GEORGE WASHINGTON HIGH SCHOOL

F O R E W O R D

The world has had its pioneers in science, medicine, and exploration. As the result of their work, today we live in a world of such comfort, health, and knowledge that one may wonder whether there is anything left to pioneer in. That same query has been asked by the pessimists of every decade for centuries. Yet there has always been someone to discover new devices, new cures, and new land.

Facing the world after graduation will be more than four hundred students who make up the pioneer class of George Washington High School, so called because they are the first class to complete the school's full three year course. What is left for them to discover? In what fields will they distinguish themselves? In what may they pioneer?

Man will always want to travel from one place to another—rapidly, safely, and comfortably. Therefore, he will welcome any invention that enables him to achieve these aims. In this field, engineering, the graduate of today may find one place to pioneer.

Much is yet to be done to perfect land, air, and water travel. Someone in this class will, directly or indirectly, assist in that task. Thus may the theme of this June '39 Surveyor be to him guidance for the future.

● MISS ELEANOR M. JACKSON
Vice Principal

No matter where we may turn in this world we may find someone whose kindness and understanding have a magnetic power for all people. From that person we feel sure of a welcome if we seek comfort and guidance.

It is to one of those people we dedicate this, our fourth Surveyor. To Miss Eleanor Jackson, girls' vice-principal, whose sympathy, understanding, and knowledge have guided and helped many a George Washington girl, in humble appreciation we dedicate this book.

PERSONNEL

Youngest of the three methods of travel is air. Though men have dreamed of sailing bird-like in the sky for thousands of years, the dream did not become a reality till the early part of the twentieth century. Today our modern Pacific and Atlantic clippers are considered the most scientific structures in the air.

The future, however, can offer them much in their development. What progress has been made in the last forty years can be equalled in the next. The skies can and will be conquered.

BUILDERS TOGETHER

One manifestation of democracy is the acceptance of co-operative service as a way of life. Each member of a community is a fellow worker in a democracy at work.

The Class of June, 1939, has lived and labored through its whole Senior High School span at George Washington. It is the pioneer class. The dynamic four hundred who compose this class have been responsible for most of the achievements for which their school already is well known.

Buildings have gone up around this class, traditions arisen through it, and the most cherished records of the school have been engrossed indelibly with the names of its members. But the class knows that it has been building not for itself alone, but for a future to be shared and enjoyed by generations of students to come. And yet this class will share. A school grows through the continued accomplishments of those who have passed through its halls. Such a thought compensates us for the loss that the graduation of this class entails. The school will be more effectively at work in its world. Through its graduates it will pursue its destined way over a span of gold.

The Vice-Principals

MISS JACKSON'S MESSAGE

To the Members of the Spring '39 Class:

You hold a distinctive place not alone because you entered George Washington when its doors were first opened in August, 1936, but because you have made through three years a warm and enduring place in the hearts of all Washington students and teachers. As you meet the future, will you show the same staunch and fair-minded spirit that has characterized you as you have worked out your problems in school? Will you remember that "everything remains yet to be done—right, everything" and that each one of you has a share in helping to make things right? Giving allegiance only to that which you know to be just, building into your lives a philosophy of concern for all—not alone for yourselves—having ideas and ideals worth living for, will you not try to make the world a better place in which to be?

ELEANOR M. JACKSON
Vice-principal

WILLIAM A. WIELAND
Vice-principal

MR. WIELAND'S MESSAGE

Upon the members of the class of June, 1939, rests a great responsibility. For it is you who are the standard bearers of George Washington High School. Upon you, the first class to receive its entire Senior High School training here, has been lavished the best that George Washington has to give. By your success will that training and the worth of your school be measured.

The school will follow your careers with particular interest. Having known you for the last three years, we are confident that the good repute of Washington is safe in your hands. We know that you will show by your lives that George Washington trains the best citizens of San Francisco.

As you leave us remember that you are our own. You carry with you the benediction and the hope of the school. May success and happiness be your portion.

Teaching the girls how to sew on buttons and make garments is the duty of Mrs. Elsie Williamson. Under her supervision over one hundred garments were made by the girls in the home economics classes for the needle work guild last term. Outside of school Mrs. Williamson likes to go to concerts and lectures. However, at present her main interest is the Island in the Bay.

A member of the mathematics department, Mr. William Baker teaches advanced algebra and solid geometry, as well as high school math. His other interests are golf and gardening. Before moving to Washington, he taught at Galileo High School.

Supervisor of the journal advertising salesmen, Mr. Thomas Gates has done much to aid in the publishing of this book. He teaches typing and commercial law and spends his spare time fishing and golfing.

Sportsminded both in and out of school, Miss Florence Shearer is the Girls' Athletic Association sponsor. Though she plays and enjoys most sports, her favorites are fishing and bowling. She is a graduate of the University of Washington.

Coming to Washington, when it opened, from Analy Union High School in Sebastopol, Mr. Cecil Carroll considers himself a pioneer, along with the June '39 class. A graduate of Stanford University, he teaches chemistry. As a hobby he watches all school athletics and saves newspaper clippings of them.

Washington's tallest teacher, Mr. Hartwell Preston, teaches public speaking and dramatics. He hails from Stanford University. Outside of the class room he takes photographs for Life magazine. He is a new member of the faculty, coming to Washington at the beginning of this term.

Student Governors

Climaxing an active term under the guidance of student prexy Clyde LaVerne, former Eagle Society president and basketball player, George Washington students were kept busy during the preceding semester with many social functions and rallies.

Social activities, the May Fair, Hello Day, and the student body dance were ably in charge of Vice-president Dolores Cook and Secretary Nancy Bagnall.

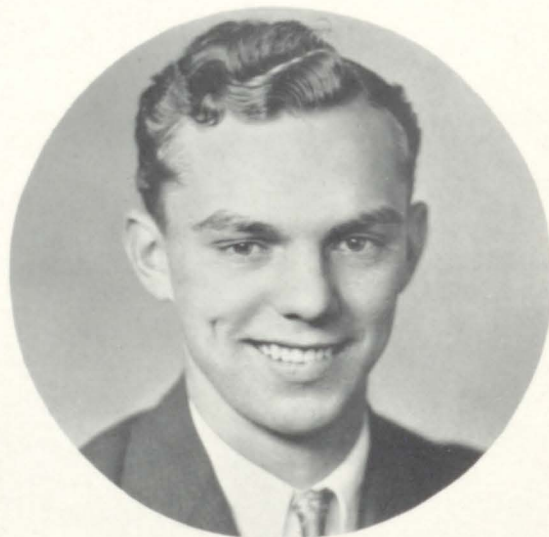

The duty of selling the student body cards went under the leadership of Treasurer Bob Evans. With the selling of over 1800 cards, the sale again proved a success.

Pep and spirit at the basketball games and numerous rallies were made possible by Head Yell Leader Mel Petievich and his two able assistants, Jim Bayliss, and Peter Garadis. Walter Minner was in charge of the ticket sale for the athletic contests in his capacity as athletic manager.

The office of Custodian was filled by James Wieder, who kept Washington's trophies shining.

During the basketball season, guests from other city high schools attended the rallies and various other functions.

The top class in Washington was lead by Tom Trent. Assisting Tom in the plans for the "Who Am I" day and other high senior events were Lorna Kreuter, vice-president, Jean Wolf, secretary, and Malcolm MacKillop, treasurer.

Led by John Shaughnessy, president, the low seniors held a "Sadie Hawkins Day", April 14. He was aided by Bernadine Reeves, vice-president, and Shirley Graubart, secretary.

Combining with the low juniors, the high juniors, with Richard English as president, Marjorie Sadler, vice-president and Lorraine Rogers, secretary, held a "Hick Day" on April 28. The low juniors who aided were Mary Mangan, president, Dick Stone, vice-president and John Kockos, secretary of the class.

The high sophomores were led by Bill DeRecat, president, Barbara Wilder, vice-president, and Nancy Gallagher, secretary. John Ghelfi, low sophomore president, had his class in the semi-annual clean up day. Aiding him were Jack Dooling, vice-president, and Lillian Trussell, secretary.

Who Am I Day April 24th

The dead end kids pose for a picture. Sour looking, aren't they, but they certainly had the rest of the school in hysterics . . . Variety in every way, when the thirty-niners dressed as someone else . . . Mammy, if it isn't Topsy (in inset) . . . Three of the Dionne quintts look on as a hula girl and a vampire go into action . . . "Now listen, you mugs," says Edward G. Robinson.

THE LOG OF THE PIONEERS By LORNA KREUTER, Vice-president

The first graduation class to have completed the first full three years in George Washington High School can rightfully be called the "Pioneer Class." We have all struggled hand in hand through the portals of high school. It is with grateful appreciation that we recall some of the important events and students of our class.

As low sophomores we were taught to press forward in our endeavors; we were taught to overcome the many obstacles which the whole school had to contend with the first term. The first "Clean-Up Day" was begun. Led by Walter Preston, Erma Everett and Louise Kooyman, class officers, the day was a most successful event.

Our high sophomore class was even better for we all had learned the meaning of initiative. Clubs sprang up. After-school activities were started. Rallies were frequent. The athletic fields were being crowded. Tom Garvey, Dolores Cook, and Mary Bracken, leaders of this class, led a successful term of events including another "Clean-Up Day."

When we reached the low junior year, the demands on the class officers were more exacting. Clyde LaVerne, Charlotte Kovas, and Audrea Barthol began their successful campaign with a Junior Nautical hop. This was held in connection with the high junior class. This was the term that Earl Beenfeldt and Joe Compagno were admitted to the Eagle Society. Leo Leggett's achievements in football history were beginning.

Our unforgettable high junior grade was led by Tom Trent, Art Marwedel, and Anita Welt. Participating in the athletics were such notables as Al

Shatsky, and Earl Beenfeldt in basketball; Tom Garvey and William Finck in track; Guido Perotti and Robert Rivers in baseball; and Malcolm MacKillop and Bill Michelsen in swimming. Yolanda Gomez, secretary of the G.A.A., Barbara Wilson, and Adele Bankcroft were a few outstanding girls in the athletic field. The main social activity of this term was a Barn Dance held in the school library. The entire junior class, including the low juniors, dressed as farmers and milk maids for one day. Al Shatsky, John Phelan, Norman Hawkins, Clyde La Verne, Bob Barsochini, and Bob LeBaron, were elected into the Eagle Society. Journalistic accomplishments were accredited to Martha McLaughlin, Business Manager of the Eagle.

Under the guidance of Robert LeBaron, Dolores Cook, and Phyllis Anderson, the low senior term played an important role in our class history. A "Pioneer Day," in which everyone dressed in the clothes of their great grand parents, was held. Tom Trent was student body treasurer. Erma Everett, Louise Jacobs, Martha McLaughlin, Eleanor Langpaap, and Yolanda Gomez were elected into the Girls' Service Society. Newly elected members of the Eagle Society included such outstanding low seniors as Tom Trent, Leo Leggett, George Merriman, and Walter Minner.

Under the able guidance of Tom Trent, president; Lorna Kreuter, vice-president; Jean Wolf, secretary; and Malcolm MacKillop, treasurer; the H 12 term was full of events. A senior "Who Am I" day was held in which all seniors dressed as radio characters, book personalities, history personalities, etc. The final curtain fell on June 14 when the "Pioneer Class" of 412 students took their final step on graduation.

Seniors Stuntings

It's not a bunch of Hollywood extras—it's only the senior class at the rally . . . Kalem Kermoyan sings, crutches or not . . . Spectators at the Senior versus Faculty baseball game . . . Well, well, what a great big face you have, Mr. Brown . . . (alias Martin Tarpey) . . . talent for the senior rally.

ORGANIZATIONS

Ships that sail the seven seas have always held a magic charm for pioneers of the past, and so long as there is water to sail on, they will continue to fascinate the pioneers of the future. Yet as the world grows older, safer and speedier crafts will be needed. Just as the wooden canoe was replaced by the wooden galleon and the galleon by the steel hull and steam engine, so must the leviathan of today be cast aside for the ship of tomorrow.

Eagle Society

With Joe Compagno leading the Eagle Society, George Washington's boys' honorary society enjoyed its most successful term thus far. Assisting Joe were his fellow officers, Leo Leggett, star of Washington's football team, vice prexy, and Earl Beenfeldt, member of Washington's football and basketball teams, secretary.

Prominent in the activities performed by the Eagle Society were the following: Leo Leggett, Chairman of Visiting Committee; John Phelan, Chairman of May Fair, Charles Block, Chairman of Social Committee, Bob LeBaron, Chairman of the Dance Committee.

Enjoying one of the group's fullest terms were the sixteen members of the Girl's Service Society, under the capable guidance of the president, Erma Everett, and the other officers, Louise Payne, vice-president, and Louise Jacobs, secretary.

Organizing of the Lost and Found department in the office and the founding of lunch time study halls for girls were only a few of the many new services the girls offered.

At the annual May Fair the society took charge of the fortune telling booth. They aided in all dances and other social activities of the school, and as guides at open house.

Thirteen of the girls leave the society upon graduation. Those remaining are Louise Payne, Jean Weatherbe and Mary Mangan.

Marie Rozario and Arthur Blum	Columnists

When the Eagle, Washington's official student newspaper, adopted a new plan for content as a result of a poll of student opinion and combined new features, columns, make-up and general organization with the old, well-known and well-liked features, new enthusiasm developed in the field of publications and the spring issues were declared "best ever!"

A new phase of this term's publications was the appearance of the Eagle Reporters, a weekly radio broadcast, featuring Arthur Blum and John Edwards, assisted at times by Mildred Carter.

Endeavoring to keep up the high standards established by the past Surveyors, the staff of June '39 Journal worked hard and long on both cuts and copy and sincerely hope that it meets with your approval. This work could not have been done without the generous assistants of members of the faculty. Thanks go, therefore, to Mr. Thomas Gates for his supervision of the advertising salesmen, to Miss Haidee Tobriner for the direction of the art work, to Miss Eleanor Parsons for the organization of the sale and circulation of the book, to Miss Jane Cook, journalism advisor, and to Miss Marie Kirwin, senior advisor.

Candid Comments

By CHARLOTTE KOVAS

Someone (go ahead, ask me who) has been shadowing Washington students with their little candid camera. Thru a little "influence" the Surveyor secured the roll of films and here you see what you've been doing when we were watching! Take a look and be more careful next time. You never know where little "Ozone" and his little black box will be when you're not looking.

Lowell vs. Washington basketball game—evidently Lowell vs. Washington in more ways than one! This unexpected incident furnished a show for more than a few. Here's for a better spirit between the schools as a prevention against such a display of childish sportsmanship.

Girls—such strenuous exercise! Does this take place only between halves or is this the way the game is played? Maybe it's a new sport, although it can't be too new because this form of exercise has often been done by all of us.

What goes on here? Oh, just checking on who've been having themselves photographed. If your name is here spelled incorrectly, here's where it happened! In spite of sitting in the cold all day, these students appear to be sincerely enjoying their task. Perhaps it's because there are so many of them. The more the merrier, so the saying goes!

Telephone trouble, Mr. Wieland? Or just a headache? Here we have our Vice-principal obviously engaged in a serious conversation. Number please, Mr. Wieland? Sorry we don't give out that information!

You've a happy look on your face, Mr. Atherton—hope that's a nice fat "A" you're putting down! Then we can all be happy.

Ooops! These girls don't look as if they minded the slips, though. They've been ice skating at Sutros and from what they tell me it's a grand sport. So enjoy yourselves, girls. I'll stay on the ground—and on my feet!

The first faculty—student baseball game and look at that turnout! The entire school seems to have been attracted by our teachers' illustrious playing. Both sides however ended up evenly, 2-2. So I guess no comments can be said here yet!

Here we have the G.S.S. all dolled up and ready to inform questioning parents as to where little junior's room is! They did a grand job on open house night and I'm sure many parents were thankful for their kind service.

Washington broadcasters at Treasure Island. Looks as if they can't escape from those candid cameras. There's one hiding around every corner!

This picture turned out very nicely, however, and the boys look happy about the whole thing. Surprise—the Surveyor got it too!

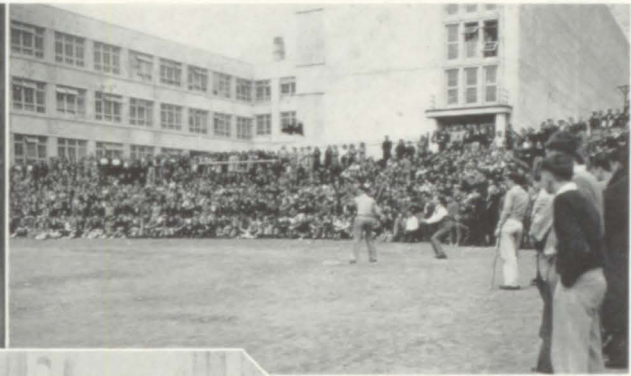

Two of Washington troubadours. Are you "troubing," boys? There's really a lot of good swing rhythm in your music. Keep it up, we're all enjoying it!

Fiesta Week as celebrated by Washington students. Judging from these snaps, everyone seems to be having fun. Viva la Fiesta—for more hilarious times!

The Music Club, under the supervision of Mrs. Myrtle Swanson, holds a high standing with its many members and the school itself. It was organized for the benefit of those who are lovers of fine music, and who have individual talent. They have shown their appreciation for this organization by attending the meetings which are held weekly. The club is conducted by President Nancy Bagnall, Vice-president Eleanore Schwarz, Secretary Barbara June Delfino, and Treasurer Henry Dickow. During the semester the members have studied the lives of modern and classical composers, such as Mozart, DeBussy, Beethoven, Carmichael and many others. The program planned by the members prove to be both educational and entertaining.

The main activities of the Girls' Choral Group, sponsored by Mrs. Myrtle Swanson, was to present a series of musical entertainments for this term. The girls sang on several radio programs for the school on Treasure Island, entertained the P.-T.A. mothers at one of their monthly meetings, provided the music for the Fashion Show given by the sewing class in the California Building on Treasure Island. Among their outstanding achievements, the entrance in the competitive Music Festival held on Treasure Island was their greatest when they brought home the second place in the contest, with the rating: Excellent!!

The Mixed Choral participated in many activities this term and were well rewarded with their efforts. They sang in the Competitive Festival on Treasure Island and received the highest rating of Superior for mixed choral groups. This triumph made them eligible for entrance in the National Music Festival which includes California, Arizona and Nevada competitors. They were also the first and only high school group to sing before three thousand school teachers at the semi-annual Teachers Institute, May 10th. For their outstanding work this term they have received many fan letters from the principals of other high schools in San Francisco and a personal letter from Superintendent of Schools J. P. Nourse. Excellent solo performances were rendered by Kalem Kermoyan and Dorothy Goodbar.

Reserve Officers' Training Corps

With increasing enrollment each term, George Washington's R.O.T.C. unit under the faculty supervision of Sergeant F. Feliciano has proven itself to be one of the outstanding groups in the city by the fine showing the cadets made in the recent spring competition at the Civic Auditorium and on December 1 of last year in the Commandment's Cup Competition.

The Washington battalion, competing at the Presidio in the annual Fall competition for the cup given to the most outstanding battalion, won the perpetual trophy. Led by Warrent Officer Tom Settle, and under Mr. Marion Knott's direction, the band climaxed their term by winning first place for the best band at the Civic Auditorium meet. Lieutenant Colonel Raimon Conlisk was awarded a watch for being the most efficient Battalion Commander. Also Washington's drill team under the leadership of Lieutenant Virgil Revie captured second place in that event.

In the spring of every year, each R.O.T.C. unit is inspected by a regular army officer. Washington's group was inspected May 5 and as we go to press the results of the Inspection have not yet been revealed.

This inspection, termed the Federal Inspection, is one of the most important of all competitions. The School making nearest to perfect score is given the title of "Honor School" and each individual cadet has the privilege of wearing a small red star on his right sleeve. The inspection consists of a battalion parade, platoon drills, and theory classes.

During the months of January, February, and March, fifteen Eagle cadets entered and placed 17th in a field of 60 schools in the Ninth Corps

Winners All in Competition

Area Rifle Matches. In the State Gallery Rifle Championships a five man team representing Washington took fourth place. Lieutenant Howard Nash and Sergeants Harold Emrie and Arthur Scott placed in the first ten in the city rifle matches and by so doing qualified to fire on the Hearst Trophy Team.

Through the cooperation of the faculty and student body the band was presented with 48 West Point Belts, giving the music section a very fine appearance.

The staff stands at attention: Lieutenant Colonel Raimon Conlisk, Major Samuel Ware, First Lieutenant Andrew Papageorge, Staff Sergeant Joel Springer.

ATHLETICS

Travel by land is man's oldest and simplest way of transportation for he needs only to walk. He has never, however, been satisfied with his own slow speed and has trained animals and made vehicles to enable him to move more rapidly. Though we look to air and water for speed and safety also, we may never forget the first and most evident method—travel by land.

Eagles Place Third

Completing their third year of A.A.A. basketball competition, Washington's varsity and 130-pound teams placed third and second respectively in the final league standings. The Eagle unlimited cagers tied for third spot with the Polytechnic Parrots, the Eagle lightweight hoopsters taking second place honors along with the Lowell 130's.

Led by Captain Al Shatsky, all-city guard, Coach Lloyd Leith's boys kept intact their record of never having finished out of the first division.

Upsets aplenty reigned throughout the 1939 prep casaba race. The Washington hoopmen came in for their share when the St. Ignatius five faced the Eagle men after four straight defeats to hand an 18-16 setback to the scarlet-and-grey-clad boys, after the Eagles had rolled over three opponents. Coming back with wins over Mission and Sacred Heart, the Commerce Bulldogs snapped the Washington winning streak with a 20-16 victory.

Battling the mighty Lowell Indians for a share of the season's championship crown, the Indians, led by Pete Delos and Captain Howard Dallmar, administered a 30-23 licking on the Eagles to retain the title for the fifth consecutive year.

The Washington first five had Al Shatsky, leading point scorer of the team, and Earl Beenfeldt, who played three years on the first string, at the guard jobs. Harry Craig, until forced to retire with injuries after the fourth league contest, held down the pivot spot and was replaced by Angelo Maestri. Al Dutil, six foot, three inch cager, turned in a fine season at one forward position, with little Dick English holding down the other forward and alternating with Johnny Shaughnessy.

Other boys who saw action during the current season were forwards George "Red" Merriman and Eddie Conlon; guards, Bob Barsocchini and Clyde La Verne; center, John Fagin.

Thirties Take Second

Proving themselves one of the classiest light-weight hoop teams in the league, Washington's 130 cagers wound up the current season with a record of 16 victories in 19 contests and proceeded to win second place honors in A.A.A. competition. They were, no doubt, one of the outstanding athletic groups to represent their school in its abbreviated sports history.

Their record will show that they did not lose any game of the three in which they met defeat by a margin of more than 2 points, showing remarkable defensive ability as well as scoring punch.

Captained by little Morris "Mushy" Silver, unanimous all-city choice of the sports writers, the Eagle "little fellows" suffered their first league setback at the hands of the Galileo "Lions" who went on to win championship honors in their division, after they had gotten off to a flying start by downing the Balboa five in the season opener. Rolling over Polytechnic, St. Ignatius, Mission, Sacred Heart, and Commerce, the Eagles dropped a heartbreaker to the Lowell Indians in their final encounter. The Galileo contest was perhaps the best played game of the entire season with Coach Leith's boys making a gallant comeback in the second half but failing by two points to close the gap. In their only other league defeat, Washington lost on a long, last minute field goal by Carl Raaka, Lowell forward, as the game ended.

With such outstanding boys as Al Levy, classy ball handler and scorer, at forward with Silver, Don Mavor, at center, Gayle Johanson, Fred Lear, and Walt Goldman, guards, these Washington lads put on a fine show for cage fans during the season. Capable reserves included Ed Powers, Ed Baraty, Ephram Gursky, and Clifford Harrington.

Cinderfellas at Washington

Coach Charles Schefflin's Eagle tracksters competing in their third A.A.A. meet at Kezar Stadium added more athletic fame to Washington during the preceding term.

The unlimited Scarlet and Grey clad cindermen were led by Bill Finck, brilliant 100-yard and 220-yard dash man, who placed second in the 220 sprint to Commerce's Wilbur Barlett, and was barely nosed out for second place in the century, to take third. Johnny Spargo, although he did not place in the mile run in the finals, turned in fine performances in the various inter-school contests. Other boys included on the unlimited team were Jim Wagstaff, Jim Finnegan, Ken Finck, Art Scott, Jim Eagen, Joe Santos, and Raymond Hacke.

In the lightweight division, the Eagle 130's were the outstanding team to represent Washington. Though many of the boys failed to reach finals, individual performances by Maury Shipnuck in the 220-yard dash and his fine race in the relay, along with Ernie Ribera's second place in the 440-yard race, were outstanding. The lightweight relay team made up of Leo Leggett, Don Mavor, Ernie Ribera, and Maury Shipnuck, copped a second place.

The 130 trackmen included Maury Shipnuck, Leo Leggett, Don Mavor, Bill Ackerman, Roland Reynolds, Warren Rice, Ernest Ribera, Henry Lapkin, Joe Wineroth, Ben Messer, Bill Wilson, and Dick Murphy.

With a larger turnout of prospective trackmen each season, Coach Schefflin looks for track to increase its popularity among the students. Most of the members of this year's squads will graduate, leaving all the places on the team wide open.

Horsehide Hurlers

Lacking in experienced ball players and adequate material, Coach Sylvester Kelly's Eagle diamondmen ended their 1939 season in last place, as the Balboa Bucs went on to cop first place honors. Washington's closest thing to a win came in their game against the Polytechnic Parrots in which contest they were defeated by a score of 3-1.

Graduation hit the Eagle baseballers hopes a tough blow for the '39 season. Two first string veterans of the '38 nine returned for the '39 season, Tom Clark, the clever fielding second baseman, and Guido Perotti, outfielder. Julio Castelli, flychaser, and Bob Rivers, catcher, two lads who saw a little action during the '38 season, were the only other experienced men.

Leading batter of the Washington baseball team was Bob Rivers, who in four games swatted a good 383 average. Next highest Eagle in the hitting line was Tom Clark.

The Eagle infield was made up of Bob Webber, first; Tom Clark, second; Bud Paden, shortstop; and Mel Simpson, third. In the outfield, Guido

Dan McMullen did the lion's share of the pitching with Bob Rivers on the receiving end.

Looking forward to next year, Coach Kelly visions a more successful season in that many of this year's squad will return. Such boys as Al Levy, along with some promising newcomers, should put the Eagles in the baseball spotlight in prep circles.

When Washington's athletic plant is completed, providing for a baseball stadium, it is the hope of Mr. Kelly that more baseball-minded students will try out for the sport.

Natators Navigate Nobly

With the annual A.A.A. swimming meet held at Fleishhacker Pool winding up the season, Eagle mermen, under the coaching of Mr. Lloyd Leith, came in for their share of the glory by taking a fourth place in the unlimited events and tying for a fourth along with Commerce in the lightweight division.

The varsity paddlers were led by Phil Ehrlich who captured a first in the 50-yard free style and placed second in the 100-yard event. Malcolm MacKillop also added points to Washington's cause, taking a third in the 100-yard free style, while the Eagle relay team of Dick Brey, John Leddy, Earl Beenfeldt, and MacKillop finished third.

Competition being very keen among the lightweight teams, Washington made a splendid showing by tying for fourth spot.

Leading the Eagle 130's were the two divers, Dick Jacobs and Anthony Horn, who placed first and second respectively in that event. Other points scored by the 130's were added by Willis Richey, who took second in the 50-yard free style, and Warren Willard, who placed fifth in the same. The relay team composed of Richey, Willard, Jacobs, and Marcus Vanderlaan finished second in that race.

In the 120's, Washington's Phil Damner took a second in the 50-yard free style and also swam on the first place relay team, composed of Warren Jacobs, James Wieder, Morton Zimmer, and Damner.

The Eagle paddlers also included meets with various other schools during their preceding season, meeting teams from Tamalpais, Sequoia, and Polytechnic.

On your marks! Start of the 220 yard free style swim in the annual A.A.A. swimming meet.

Anthony Horn, Eagle diver does a beautiful back dive. Anthony placed second in the lightweight diving.

Tennis Squad and Golfers

With an array of veteran racket wielders in both the singles and doubles divisions, the Eagle tennis team under Mr. A. J. Fagin's supervision had its most potent season since this sport was first started at Washington. As we go to press, the A.A.A. finals have not yet been held in Golden Gate Park; therefore we can't give the results.

Led by James Kirker, number one man and manager of the squad, the team showed great promise. The other players in order of their ranking were as follows: James Kaffin, Frank Sporon-Fiedler, Warren Lowenbein, and Jack Polly, alternate.

The doubles teams were composed of Melvin Schiller and John Reid, Don Mavor and John Leddy, Bob Grant and Jack Werner, and Ed Titlow and Ernest Olson.

Howard Peterson serves an ace. Ed Titlow follows through.

This year's Eagle golf team enjoyed a successful season by having three boys survive the first round of the A.A.A. Tournament which was held at the Ingleside Golf Course from May 1 to May 26. The golfers who won their first round matches were Hugo Bjork, Bill Ackerman, and Will Dunsing.

The team of 14 boys was coached by Mr. Arthur J. Fagin. To reduce the number of competing players, elimination rounds were held. Winners of the elimination tournament, Bill Ackerman, Hugo Bjork, Hubert Beaumont, Will Dunsing, and Norman Schear, won the right to participate in the A.A.A. Tournament.

Returning next year for another try at that title are Bjork, Ackerman, and Beaumont.

Bill Dunsing, Eagle golfer, tees off. Hold it! Bill Ackerman takes a hefty cut.

Block "W"

G. A. A. Leaders

The Girls' Athletic Association is made up of sport-loving girls whose keen interest for the game causes them to go out for a sport after school at least once a week.

This term's offices were capably handled by Barbara Wilson, president; Eleanor Langpaap, vice-president; Marjorie Hunter, Secretary; Mary Mangan, historian; and Doris Little, head yell leader. Assisting Doris in leading the yells were Betty Petrich and Guinevere Gunthrope.

One of the main events of the term was the semi-annual Play Day held on April 26. The theme of this play day was the Fair. All the participants were divided into two teams. As such, they played basketball, baseball, volleyball, kickball, and ping pong. As an added attraction they held a popularity contest of which the winner and queen of the Play Day was vice-president Eleanor Langpaap. Entertainment was furnished the girls who visited from all the high schools in the city. After all the sports were over refreshments were served.

The next big date on the calendar was the term banquet. Here all awards were made and the next term's officers were announced.

A unique feature of the G.A.A. is their sports-caster. She is a girl chosen at the beginning of the term to announce, over the broadcasting system, all girls' sport events. Her identity is a secret until the banquet, when she is seen for the first time by the members. This term the sports-caster was Louise Payne.

The Block "W" Society is an award society to which girls are admitted only by actual effort. They must have at least six terms of after-school sports activities. Only three absences are allowed a term. The seventh term the girl receives a star and the eighth she receives a gold "W" pin. President of the society is Barbara Lutzen.

Paddle tennis and ping pong are played after school by about sixty girls. The ping pong is played in room 101 where the P.E. Department has four tables. Paddle tennis is played in the lower court. Managers for these sports are Betty Ambrose and Jean Hosmer.

Two rinks in the city makes it possible for Washington to send two groups of girls ice skating each week. Sixty girls are in Mrs. Lillian Clayton's group who go weekly to the 48th Avenue rink. Mrs. Margaret Denny and about thirty girls go to the rink at Sutro's each week. Managers for ice skating are Betty Pospisil and Pat Hinkel.

Baseball has a turn-out of about fifty girls. These girls play on the lower court and the sport manager is Sophie Ellis.

Washington's mermaids swim at the "Y" pool weekly. Diving and swimming strokes are perfected under the supervision of the P.E. teacher in charge. Sport manager is Kay Kessel.

Volleyball is another sport which has a large turn-out. Sixty girls signed up for the sport and once a week bat the ball across the net to score points. This sport is played on the lower court. The manager is Elfrieda Strahlendorf.

Roller Skating has come out of the streets and gone into the rinks with over one hundred Washington girls whirling around on them in a local rink. This is the first time this sport has been offered and the large sign-up has secured its position in the G.A.A. sport program. Phyllis Anderson is manager of this new sport.

Girls always want to learn to ride so once a week about twenty girls rent horses and go riding in the park. Helen Eads is riding manager.

Teeing off at Lincoln Park each week about twenty girls learn the "why and how" of golf. Adele Kleinhaupt is the manager.

MAKING THE TEAM?

Stars will tell you that you can't make a first-string team unless you train for it. There's many an hour of practice behind the flashing play of the winners.

It's the same thing throughout life. The successful people of tomorrow are those who are "in training" today. One of the best ways to keep in training for a successful life is to form the habit of saving.

Start now to train for a first-string team in life. Join The Anglo Bank Savings Club in your school and save something each week.

This drawing represents the "Birth of Earth;" how, when earth broke away from the sun, at the same time there came a clap of thunder and a streak of lightning.
