washington's first senior play was handled by the school orchestra and the music for graduation is the last project on their calendar. The orchestra also furnished music for the Parent-Teacher Association at a recent meeting.

The members follow: violins, Walter Bien, Deirdrellen Dickson, Barbara Dorgan, Ann Eliopoulds, Marjorie Green, Anna Mae Larson, Elkan Thoshinsky, Philip Waxman, and Adele Wiebalk; the basses, Fern Edelstein, Rose Gorman, and Sydney Posner; the drums, Marion Corids and Alma Golita; trombone, Albert Bagot; trumpets, William Gerst and Harrison Scott; piano, Eva Hoffman; viola, Herbert Messer; clarinet, Eugene Threadgall; and horn, Mary Trussell.

R.O.T.C. BAND

ORCHESTRA

MUSIC CLUB

The "Swing Band" a newly formed group, has played for many of the games and rallies. Under the student direction of Bob Gerst, it has swung out many familiar tunes and led the students in the school songs.

Entertaining the students during the extended registries has been the function of the Advanced Girls' Choral group. It has presented many well known selections in clever arrangements. Aiding the group at the piano have been L. Louise Carlton and Roschelle Paul. The choral has also sung at rallies and has entertained the George Washington Parent-Teachers Association with musical selections. At graduation, nine girls from this group, who are graduating, will sing selections. These girls are Wanda Brown, Barbara Chisholm, Norma Clayton, Marguerita Cornils, Marie George, Eleanor James, Alice Nye, Doris Teller, and Virginia Zahn.

The mixed chorus participated in the Constitution Day broadcast furnishing all of the vocal arrangements. It has also sung many times over the inter-class room radio. They will give selections at the graduation exercises. Both the Choral and Mixed Chorus groups are under the direction of Mrs. Myrtle Swanson.

The Music Club, under the leadership of their officers who are Nancy Bagnall, president; Barbara Stevens, vice-president; and Evelyn Frustuck, secretary-treasurer; has done much to discover the individual talent of the students of George Washington. The members are all students who are interested in music. At their meetings they study the modern composers and their works. Community singing is a favorite pastime of these students. This club managed the inter-class musical programs with its president, Nancy Bagnall, acting as mistress of ceremonies.

*The ferry building towers high,
As little "Heavy" dashes by.*

Being the first male editor of the "Surveyor," Larry Schapiro, assisted by Associate Editor Martha McLaughlin, and Miss Jane Cook, faculty advisor, continued, he hopes, the high standard set forth by the staffs of the last two journals.

The financing of the book was efficiently taken care of by Beatrice DuFresne, business manager, and the circulation staff, while the literary staff was composed of Norman Franks, senior editor; Mildred Carter, club editor; Lorna Kreuter, photograph editor; Joe Kozuch, boys' sports editor; Phyllis Anderson, girls' sports editor; Stanley Gilbert, art editor; and Clyde LaVerne, publicity manager.

Numerous persons generously contributed their services, and it is with sincere gratitude that the staff expresses its appreciation for the assistance that has been rendered it: to Miss Marie Kirwin, for her consideration; to Miss Eleanor Parsons, for her financial assistance; to Mr. Rufus Balaam and his advertising and salesmanship classes; and to Mrs. L. M. Herrick and Mr. J. H. Ripley for their help with photographs.

With an excellent editor in the person of Martha McLaughlin at the head of a capable staff, a new high was reached in the accomplishment of the Eagle during the past semester. Following the trend of the day, streamlining headlined the improvements of the paper.

Assisting in the putting out of the Eagle were Walter Minner, associate editor, and Claire Koenig, business manager. Dividing their time between the Surveyor and the Eagle were Joe Kozuch and Norman Franks, boys' sports editor and circulation manager, respectively. G.A.A. activities and girls' sports were covered by Betty Goldberg.

Other members of the staff who contributed to the success of the paper were Mildred Carter, Beatrice DuFresne, Phyllis Anderson, Amos Bechtold, Barbara Cohen, Lorna Kreuter, Larry Schapiro, George Merkle, Arthur Jacobs, Geraldine Johnson, John Mowbray, Albert Grenadier, Jean Hamburger, Dan Creedon, Frances Young, Marie Rozario, Angenette Ferriera, Mary Vant, Harold Bobrow, George Bozmagian, Ben Lashkoff, Wilbur Michelson, Wallace Myers, and Murray Schacht.

The Eagle has become a main factor in preserving the traditionally high Washington spirit, and its value in this respect alone is worth the effort of its monthly publication.

Since the Eagle this year depended largely on sales for financial support, no mention of the paper is complete without due credit being given the sales classes, under Mr. Rufus Balaam's direction, who have handled that end of the business.

Another feature in the school's publications is the newest offspring of the Eagle, The Eaglet, a semi-weekly paper, edited by John Edward and Arthur Blum.

R.O.T.C.

This term the George Washington R.O.T.C. unit, under the direction of faculty instructor Sergeant Feliciano, has had its largest enrollment to date. With the outfit growing, there is no doubt but that Washington will soon have the best unit in the city. A new and much needed addition was made this term when a band was organized. Sergeant Feliciano is optimistic of the success of the band which is under the supervision of Mr. Knott.

The most important event of the R.O.T.C. calendar this term was the Commandant's Cup Competition. The cup is given to the best marching unit in the city. As we go to press, the unit is working hard in preparation for it.

Officers for this term are as follows: Lieutenant Colonel E. Coccary; Major H. Simpson; Second Lieutenant A. Papageorge; Staff sergeants J. Springer, H. Rodrigues, F. Lewis, P. Brookwell, and A. Attolini.

COACHES AND YELL LEADERS

Athletic activities were successful on the whole this term. This success was due not only to the teams which played the games but also to the coaches of these teams and the yell leaders who kept the spirit of the student body high.

The football team, which made its A.A.A. debut this term, was coached by Mr. Charles Schefflin, formerly from Gustine High School. Coach Schefflin's work in developing a great team which upset many of the favorite elevens is commendable. The light-weight basketball teams, which placed high in A.A.A. standings, were coached by Mr. Lloyd Leith, whose record of developing great cage teams is already known.

For the second year, the varsity soccer team was coached by Mr. Sylvester Kelly, and ended up with a fair season. Mr. Arthur Fagin was again head of the Boys' Physical Education department.

Spirit in the school was brought up to the highest level this term, spurred on by the fine guidance of the yell leaders, who were headed by Frank Lawler. Bill Cramer and Milivoy Petievich assisted.

Entering the A.A.A. this season, the Washington Eagles' football team established the greatest record achieved by any first year team in the history of San Francisco prep rivalry. The "fightingest" team in the A.A.A. showed it was to be reckoned with when it lost two heart breakers to St. Ignatius and Commerce. The Eagles came back strong, however, with five consecutive victories to tie for second place.

The underdog in seven of their eight league games, the Eagles gave the experts a nightmare by upsetting team after team.

Not a great team before the season started, the Eagles rose to great heights under the tutorage of Coach Charles Schefflin.

WASHINGTON, 0; COMMERCE, 2

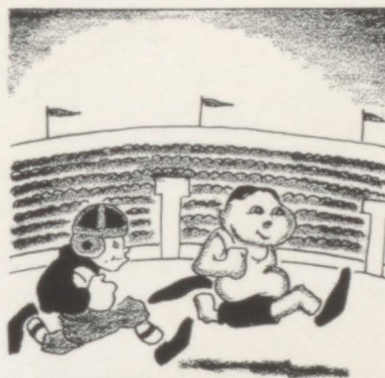

Lady Luck was against the Eagles when they took the field with the Commerce Bulldogs. Losing by a scant safety in their first A.A.A. encounter, the surprising Eagles staved off the Bulldog attack for three quarters. In the last quarter, however, Ingle-dew, Commerce fullback, blocked Bob Chourret's kick in the end zone and the Bulldogs recovered for two points. The Eagles, however, not yet beaten, got a break when Joe Compagno recovered a fumble on the Bulldog 38-yard line. They then marched up to the last white stripe only to be held on four line bucks.

WASHINGTON, 0; ST. IGNATIUS, 6

The Eagle gridders held the Wildcats to a standstill for about 46 minutes, when, with only about two minutes left to play, St. Ignatius shot a prayer pass to a touchdown. The conversion failed but the game was already won. Although losing, Washington gained much needed confidence and experience.

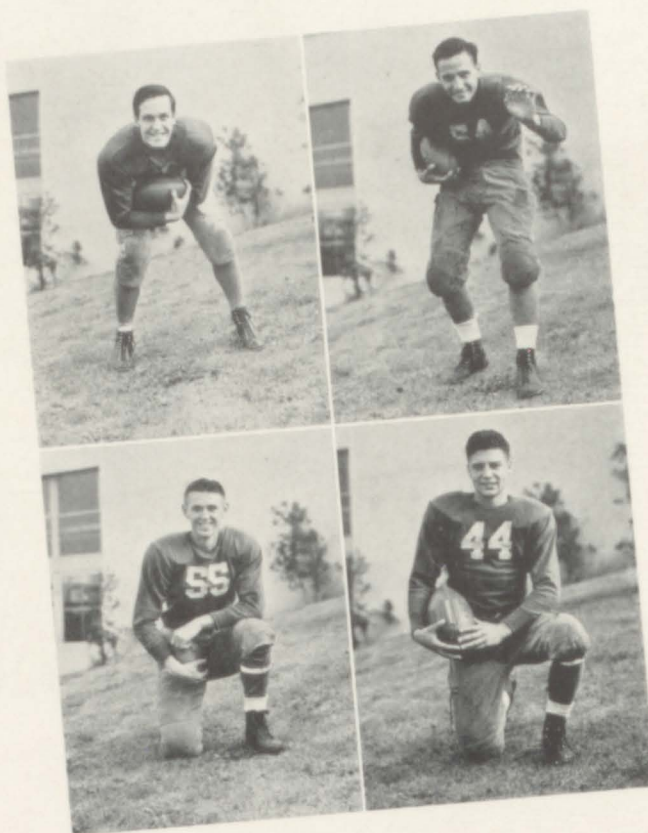

WASHINGTON, 6; BALBOA, 0

Led by tiny Leo Leggett, who dashed to a touchdown for Washington's first league score, the Eagles were successful in holding the Bucs scoreless and thus succeeded in winning their first A.A.A. contest. After the Eagles marched to the Buc 24-yard line, Leo Leggett took the ball and ran to a touchdown to cinch the game.

WASHINGTON, 14; MISSION, 6

After being outplayed and outpowered for three quarters, the Eagle attack began to click in the last six minutes of play. With the Bears leading 6-0, Walt Vodden intercepted a pass and ran 55 yards to the Mission 2-yard line, where Leggett punched over for a touchdown. Dave LeBaron kicked the all-important extra point. A few minutes later, Vodden blocked Klotovich's punt, which by virtue of an Eagle recovery, led to another score with Bob Chourret going over. LeBaron again made good his kick from placement to end the scoring.

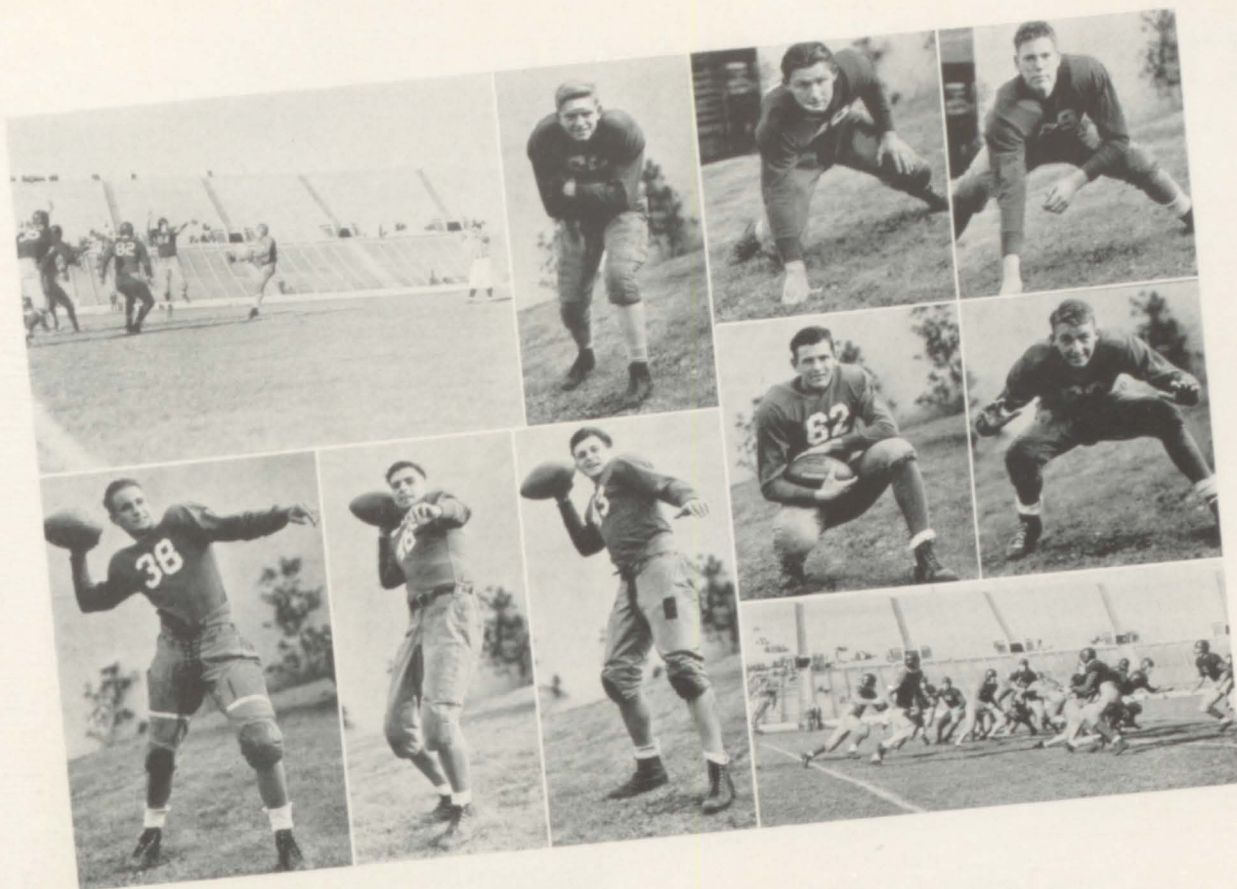

WASHINGTON, 14; POLYTECHNIC, 6

Playing against their former coach, Mr. Joe Verducci, the Eagle varsity, led by the passing of John Spargo, upset the favorite Parrots. The Parrots scored first on an early drive. Washington came back, however, when Spargo completed a long pass to Chourret in the end zone for the first touchdown. In the second half, the Eagles held their own and scored again in the fourth period. LeBaron converted both times.

WASHINGTON, 7; SACRED HEART, 6

In the closest game the Eagles had yet played, the Sacred Heart Irish were narrowly edged out. Ray Neal scored for the Irish early in the third quarter after a scoreless first half. The Eagles, however, rallied after John Spargo passed to "Beanie" Beenfeldt to the Irish 23-yard line. A few plays later, LeBaron powered his over the goal line. Leggett was rushed into the game and held the ball while LeBaron calmly kicked the oval through the uprights to smash the victory hopes of the Irish.

WASHINGTON, 3; LOWELL, 0

In the feature contest of Washington's schedule, the Eagles played their best game of the season. With Leggett, Chourett, and LeBaron overpowering and outguessing the publicized "Gem of a Generation" team throughout the last three quarters, Washington won its fifth straight league victory. The Eagles big chance to score came with ten seconds of time remaining in the game. After Leggett intercepted a desperate Indian pass and ran 43 yards to the Lowell 16, the Eagles lined up to attempt a field goal. Leggett held while LeBaron split the posts with his kick from the 25-yard line to end the game in spectacular style.

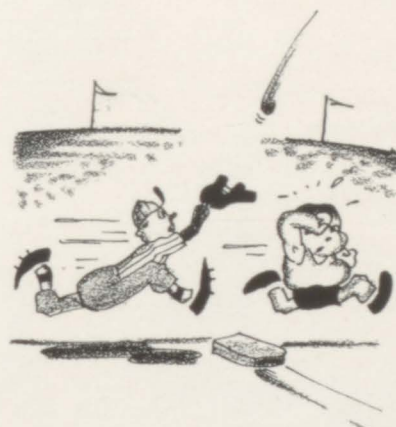

WASHINGTON, 7; GALILEO, 27

Tired and worn out after upsetting the Lowell Indians, the week before, the Eagle varsity succumbed to the champion Galileo Lions.

The first quarter ended scoreless, but late in the second, the Lions successfully engineered a 49 yard drive for a touchdown. The conversion was good.

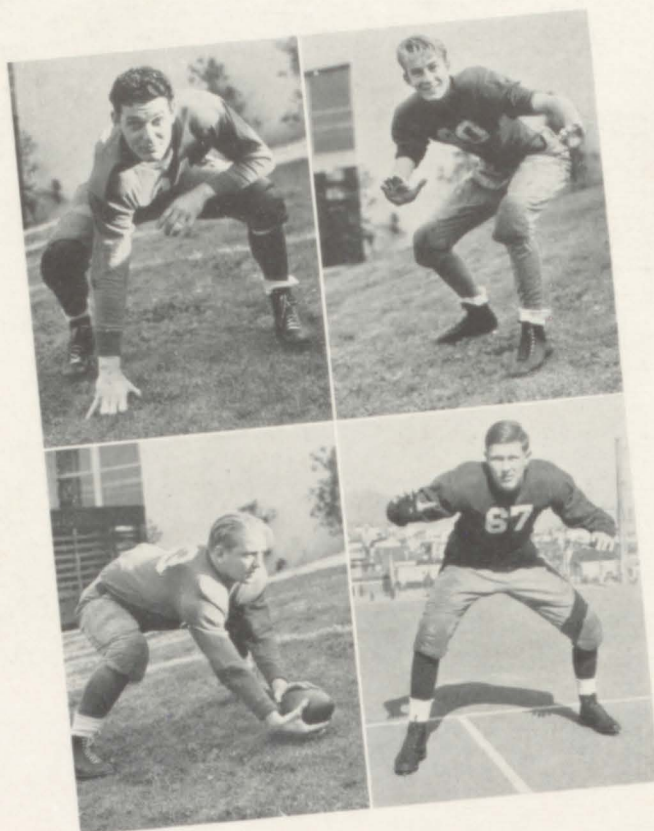

The Eagles struck back immediately and scored on a pass from Conners to Spargo. LeBaron tied the game up at 7-7 with his trusty toe.

From that point on it was all Galileo. The Lions scored 45 seconds before the half, again in the third quarter, and a few seconds before the final gun.

120-POUND BASKETBALL

Reinforced by members of last year's championship 110-pound squad, the 1938 120's succeeded in tying for top place in the standings with Lowell High's Papooses. The team won six games and lost one, having been victorious over Mission, Galileo, Balboa, Lowell, St. Ignatius, and Polytechnic, and losing only to the Commerce Bulldogs.

The champion quintet, under the eye of Coach Lloyd Leith, truly played smart basketball throughout the season and was never outfought.

Inasmuch as Lowell was defeated by the Eagles, 19-15, the Scarlet and Grey clad boys can rightfully claim the championship.

The squad consisted of G. Rosenberg, L. Franz, E. Lapuyade, Myron Harband, Monroe Harband, P. Lamone, H. Zimet, J. Terry, H. Bishop, J. Vincent, H. Tom, and J. Gardner.

110-POUND BASKETBALL

The second season of 110-pound basketball in the A.A.A. was played by Washington's Eaglets. This season ended with four victories and four defeats for Washington. The Eaglets were undefeated until mid-season, when they meet Lowell. From there on they fell apart.

In league competition the 110's had victories over Mission, Balboa, Galileo, Sacred Heart, and were defeated by Lowell, Polytechnic, Commerce, and St. Ignatius.

The players were D. Stone, R. Dunnigan, A. Ringel, J. Weider, D. Logue, E. Leonhardt, P. Dammer, D. Carter, E. Greenhood, and W. Minkel. Winston Halley managed the squad with Mr. Lloyd Leith coaching.

SOCCKER

Under the guidance of Coach S. Kelly, the soccer team entered its second season of existence. Lack of man power proved costly and the Eagles had to be satisfied with one league victory for six starts.

In the opening game of the season, against Lowell, the Eagles scored one goal which was enough to win the game. Hartman scored the tally early in the game.

The Balboa Bucs edged the Eagles out, 3-2, in the second game, Bob Newsham and Howard Nisson scoring for the Eagles.

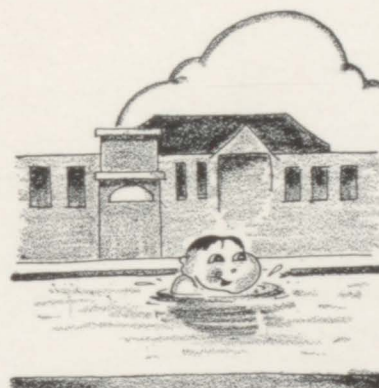

Washington lost its next game against Poly, 3-1. The Parrots ran through the weak Eagle defense and held Washington's offense to one goal.

After an even start with the Galileo Lions, the Eagles' defense weakened considerably in the second half and four goals were scored by the fast Lion backs in quick succession, making the final score 4-1 in favor of Galileo.

Having only a three-day rest after the Galileo affair, the Eagles met Mission. The Bears proved to be the superior team by winning 5-1, with Melvin Schiller scoring the Eagle goal.

In the last game of the A.A.A. season the Eagles were held scoreless by a fast Bulldog eleven which managed to score three goals after a hard battle. Merkle and Newsham were standouts for Washington.

The squad consisted of F. Giudice, E. Nisson, K. Ludlam, C. Sanborn, A. Ottolini, T. Trent, S. Haudrich, G. Hartman, W. Swagerty, S. Tom, A. Ungereetti, B. Katurich, P. Belvel, J. Murphy, H. Activity in interclass and after-school sports and all-around good sportsmanship are qualifications for membership in the Girls' Athletic Association. All the girls who belong have shown their vitality; their healthful attitudes; and their wholesome interest in school affairs in countless ways.

The G.A.A. has built itself into one of the most active groups in school, until this term, its activities have been the most successful so far. Yolanda Gomez was president of the group; Betty Hendy was vice-president; Elaine Terry, secretary; and Marion Bassett, historian.

Even an athletic association must have its pep leaders, this year personified in Betty Levy, Doris Little, and Jean Hamburger.

Preceding the activities of the organization a rally was held with Nancy Bagnall as the chairman. The various sports under G.A.A. control were explained in the form of a fashion show.

PLAY DAY

A play-day, traditional at George Washington, under the guidance of LaVerne Minkel, president of the Block W Society, turned out to be a gala festival. Every high school in the city participated in this event by sending representatives. The committee in charge was as follows: Invitations, Ethel Pantoleon; Arrangements, Barbara Lutzen; Decoration, Irene Swartz; Publicity, Irene Alberigi; Hostess, Mildred Carter; Refreshments, Peggy Mertens; Official, Adah Parker; Rearrangements, Dina Carrara. Such games as basketball, volleyball, paddle-tennis, and ping-pong were enjoyed by all. Weary and foot-sore athletes were served refreshments later in the cafeteria.

SWIMMING

Washington's mermaids proved their prowess in the water when Frances Young and Audrey Smith, managers of the swimming group, led them to a successful term. Mrs. Lillian Clayton and Miss Florence Shearer, sponsors of the swimming group, supervised them in their aqueous endeavors.

BASKETBALL

The fine art of pivoting, blocking, and passing intermingled with aesthetic and not so graceful movements were the order of the day when Miss Dorothea Forcade and Miss Shearer displayed the finer points of basketball. The girls were organized into six teams, the captains being Lucille Harris, Betty Hendy, Frances Young, Ethel Pantoleon, Katherine Kessel, and Yolanda Gomez. The sport is managed by Verne Williams and Susan Kuh.

GOLF

With prospects of "holes-in-one," the golf group wandered on the greens of the Lincoln Golf Course. With a professional instructor, Miss Poole, sponsor, learned along with her group. The group was divided into two sections, the beginners and the advanced, which were managed by Adele Kleinhaupt and Barbara Stevens. The girls plodded the course, rain or shine.

TENNIS

Those engaged in tennis found that they had selected a most interesting sport. Under the guidance of Miss Clayton and Mrs. Denny, the group was divided into two sections. Dorothy Behrmann managed the advanced section while Doris MacKillop handled the lower.

PADDLE TENNIS

Paddle tennis was also on the G.A.A. schedule. One of the most interesting of all activities had as its sponsor Mrs. Clayton, and as its manager, Marina Swan.

BLOCK W SOCIETY

The Block W Society, the highest girls' athletic society, carried out plans formulated last term.

Aiding the G.A.A., planning rallies and club activities were but a small part of their task. The president, LaVerne Minkel, and the sponsors, Miss Poole and Miss Clayton, helped the organization to accomplish its plans.

BANQUET

As we go to press, one of the biggest activities of the term is to take place, the climax of a season of excitement, the annual banquet. The banquet ends the activities of the G.A.A. It will feature entertainment supplied by the students, installation of new officers, and the presentation of awards. Special guests from the San Francisco State Teachers' College, San Francisco Junior College, and all high schools in the city have been invited. Other guests are Mr. Dougherty, Mr. Cummings, Miss Jackson, and Mr. Wieland. The theme of the day is winter sports. Under the direction of Erma Everett, the banquet promises to be a tremendous success.

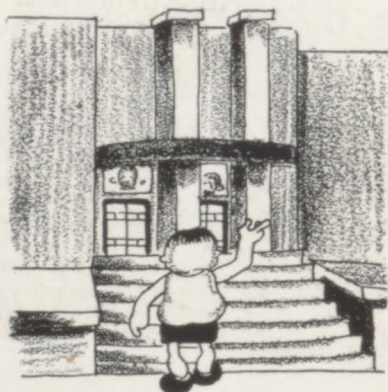

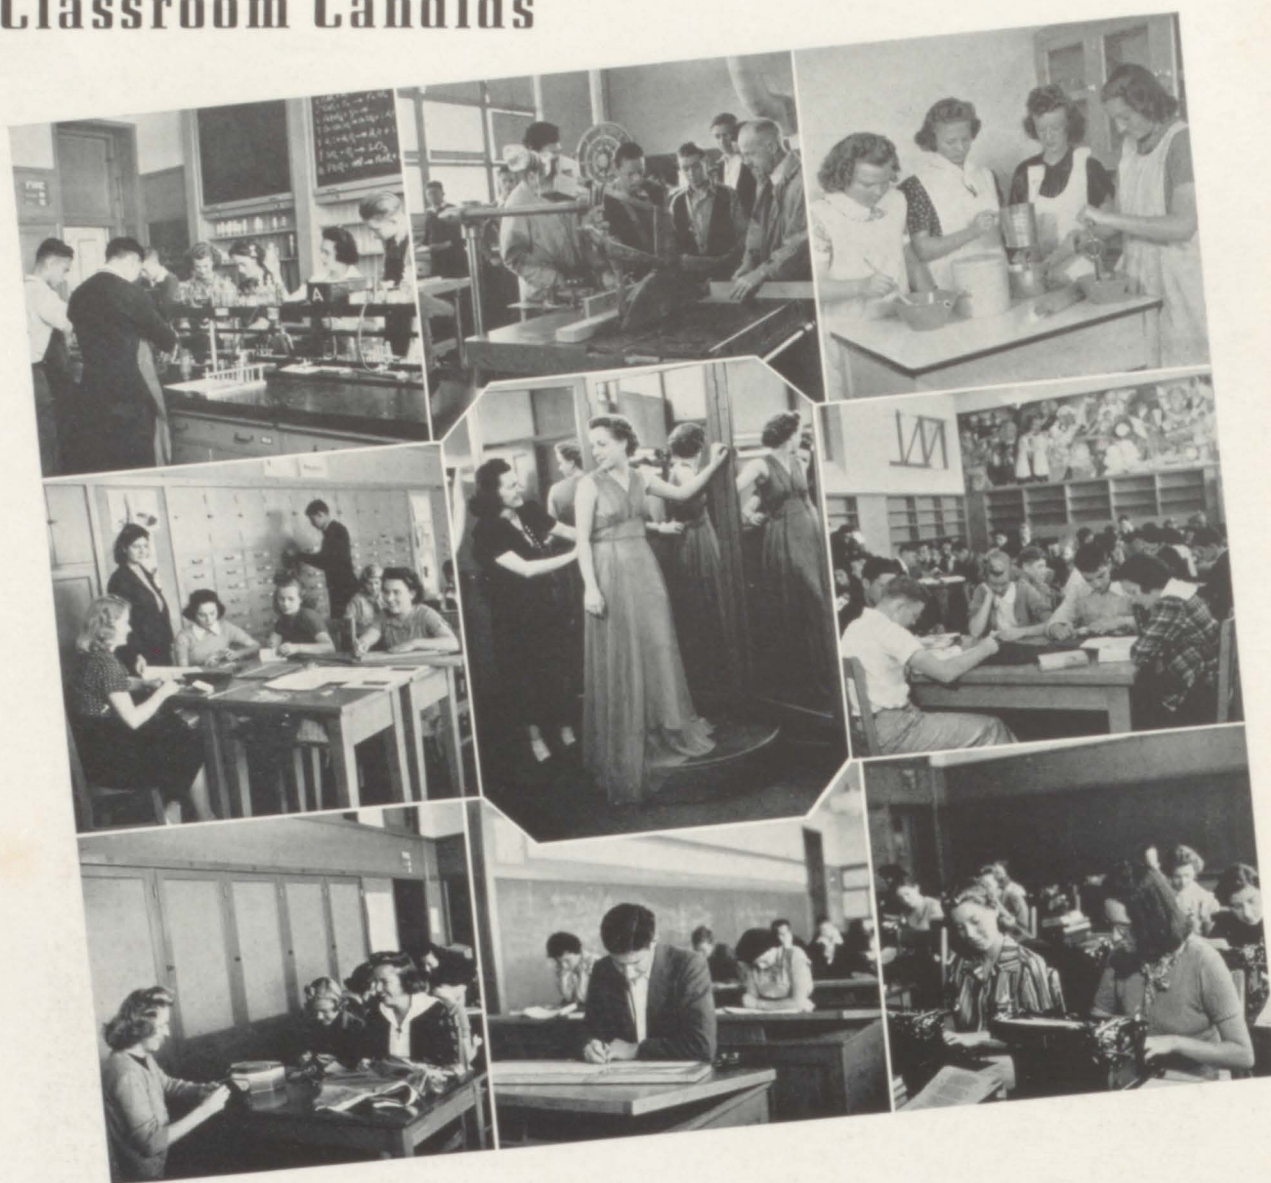

The following girls were chosen to be chairmen for their respective committees: Publicity, Doris Little; Decoration, Betty Pospisil; Entertainment, Barbara Hicks; Clean-up, Helen Custer; Invitations, Maxine Peck.

The sponsors of the G.A.A. are Mrs. Denny, Miss Forcade, and Miss Shearer.
